LATE PAYROLL TAXES TO PAY PENALTY

Michigan employers who failed to pay their contribution on 1936 payrolls to the state unemployment compensation fund before the deadline, March 20, have only a few days left in which to obtain state credit on their one per cent federal payroll tax. Frank A. Picard, commission chairman, warns.

"Under the Federal Social Security Act, all Michigan employers, like those all over the nation, must pay a federal payroll tax by April 1," Mr. Picard explained. "Those employers, subject to the federal payroll tax, can pay their state contribution of nine-tenths of one per cent to the state fund prior to April 1 and obtain full credit for the payment on their federal payroll tax payment."

"This means that actually they only have to pay the federal government one-tenth of one per cent in taxes plus their state contribution credit. But if they fail to pay the state contribution by April 1, they must pay the federal government the entire one per cent of their total 1936 payrolls. And in addition, they still must pay the state unemployment compensation fund a contribution of nine-tenths of one per cent on these same payrolls. Thus they actually will have to pay contributions totalling 1.9 per cent."

At the same time, Mr. Picard announced that the commission has decided to give employers who erroneously paid the state commission a contribution on payrolls which totaled less than $5,000 for 1936, an opportunity to file an amended return.

"If an employer is not subject to the federal tax on employers of eight or more," Mr. Picard said, "we want him to take advantage of the $5,000 deduction which he may claim under the law. Such an employer may claim the deduction by filing an amended return any time within three months of the day when his first return was mailed, and if he has less than eight employees last year, we want him to do this even if his total payroll was more than $5,000."

An employer of eight or more persons, Mr. Picard pointed out, should not claim this deduction, but file an amended return since he gains nothing by doing so. Urging all employers who have not yet filed their report forms with the commission and paid their 1936 payroll contributions, to do so, Mr. Picard pointed out that prompt payment will cut down the interest penalties faced by every delinquent employer.

A penalty of three-quarters of one per cent per month or fraction of a month will be charged all delinquent employers under the state law.
