Are Your Guides To Value

Experts can roughly estimate the value of a product by looking at it. More accurately, by handling and examining it. Its appearance, its texture, the "feel" and the balance of it, all mean something to their trained eyes and fingers.

But no one person can be an expert on steel, brass, wood, leather, foodstuffs, fabrics, and all of the material that makes up a list of personal purchases. And even experts are fooled, sometimes, by concealed flaws and imperfections.

There is a surer index of value than the senses of sight and touch... knowledge of the maker's name and for what it stands. Here is the most certain method, except that of actual use, for judging the value of any manufactured goods. Here is the only guarantee against careless workmanship, or use of shoddy materials.

This is one important reason why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. The advertised product is worthy of your confidence.

WHAT THE NEW SIGHT-SAVER LAMP MEANS TO School children

At school age, twenty children out of every hundred have defective vision. At college age, the number has increased to forty out of every hundred. This incredible and tragic story of crippled eyes can be blamed in large part on the needless abuse of the eyes—and partly to improper lighting in the home. Straining the eyes to read newspaper or a printed page under poor and inadequate light, writing or studying under a glaring lamp which casts harsh shadows... these are the things which will slowly but surely result in damaged eyesight. During school years, when a child is using his eyes extensively, it is doubly important that you have good lighting in the home. This is what the new Sight-Saver lamp provides. A diffusing bowl under the shade throws part of the light upward to the ceiling. This is reflected back and spread over a large area, providing roomside light that is soft and restful, without glare. Have your children's eyes examined every year—and get one of the Sight-Saver lamps for your home.

See the New Sight-Saver Lamp on display at department stores, furniture stores, hardware and electrical dealers, and
