

Wm. G. Taylor Retires at 90 After 60 Years in Real Estate Business

William G. Taylor, the oldest active real estate man in Cleveland, O., retired from business in December of last year at the age of 90. As he closed the door of his office for the last time, he remarked that he had two regrets. He said that he would miss the telephone, and that he was sorry to give up his office telephone. For years Mr. Taylor had had the distinction of being the only survivor of the 78 original subscribers to Bell telephone service when it was started in Cleveland in 1879, and his name has been in every Cleveland telephone directory since that time.

Fair Director Reports Need for Work Horses

Popular belief that the horse is rapidly becoming extinct as a work animal is erroneous, according to H. D. Kelly, director of livestock and exhibits at the Michigan State Fair.

"Commercial horses are now in greater demand than in many years," Kelly says, "the demand being so great there is a pronounced shortage."

"Breeders of high-grade Percheron and Belgian stock are making plenty of money and virtually all of them have advanced orders for their yearlings."

"The Holbert Horse Importing Company, the Iowa Horse Importing Company and several other dealers in commercial horse flesh now have buyers in Europe who seek to bring back the best stallions and mares that can be found in the old country."

"This does not mean that the horse is supplanting the tractor. The fact is that the farmer seeks to prolong the life of his tractor by employing horses for certain farm jobs that horses can do as well as machinery can.

The finest commercial horses in Michigan will be exhibited at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit, August 30 to September 8, according to Andrew Adams of Littlefield who is in charge of this department at the fair. Awards for champion horses at this year's fair will total $5,615.

Elephant Tusks Are Teeth

The projections on an elephant known as tusks are merely elongated incisor teeth in the upper jaw. If these teeth are broken off or extracted they are never replaced. They are preceded by milk teeth, which come out at an early age. Good-sized tusks are produced on both sides of the African elephant, but they seldom occur on the females of the Asiatic or Indian species. In Ceylon only about 1 per cent of either sex has tusks.

Preached to 20,000 Thomas Conecte, a preaching friar of the Middle ages, frequently had audiences of 20,000 people, the men ranging themselves on one side of the pulpit and the women on the other.

Bulbs and Bill

By AMY CAMPBELL

McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WSD Service

"MOTHER," her older daughter said to Harriet after luncheon, "Bill and I are going to their cottage to plant bulbs this afternoon."

Harriet marveled for a moment at common sense and blundering ability.

"Sounds pleasant to plant bulbs today. Who is Bill, where is the cottage and what kind are you planting?"

Meanwhile she adroitly hid her toward toward. Billina must not escape her with the wrong key to the wrong place alone at sixteen for indefinite hours. And Billina must never suspect it was a really vital decision.

"Bill? Don't say you haven't seen him 'round here—Bill Moore. His mother knows you."

"Describe him," suggested Harriet cheerily as if her intention were only slightly capricious. "Oh—" Instantly—"That's not my line. He's taking the convertible and a load of bulbs in the rumble. We may go to the picture at the Palace tonight if we can find it when we get back. Bill says gardening is a trifle exhausting at first. I'm to stash in the bulbs while he digs and shows me where..."

"How long if we're late, Mom, for I may take hours."

"Sorry I didn't pay proper attention to your plans. How many of you are going and where is it? Bill and Bill, you said—what else?"

"We're going to their cottage at the beach," Billina said, with the degree of belated respect for her mother's opinion that Harriet had waited for.

"Who is with you besides Bill, Sweet?" Harriet felt the affection which she allowed to creep into the little name.

"Why, just the two of us, why?" and then, impulsively—"Say, Mom, just what is this all about? You're not going out to the cape and question Bill when he comes and say we must have a chaperon or we can't go."

So it had to come to a crisis. She said: "Don't, don't be up-headed. Quite naturally you can't wish, when you come to think of it, to go without wanting Bill to take his mother or some one else, on such a heavenly afternoon. She'd probably be interested and value you as the same."

Harriet lifted herself for being affable.

Billina's voice pierced her with its grave intent.

"You're so jittery. Of course Bill's mother isn't going. She is candid about effort of any kind. Loathes it. The cottage is locked, barred and water-tight. The disheveled, twenty million. We'll take perhaps two hours. We'll tea at the hotel grill which is still open. Be back for dinner and a later show. There's a program. Take it or leave it."

