

UNFAIRNESS OF LAW BOOK PRICES POINTED OUT

Some lawyers and law students in Michigan and elsewhere are paying to private book dealers almost twice the price asked by the state for three books currently in demand, the Department of State points out.

While some, who have made their purchase from private dealers, have complained to Orrville E. Atwood, Secretary of State, about the apparent imposition, many thus victimized have never discovered that the books are sold for one price to all by the state government.

Some have criticized the sale of state-published books to private dealers, but the law governing this sale makes no limitation on the quantity to be sold to any one purchaser. Those who have complained have been informed by personal letter that they might have bought the books from the State Department for the same price the book dealer paid.

One firm has advised a restricted client of an offer of three books sold separately for $5.50, which are for sale in Lansing for $3.00. The books and the prices charged by the state are: Pamphlet of Immediate Effect Acts of the 1935 Session, free, postage paid, to anyone who asks for it; Public Acts of 1935, $1.50; Michigan Manual (to be issued soon), $1.50. In addition, the state sells the four-volume set of Michigan Compiled Laws, 1929, for $15.00. As to the Public Acts of each session of the Legislature, many public officials receive free copies of these volumes by law.

One book dealer was charged actual printing costs of 35 cents for each pamphlet of a large shipment of Immediate Effects Acts of 1935 he requested free to him, so he requested them for 50 cents each to the public. Atwood had offered to send any number, free, to everyone on any mailing list supplied by the dealer, but this offer was rejected. The Secretary of State took the position that taxpayers of the state should not be asked to foot the bill for free distribution of books later to be sold by private book dealers.

There is nothing illegal in the actions of such dealers. In instances where law students cannot pay cash, as required by the state, the dealers perform a useful function. Atwood's only desire is that the public be informed of the prices for which the books are sold by the state.

Indian Diplomacy

Three hundred years ago the chief of one of the Indian tribes of the Connecticut river valley, the Pequots, journeyed to the Massachusetts and Plymouth colonies to invite them to see the fertile Connecticut valley and share it with them. This was Indian diplomacy rather than generosity, and the choice of the lesser of two evils. In order that they gain the protection of the English rather than pay tribute to the warlike Pequots of southeastern Connecticut and also to the savage Mohawks of New York. As a result of this visit, and for other reasons, Thomas Hooker led a little band of men, cattle and household supplies overland through the wilderness to the Connecticut valley and a new colony was formed.—Washington Post.

DOCTOR ADVOCATES THREE HEALTH PRINCIPLES

Medical science now has advanced to a point where tuberculosis could be practically wiped out, if a wider knowledge of the modern methods that are being used to prevent, find and combat the disease could be assured, Dr. Bruce H. Douglas, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, declared this week.

"Our greatest remaining task in the fight against tuberculosis is to bring the general public the knowledge of the disease that has resulted from years of medical research. During the past thirty-five years the tuberculosis mortality rates have been reduced over 40 percent. This sharp decline has been due to a number of factors, among them the improvement of medical and nursing care and the rapid development of the sanatorium movement.

"The fact remains, however, that relatively very little is known about tuberculosis by the general public, and that if there was a wider knowledge, and even more rapid death rate decline could be expected."

Dr. Douglas pointed out that if three broad principles about tuberculosis could be impressed upon the public mind, much of the distress that is prevalent could be eliminated. Those principles are:

one can never be sure, observe healthful living habits. Get plenty of sleep, good food, fresh air, and sufficient recreation. These are the only known preventatives of tuberculosis.

2. Make sure as to whether or not you have tuberculosis, see your physician, arrange to have a tuberculin test, and if a reactor, a chest x-ray. These methods are the only known preventatives of tuberculosis.

3. Should you be found to have the advanced, adult type tuberculosis, go to a sanatorium as soon as possible. Had rest in a modern treatment sanatorium is the only cure for tuberculosis known to the medical science.

Habit Grew to Be General
For a time in its early statehood career laws of Ohio were amended and made worse merely for the sake of making a good-sized volume, and as an excuse for legislators to stay on the job and thus draw their $5 per day.
