Tremendous Trifles

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

A HISTORIC CIGAR WRAPPER

"HALT!"

E. W. Mitchell of Muncie, Ind., a private in Company F of the Twenty-seventh Indiana Volunteer Infantry in the Army of the Potomac, heard that command with a feeling of relief. He was tired after the long march that Gen. George B. McClellan had ordered on that hot September day in 1862.

Then his eyes sparkled! A prize! Three cigars wrapped in a small piece of paper lay at his feet. He picked up the paper and started to throw it away. Then he swore softly. In a few minutes later the paper was in McClellan's hands.

It was Special Order No. 101, signed by Gen. Robert B. Lee. It directed how he had divided two wings of his army, and told of the routes over which they were moving. It was addressed to Gen. D. H. Hill, but some staff officer or courier had used it for cigar wrapper, and lost it. Within two hours McClellan had the division on the march to drive a wedge between Lee's divided force.

Just in the nick of time the amazed Confederate commander learned the reason for the Union leader's swift action, so he changed his plans. The result was that the gray army was forced to the defensive, and there ensued the "bloodiest battle of the whole war," that of Antietam. Lee lost 10,000 men and McClellan 12,460, a total casualty of 22,460, all because of a piece of paper wrapped around three cigars!

WHO ARE YOU?

The Romance of Your Name

By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Bell!

The origin of the name Bell dates back to the days of Druidism in ancient Briton, long before the Christian era in that country. The Druids were priests of the tribe of Gyrri, which were about forty in number spread over the greater part of England and Scotland. The Cymri were worshippers of oak trees, hills, rivers, sun and mistletoe.

Upon the coming of the Romans into Great Britain they found that the Druids had great influence over the people so they set about to destroy the objects of worship. The Druids then called a meeting and decided to form a clan for their mutual protection and called themselves Bell in honor of one of their gods.

In later times the clan became divided. The Scottish people of this name retained their organization as a clan but the English branch became more interested in literary and scientific pursuits. They spelled their name Beal or Beale, but the relationship between the families was still acknowledged. This is seen by the same devices used on the coats of arms of both houses.

When King James of England in 1605 offered lands in northern Ireland to peoples of England and Scotland, many immigrants from the great tidal waves of immigration to America and by 1725 more than 500 settlers by the name of Bell had come to America, either direct from England and Scotland or by the way of Ireland.

In Virginia there were many early arrivals of this name but the Bell families located in Maryland. Most of the Maryland families spelled the name Beale or Beall.

There were immigrants also by this name who settled in Massachusetts. John Beale settled in Hingham, Mass., coming from Norfolk, England in 1635. In Pennsylvania, William Beale from Wiltshire, England, was a settler in Chester county.

Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts furnished a substantial army of Bells and Bealls in the war for America's independence, and bearers of this name have answered the call to service in every crisis in the nation's history.

ANNOUNCING THE NEW SIGHT-SAVER

end-table lamp

... just 23 inches high!

IT HAS THE IMPORTANT FEATURES OF THE BIG SIGHT-SAVER LAMPS

DIFFUSING BOWL THROWS PART OF LIGHT TO CEILING

A diffusing bowl, under the shade of the lamp, throws part of the light upward. The light is also reflected back and spread over a large area. The light is pleasant and diffused, so that it is soft and restful, without glare.

ROOMWIDE LIGHT—THE SAME PRINCIPLE AS A LARGER LAMP

The scientifically designed shade is open at the top and wide at the bottom, throwing a great deal of light upward. The light is also reflected back and spread over a large area. The light is pleasant and diffused, so that it is soft and restful, without glare.

Here is the lamp you have waited for—a small Sight-Saver lamp with the important features of the big lamps. The new end-table lamp is designed to fill the need for a smaller lamp without sacrificing any of the qualities of good lighting, for which the large Sight-Saver lamps are noted. Just 23 inches high, it furnishes light for reading, sewing, studying, etc... light that is wholly adequate for these tasks... light far superior to the dim and uncertain illumination usually found in an end-table lamp. Small as it is, this new Sight-Saver lamp asks no favors or concessions: It provides plenty of light for easy, comfortable seeing, and ranks with other I. E. S. lamps in the quality of its design and workmanship. It is available in a wide selection of new and attractive models, all reasonably priced. Look for the I. E. S. tag—it is your assurance of quality lighting and a certified product.
