Hardening Metal

Modern metallurgists and chemists know how to harden zinc, copper and other soft metals.

The popular idea that ancient peoples like the Egyptians had a method of hardening such metals that is now lost is incorrect.

Examples of ancient cooper tools have been analyzed and found to be alloys of copper with other metals, made just as we make such alloys.

Similarly, steel may be alloyed with other metals to make it harder.

Steel tools are much better than any tools that could be made from hardened copper, zinc or other metals.

Do You Know---

Do you know that by merely presenting your most recent electric bill at any office of The Detroit Edison Company, you can exchange your BURNED OUT lamp bulbs for new ones in correct sizes to meet your needs—a small lamp for a large lamp, or vice versa?

There is a correct size lamp for every purpose, and your Detroit Edison office will gladly advise you on proper lamp sizes for adequate lighting. There is no charge for lamp renewal service. The only requirement is that you present your most recent electric bill for identification. This prevents wasteful renewals, protects our customers against fraudulent renewals by people who are not customers of the Company, and provides accurate records of lamps passed out.

For greater comfort and convenience, keep your sockets filled with Mazda lamps of the correct size. The next time you bring in burned out lamps for exchange, tell the Detroit Edison clerk where the bulbs are to be used and he will gladly give you the right sizes for adequate lighting.

Note: Lamps are renewed without extra charge only for residential and commercial customers paying lighting rates and in the following sizes: 25W, 40W, 60W, 100W, 150W, 200W, 300W, 500W, and 511w lamp 100-200-500W.
