

America's Vacationers Turn Toward Cleveland Exposition

THE BRIDGE OF THE PRESIDENTS, honoring the sixteen American Chief Executives born in or elected from the Great Lakes states, forms the avenue of approach for the more than 5,000,000 visitors expected at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland during its 101 days from May 29 to September 6. Beyond the bridge lies the Exposition, covering 150 acres, and stretching for more than a mile and a half along the breeze-cooled shores of Lake Erie, depicting the newest in architecture, industrial exhibits, and entertainment.

"Let Freedom Ring" Current Federal Play

Following the policy of the National Federal Theatre of producing good American drama, the Detroit Federal Theatre group has chosen "Let Freedom Ring," as its next attraction at the People's Theatre, 8212 Twelfth street at Seward, avenue. The play will open Friday evening, May 27, and run through May 30th, under the direction of Mr. Austin Coghlan.

Written by Albert Behn, this powerful and moving play dealing with the southern mountain people, was first produced at the Broadway Theatre, New York, by the Actors Repertory group. After seeing it, Clifford Odets wrote: "Let Freedom Ring" is by far the most important play on Broadway at the present time. It is highly literate, deeply entertaining, hot with life, juicy with American characters." Woven out of pure folk material, the story is concerned with the struggle of fiercely proud native American mountaineers, arbitrarily transplanted to a mill town, to adjust themselves to alien social and economic conditions. Louise Gerard Huntington, loaned from the New York Federal Theatre, will make her first appearance with the Detroit group, as Ora McClure, the feminine lead. Theodor Mumford, another New York acquisition, will make her initial Detroit bow as Sally. Basil McClure will be played by Chester Adams; Jay Michaels as Kirk McClure, who dies for his convictions; Edward Mason as John McClure, and J. Richard Gamble will take the part of Grandpa Kirkland. Other important roles have been assigned to Virginia, Berrie, Elynor Hill, Alma Brock, Lillian Shipley, Samuel Shaggy, Albert Orick, and George Marinucci.

Changes in Color

The tendency of some animals to change color with the seasons, like the foliage of trees, is explained by Dr. T. R. Heulis of the University of Oregon in the American Journal of Mammalogy. Dr. Heulis found that the fur of certain Western mice became progressively darker with the advance of cold weather. He also ascertained that the pigment responsible for fur color is contained in cells at the tips of the hairs, where it is most affected by the light. Thus it is the change in the nature and quantity of light with the advancing season that causes the change. "A somewhat correlative change of color in the mouse," says Doctor Heulis, "accompanies the changing hues of vegetation as the season advances. It is just another instance of the intimate adjustment between the individual and the environment."

National Auxiliary Head Directs Poppy Drive

Lorena Hahn, National President of the American Legion Auxiliary, in a message addressed to the Farmington Auxiliary and other auxiliaries throughout the land dealing with the annual Poppy Day, to be held Saturday, May 29, says as follows:

"Twenty years have passed since we called them to the colors. They responded in the full vigor of their young manhood. Remember? How proud we were of them—and how thankful that our country had such men to stand between it and the enemy. Remember the ceremonies which we saw them go—the bands, the flags, the speeches of encouragement and praise?

When they came back we were even more proud of them. Again we had bands and flags and orations in their honor. They had met and defeated the most powerful military machine in the world. Our boys—John, Frank, Henry—the Prussian Guard had been unable to stand against them. They had won victory and peace; security for our country. We strewed flowers in the path of their homecoming feet.

But there were some who did not come home. There were blank files in the marching ranks. Familiar faces were missing. The victory had been bought at a price. The missing ones, had paid the price. Yes, there had been places where every yard of advance cost a man's life, a life given gallantly by one of our boys.

This spring again the poppies will bloom in tribute to the war dead. Twenty years—it is a long time. Children who were chubby infants when their soldier fathers kissed them goodbye, are now grown men and women. But memory is only strengthened and honor only brightened by each passing year that brings clearer conception of the heroism, the sacrifice of the men who died for America."

Circus time is yours to enjoy at the big nine day circus of Our Lady of Sorrows Church, starting May 29. (adv)

DOG'S CALL FOR HELP OVER TELEPHONE SAVES HIS PAL

It was Sunday. All was quiet and serene in a certain Detroit, Mich., poultry and pet store. Two dogs had been left to have the run of the place. They were pals and, having plenty to eat, they were content. Suddenly, however, one of them, in romping around, became entangled in the telephone cord and could not work himself loose. The telephone instrument was dragged to the floor, and slowly but surely the dog was being strangled to death. In this emergency the other dog knew what to do and did it. He summoned help for his stricken pal over the very instrument which threatened his life.

An alert telephone operator in the Randolph place office answered the pertinent signal on the switchboard. There was no response, but she did hear a slight whimpering sound, so she summoned Mrs. Violet Porter, who was in charge. Mrs. Porter notified the police, who reported back that there was no cause for alarm, only a dog barking in the store. However, Mrs. Porter was not entirely satisfied with this report. She located the owner of the store and gave him the information which resulted in saving the dog's life.
