32 More Telephones Listed in Directory

A substantial increase in the number of telephones installed in the last 18 months in Farmington again illustrates that better times have already started to come back.

The Farmington branch of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company distributed their telephone directories to the Farmington customers Wednesday.

In the December 1935 directory 32 more telephones are listed than were listed in the June 1934 issue. The telephones in service, as of November 25, 1935, numbered 474.

For some time it is reported as much improved. The Ladies' Auxiliary of Don Sherman Hubert Post No. 345 will her 14. Miss Anna Thayer of West Point Park is the donor.

In the list is included one of the most popular books of this generation, "Heaven's My Destination," by Thornton Wilder. It is called the modern "Don Quixote." The other books are "Anne Boleyn," by E. Barrington, which has a historical setting, "The Babyns" by Clarence Pone, the chronicle of a family; and "Dark Hazard" by W. R. Burnett, an American story as written by an Englishman.

"Heaven's My Destination" is the story of the struggles of a commercial textbook traveler with an unfeeling world. It is told "with uproarious comedy, but also with the same profound understanding and compassion which endeared 'The Bridges of San Luis Rey' to over a million readers." It was published in 1935.

"Anne Boleyn" is the story of one of the six wives of that romantic figure, Henry the Eighth. The author, portrayed Anne as shrewd, lovely, ambitious, generous, disillusioned and resolved to capitalize her beauty for her own ends. It is also the story of the times in which Anne lived, which "what was a woman's virtue one way or another in the great game of kings and kingdoms." "Anne Boleyn" was published in 1934.

Clemence Dane's "The Babyns" is a chronicle that traces life through five generations, from the middle of the 18th century to the 20th century, and depicts the ancestral fate which follows the Babyns. One commentator says that it is "a vivid, moving story of the stuff of our common humanity."

W. R. Burnett's "Dark Hazard" is the story of an easy going gambler and a man of pride who tried to follow the same path to different goals. He was a spender, she was a saver. Frank Swinnerton, himself a noted author, says, "Burnett is no flatterer. He is out to secure an effect of grim truth. He secures it."

JUDGE GILLESPIE TO RETIRE FROM BENCH JAN. 1

Judge Glenn C. Gillespie, of Pontiac, will retire from the bench January 1, and will return to private practice. A banquet is being held Thursday evening in honor of Judge Gillespie by members of the Oakland County Bar Association.

The judge was recently elected secretary pro-tem of the State Bar of Michigan by the Board of Commissioners at their organization meeting in Lansing. He will serve in that capacity until a full-time successor has been chosen.

Robert P. Hudson, of Sault Ste. Marie, was elected president at the meeting. He will be assisted by Roscoe O. Bonsteel, of Ann Arbor, first vice president; George E. Brand, of Detroit, second vice president; and Walter S. Foster, of Lansing, treasurer. These men will be in office until the lawyers of the State are enrolled and elections are held as prescribed by the Supreme Court.

Lansing has been selected as the organization's headquarters. Detroit and Ann Arbor were also considered. The next meeting of the board will be held in Detroit about January 10. The following standing committees will be named at that time: Legislation and law reform; legal education and admission to the bar; unauthorized practice of law; professional ethics; local bar association activities; criminal procedure and civil procedure.

55 Michigan Hunters Lose Licenses

As a result of a violation of the Conservation laws, 55 residents of Michigan have no legal right to hunt and trap small game.

Since they are ineligible to obtain licenses, they cannot have gun permits to carry firearms into the woods and fields either to shoot predators or for target practice.

Most of the 55 residents are forbidden to hunt and trap small game until October 1, 1936—remainder of the current license year. The Department of Conservation, five of that number cannot obtain small-game hunting or trapping licenses during all of 1936 and until October 1, 1937, when another license year begins. Under an act passed by the 1935 legislature, justices of the peace, in their discretion, may disqualify a respondent from obtaining a small-game hunting or trapping license during remainder of the current license year and for the whole of the succeeding license year.
