

NEWS OF TROOP 45

The meeting on November 11, was opened by the Scouts saying the oath, laws and saluting the flag. Announcements were made about the Boy Scout "Exposition of Progress" and the coming Court of Honor. Patrol meetings were held and the Scouts discussed such activities as building, knot boards, and putting on plays. After inspection the Scouts were instructed in first aid and signaling. The Scouts engaged in games following instruction. The meeting was concluded by the Scouts repeating the Scoutmaster's "Benediction." Troop 45 took a hike Saturday. Many Scouts cooked their own meals and played games.

CHART—From the Latin word charta, Greek, charte, a kind of papyrus. There are many references in the early days to the "cards" for the charts.

RECENT MICHIGAN EARTHQUAKE NOT UNIQUE

Anna Arbor—The earthquake felt in Michigan at 1:08 a. m. on November 1, which dislocated the section of the University seismograph, was merely one of a known series beginning as early as the year 1853, when Jesuit missionaries wrote of a quake of considerable violence, according to Professor William H. Hobbs, University of Michigan geologist and student of earth tremors.

Despite the fact that many minor shocks have been felt from time to time in Michigan and nearby states, there is little likelihood of the occurrence of quakes severe enough to cause much damage or loss of life, states Professor Hobbs. Although, without complete details of the recent tremor, he predicted that it probably originated in minor slipping of underlying rocks in the vicinity of Lake Erie.

The gradual rising of the land in the great lakes region since the passing of the last glacier explains the quakes in this section. The immediate cause of any particular quake is a slipping or sliding of the underlying layers of rock, as the changes in strains upon them occur. Because the rock layers in this section of the country are well "settled", however, the slips which do occur are comparatively slight.

While most of the Michigan quakes seem to have been most noticeable in the lower portion of the state, Calumet and Lake Linden experienced a tremor in 1905 which brought down many chimneys and broke large plate glass windows. Other local disturbances in the mining region were not infrequently caused by movements of the railroad tracks in the vicinity of the pits. In 1909 a quake was distinctly felt along the Lake Michigan shore and inland to Lake Huron. In 1925 Detroiters were awoken by a minor one. All in all, Michigan has little to fear of Mother Earth's spells of rage. Only a very few of the tremblings recorded by the delicate seismograph are strong enough to even be detected by man.

CONSERVATION HANDBOOK AVAILABLE TO WOMEN

Audrey C. DeWitt, lecturer of the educational division, Department of Conservation, is author of a conservation handbook for women's organizations, which is being distributed without charge.

The handbook contains information concerning conservation in Michigan and suggests a number of constructive community projects that could be conducted by women's groups interested in conservation activity.

V-8 LEADERSHIP

On October 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 for wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.
