SCARECROW GUN CUTS FRUIT LOSS IN ORCHARDS

Nervy starlings and fat and saucy robins which have counted on Michigan's annual cherry and berry harvest for soft easy pickings have found their match in Man's ingenuity.
Adoption of mechanical scarecrow for protection during the ripening and harvest period is proving its worth against the feathered thieves. The device is an automatic carbide gas gun mounted on a tall pole. It does not harm the birds but proves effective in reducing the bird population in an orchard to but one tenth of the usual number of fruit eaters.

H. A. Cardinell, extension horticulturist at Michigan State College, discovered this tireless "scarecrow." He adopted the carbide gas gun as a possibility after finding that western sheepmen had been using these devices to scare away coyotes at night.

Now the machines have been tested for daylight bird scaring and have proven efficient. Tests have been run in protected and unprotected orchards of Carl Schwelkert, Allegan county, and the L. C. Merrill orchard, St. Clair county. Results here summarized in a new bulletin "Protecting Cherries from Birds." Circular Bulletin No. 160, available by writing to the Bulletin Room, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Cardinell still laughs when he remembers July 16, 1936. Monotonous hours of patrolling orchards to count birds was broken that day by the appearance of a mass of starlings which swooped down upon some inviting red cherries. The orchard block was being protected by a carbide gun. Just as the starlings settled down to a feast, the exploder operated. Cherry leaves and twigs with feathers as the starlings dashed for safety and quiet.

A New Light Tractor Disk Harrow

McCormick-Deering No. 10-A

HERE is a new tractor disk harrow—the McCormick-Deering No. 10-A—that is designed especially to work behind small tractors. It is of the same general design as the popular McCormick-Deering No. 9 types, but is lighter and sells at a lower price.

The No. 10-A has McCormick-Deering heavy-gauge, crimped-center, shock-absorbing disks; crossed draft connections; lateral rear gang adjustments; and is quick angling, accurate trailing, and flexible. It is built in 5, 6, 7, and 8-ft. sizes, with 16-in. or 18-in. disks. A manual angling device is regularly supplied but an automatic, tractor-operated gang-angling device can be obtained.

Come in and let us show you this new McCormick-Deering Harrow. We carry a complete line of other McCormick-Deering Harrows for every need.
