WHO ARE YOU? The Romance of Your Name By RUBY HASKINS ELLIS

A Bayne?

THE Baynes are of English descent, and the old family seat in America was Westmoreland county, Virginia.

In 1759 Richard Bayne was born, who later married Susan, the daughter of Lawrence Pope. This alliance linked the Baynes with the Humphrey Pope family, which was established in Westmoreland county, Virginia, as early as 1620, and whose descendants have taken such prominent parts in the early political affairs of Kentucky, Illinois and Arkansas.

Descendants of the family have intermarried with the Redfords, Rusts, Ashbys, Cranes (of Baltimore) and other leading families. The connection with the Papes and the fact that the Baynes are all members of the Church of England supports the theory that they were all worshippers of old Pope's Creek church, one of the two original churches of Washington parish, Westmoreland county, Virginia.

Baynes, of Maryland, are connected by marriage with the Powells family.

The coat of arms shown here is accredited to Matthew Bayne, of Westmoreland county, Virginia, 1700.

RENDERS "FIRST AID" TO RAILROAD FLYER

Telephone Lineman Is Johnny-on-the-Spot With His Test Set as Cylinder Head Blows

The Wolverine is one of the Michigan Central Railroad's "crack" passenger trains over its main line between Chicago and New York.

Ray Baker is a telephone repairman at Battle Creek, Mich. On December 17, 1936, his duties took him to a long stretch of country road west of the city to test a telephone cable. He was up a pole when The Wolverine, travelling over the tracks which parallel the road, came to a clattering stop nearby.

Repairman Baker climbed down from the pole to find out what had stopped the train, as the engineer climbed out of his cab. The engineer found that his locomotive was entirely disabled, due to a broken cylinder head. The nearest telephone was some distance away, so back up the pole went Baker to connect his test set to a pair of wires which he extended down from a cable terminal. Almost in the twinkling of an eye, the engineer was in communication with the railroad's yard master in Battle Creek and another engine was on its way to take The Wolverine through to Kalamazoo.

The Wolverine departed and Repairman Baker went back to his work—and said nothing about the incident. The fact that he had played Good Samaritan to a railroad flyer was just part of a day's work to him, but not to the railroad. The next day the yard master communicated with the Battle Creek telephone office and expressed the railroad's thanks for the timely service which had kept the delay on the Michigan Central main line to a minimum.

Repairman Baker has been connected with the telephone office at Battle Creek since 1924. He took the first aid training course offered to all Bell System employees, but nothing in the course of instruction, he said, had anything to do with first aid to railroads.

Grazing Kangaroos Eat Grass Down to Roots

Wallabies and wallaroos resemble kangaroos so closely that strangers are inclined to group all three in one family. To one unlearned in natural history, observes Mason Warner in the Chicago Tribune, the chief points of difference are that the kangaroos are found only on the "downs" or prairies, and the wallabies and wallaroos live among rocks and in the mountains.

The latter two are lighter in color and come two or three sizes smaller than the kangaroos. The shape, structure and characteristic mode of locomotion are almost identical.

When a score or more of kangaroos get together they are called a "mob." A mob of 'roos will go over grazing land and eat the grass down into the roots, taking deeper nibbles than either sheep or rabbits.

Kangaroos are such a pest in some sheep-growing districts that the landholders organize 'roo hunts. These affairs take on somewhat of the social spirit that prevails at neighborhood co-operative occasions among farmers in America.

A kangaroo is quite easily killed, a knock on the head with a heavy stick being sufficient to cause death. The skins have value for making fine leather. Thirty to forty kangaroos is the average kill at a hunt.

Come On, Summer

need have no fears of a hot summer nor will those who go to Cleveland to see her in the ice spectacle, "Winterland" at the Great Lakes Exposition. Amid winter-in-summer surroundings, produced by modern snow and ice manufacturing devices, champion skaters will appear in a $200,000 production, directed by Hans Van Grove, technical supervisor of several New York successes, during the 101 days of the Exposition from May 29 to Sept. 6.

PERSONS OVER 65 MAY NOW RECEIVE PENSION BENEFITS

Employees over 65 in Oakland County, who work in factories, shops, mines, mills, stores, office and other places of business not excluded under the Old-Age Benefits and Unemployment Compensation programs of the Social Security Board may now get Social Security Account Numbers according to an announcement made today by Mr. H. C. Schutte and Mr. John P. Ballenger, Field Representatives of the Board in Hamtramck and Detroit, Michigan, respectively.

Explaining the reasons for this new registration, Mr. Ballenger stated that the step was taken primarily as an aid to States in administering unemployment compensation laws. Application for an account number by an employee 65 years of age or over is voluntary in so far as the Social Security Act is concerned. However, the same type of account number card will be issued to those 65 years of age and over who have been issued to the younger workers.

State unemployment compensation laws," said Mr. Schutte, "cover workers of all ages. Since State agencies will use Social Security Account Numbers, such account numbers are needed for workers 65 years of age and over as well as for the younger employees. In order to promote efficiency and uniformity, therefore, we are allowing for enumeration by all workers on a voluntary basis."

Procedure to be followed by aged workers is the same as that for others. They should get their application blanks at the local post office or at the office of the Social Security Board, and after filling them out completely, transmit them to the local post office which will issue the number. No postage is needed in mailing applications to post offices.

These gentlemen emphasized that information on applications for account numbers, by agreements between the official State unemployment compensation administrations and the Social Security Board will be held as absolutely confidential and will be used by the State agencies as well as by the Social Security Board solely in administering Social Security laws.

Use of account numbers by States in administering unemployment compensation laws, and their use by the Federal Government will be advantageous to employers as well as workers in that only one number need be recorded for both the Federal Old-Age Benefits plan and the State unemployment compensation program.

Voluntary registration for the purposes outlined does not entitle an aged worker to the regular benefits of the Federal program. Requirements for such benefits are established by the Act and are not changed by the new ruling.

Those requirements are: A worker must have earned not less than $200 in covered employment since December 31, 1936. He must have worked at least one day at such employment in five different calendar years after that date, and before age 65, before regular monthly benefit payments can be made to him.