"Movie stuff, darling. But unconvincing. You can't talk to your hostess like that and remain a popular guest. Plan something else at once and not waste the day. The other is naturally off. Sorry I can neither take it nor leave it just yet. Not at sixteen, Sweet. Not and be your proper mother."

"Well, if that isn't cool! And hearty. Maternal solicitude indeed." Billina said this with deadly deliberation.

Harriet hid her anger successfully as she said, "Don't attempt to be horridly clever, darling. And walked with assumed serenity into the sunroom."

Billina called after her: "I'll phone Daddy, that's what I'll do." "Anything you like, Billina," was the smooth assent. "I like your Daddy's judgment about anything and everything."

Then Harriet appeared to become lost in a bit of writing she was doing. In exactly five minutes she heard her daughter's dulcet tones at the telephone.

"Bill, I don't think I want to delve in the soil today and I forgot a date for tonight. I really want to surprise Mom with a tray of afternoon tea today."

Harriet blotted away the sudden moisture from her lashes. Billina had her father's quick forgiving nature. In a few minutes she would appear proudly content as alone, anxious to show Harriet how she valued her mother's favor, really.

At sixteen, Harriet thought she too had believed her mother a killer. Yes, that was the old significant word they had for it. At that moment she heard a tumultuous arrival, distinctly male and very young and robust.

"Say, Bill," roared a fine unmodulated boyish voice, "I've just thought of the hunkiest idea. Let's take your mother planting to the lake and we could all have a good grill instead of rotting about here. You ask her for me, will you?"

Harriet thought, "So that's how they manage these things now." Distinctly clever. Or had it just happened?

She would take a book and go far down the cliff and read and let them plant bulbs morrily.

SPECTATORS WILL VIEW "FOREST FIRE" AT ESCANABA FAIR

The thousands of patrons expected to visit "Constitution Day" at the Upper Peninsula State Fair at Escanaba, Friday, August 23, will witness the drama of a forest fire and its fighters while they sit safely in their grandstand seats.

A forest fire will rage through the large enclosure before the grandstands. Fair patrons will see and hear just how thousands of smaller fires every year in Michigan are detected and fought. They will watch a towerman sight and report the fire. They will watch as crews are called; as various equipment is rushed to the fire; as fire lines are thrown ahead of the flames.

Combined with the conventional methods of combating fires the practical use of the two most modern fire fighting developments—the "jet" wells and the radio. Soaring far over the fire, from an airplane, directions will be given by radio to the ground crews below. The new "jet" well system will be brought into play and the thousands of watchers will see exactly how Michigan fire fighters are able to sink wells and have great streams of water playing on the flames within ten minutes' time.

Continuous explanation of the various developments will be given as the fire fighting is in progress, by means of a public address system now being installed at the fair grounds.

Bounty System Brings Results in Animal Deaths

Success of Michigan's present bounty system for control of predatory animals is indicated in a report issued by the Department of Conservation for the first six months of 1935 which shows a 400 percent increase to the number of animals taken over the same period the previous year.

Under the state trapper system, during the first six months of 1935, a total of 468 bobcats, coyotes and wolves were killed in Michigan. From January 1, when a bounty system went into effect, until July 1, of this year, the Conservation Department paid bounties on 1,602 animals of the same species.

The complete report of the Department for the first six months of this year shows a take of 773 bobcats, 357 male coyotes, 331 female coyotes, 123 coyote pups and five wolves. A total of $11,173.03 was paid in bounties.

Letters Written in Clay A postal service six thousand years old was discovered among the ruins of Ur of the Chaldees. Lacking parchment, the writers fashioned their letters in clay and left them to bake in the sun.

"Tit Willow"

THE NEW VERSION

A merchant alone in a desolate store Sang, "Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow!" And I said to him, "Why are you pacing the floor, Singing "Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow?" "Alas," he replied as he smothered his sighs, "I thought it nonsense to advertise, And now I've no customers at all but the flies;

'O Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow!" Then he whistled a tune and tried not to feel bad;

"O Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow!" But he brought to our ad man a three-column ad;

"O Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow!" That was some months ago, but from that very day

People flocked in by crowds and made that store pay,

Until now he has more greenbacks than some folks have hay;

"O Willow! Tit Willow! Tit Willow!" —Borrowed.
