Reinforcements from Michigan

Flood waters rage . . . dams break . . . water stands ten feet deep in the business section of a great city.

Local telephone circuits are flooded and temporarily damaged. The Bell System mobilizes. From neighboring companies—including Michigan—come squads of trained and tested telephone men. The Bell expeditionary forces land—and in a short time they are able to echo that famed message of the Marines: "The situation is well in hand."

Only one thing made this possible. That is the fact that Bell System practices and equipment are standard the country over. Consequently, when the Bell System mobilizes in an emergency, it is not necessary for reinforcements from other companies to ask: "What kind of equipment is it?" They merely say: "Where is it?" and go quickly and efficiently to work on familiar ground. This is true in Pittsburgh today where the Michigan Bell Telephone Company is contributing part of the emergency force. It was true in Michigan—in 1922 and 1929—when reinforcements from other Bell System companies came here to aid in the work of restoring communications temporarily destroyed by the sleet storms of those years. Without a nation-wide force of systematically trained men, without standard equipment in every associated company, some of the things which Bell men have accomplished swiftly as part of their routine duties would have caused confusion and endless delay.

Whenever you lift a Bell Telephone receiver, tremendous resources in men, organization and equipment are at your command. And there are times when it is impossible to measure the value of telephone service except in terms of life and death.

Judy O'Grady AND THE Colonel's Lady

HAVE A NEW COOK*
IN THE KITCHEN!

At the Autumn Salon of 1927 of l'Institut de France, the art of cooking was officially recognized along with painting, literature and sculpture as one of the Fine Arts

Over at the O'Grady's place, there is a lot of celebrating. They have hired a new cook . . . one with a reputation for some of the finest meals in town. And how do the O'Grady's afford it, you ask? Come close, and we'll tell you a secret: The new cook isn't human, strictly speaking. She is an electric stove. Judy O'Grady likes to do the mixing and so forth, herself, but the stove does all the rest. And Judy says it's no blarney that she owes half the success of her cooking to the new stove. She says it's the greatest help she's ever had. The cost? Well now, how could the O'Grady's keep an electric stove if it were expensive? Judy says it was a pleasant surprise to discover how economical it is to use.

Here's another secret: The Colonel's Lady in the house up on the hill has a reputation for fine dinners. She hasn't cooked a meal here—sell for years and years—but she knows good cooking and enjoys it. She can afford to buy the very best there is. Money is no object . . . but if you'll look in her kitchen, you'll find the very same electric stove that Judy O'Grady has in hers!

* NAME FURNISHED ON REQUEST

After all, why shouldn't we tell you now? The new cook is a modern electric stove—but almost any modern electric stove would do just as well. There used to be a time when only wealthy people could afford an electric stove. It was a luxury that marked the owner as one who demanded the best—and paid for it. Today, all that is changed. Even a family of moderate means can afford an electric stove. And electric cooking with all its proven superiorities—the advantages of cleanliness, healthfulness, convenience, delicious flavor—costs little more than fuel cooking. Electric cooking is unquestionably "the finest cooking that money can buy."

A BARGAIN DISH!

Here's one "bargain recipe" for the days when you want to use up odds and ends in the larder. True to tradition, it calls for leftovers—scraps of meats and vegetables or the remnant of a roast—putting together what you have on hand.

ECONOMY SALAD

1 cup cooked corn 1/2 cup peas
1 cup sliced Bermuda or green onion
1/2 cup sliced carrot 1/2 cup sliced olive
1/2 cup lettuce sliced small
Mix all ingredients together. Marinate in French dressing. Chill and serve in lettuce cups or on bread.
