THROUGH BROAD AND BEAUTIFUL ENTRYWAYS VISITORS WILL PASS TO THE NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Forty thousand persons an hour—visitors from every state and every nation—must be accommodated in comfort at one of the entrances to the New York World's Fair of 1939. According to arrangements the Fair Corporation is completing to handle a maximum daily attendance of 800,000. The artist's drawing as reproduced above calls for a magnificent double-decked entryway with underpasses, over-passes, pedestrian walks, bus terminals, comfort stations and bridge connections assuring comfort while providing an area of architectural splendor.

Shown is a ramp leading from the exposition grounds toward the I.R.T.-B.M.T. subway terminal, at a point where it is necessary to cross over the Long Island railroad tracks and to avoid undue congestion of pedestrian traffic. Shown in the left foreground is a domed restaurant within a fountain basin and a concourse bordered by green plantings and, nearby, an open-air cafe and an information kiosk. Along the flanking walls the artist has delineated the Fair's world concept which looks to the building of a peaceful, happier world of tomorrow.

Tremendous Trifles

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

PIGS IS PIGS

"Pigs is pigs" and they're also trouble-makers. As witness: In 1841, Monsieur De Saligny was French ambassador to the Republic of Texas. One day, a pig belonging to an Austin hotel keeper named Bullock, strayed into M. De Saligny's garden. One of the ambassador's servants abused the pig, and Bullock whipped the servant. De Saligny insulted Bullock and Bullock insulted De Saligny with the result that the ambassador demanded his passport and left the country. Diplomatic relations between France and Texas became strained and it required an apology from President Lamar of the Lone Star Republic to restore peace. More serious was the pig incident that troubled the peace between England and the United States a few years later. On one of the tiny San Juan Islands in Puget Sound lived an American and an Englishman. One day the Briton shot one of the American's pigs and a furious quarrel resulted. But they finally agreed to settle it in court. But which court—British or American? Despite the treaty of 1846, boundary lines were none too clear, especially on this little island. So the dispute grew worse over the matter of jurisdiction. Civil officers were drawn into it, then the military. Troops were mobilized and it looked like war. Eventually it was settled by arbitration—with no less a person than the German emperor acting as arbitrator in a dispute that started over a pig!

ADVERTISEMENTS Are Your Guides To Value

Experts can roughly estimate the value of a product by looking at it. More accurately, by handling and examining it. Its appearance, its texture, the "feel" and the balance of it all mean something to their trained eyes and fingers.

But no one person can be an expert on steel, brass, wood, leather, foodstuffs, fabrics, and all of the material that makes up a list of personal purchases. And even experts are fooled, sometimes, by concealed flaws and imperfections.

There is a surer index of value than the senses of sight and touch. . . . Knowledge of the maker's name and for what it stands. Here is the most certain method, except that of actual use, for judging the value of any manufactured goods. Here is the only guarantee against careless workmanship, or use of shoddy materials.

It is so important reason why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. The advertised product is worthy of your confidence.

Merchandise must be good or it couldn't be consistently advertised.
