Man Hunt

(Exchange)

Although June, the month of weddings, is just past, there will be numerous maidens, young and not so young, husband hunting on summer. Since there are 1,500,000 more men than women in the country it ought to be easy. Harvey A. Kallish, who recently wrote "Why Not Get Married?" says "Most women are sure to marry naturally, and it is only the few who know how to capture a husband, so it follows that most of them know remarkably little about the job."

He continues, "The day was when a girl just sat on her front porch every evening and waited for the young men to flock around. They flocked, but the depression has changed that. Today you have to go out and hunt your man."

Mr. Kallish advises further that each where you would carry on your hunt in the company of six or seven companions. No man can stand the sight of a vast herd of women coming at him. If you're waging your campaign at home, warn mother and father that you're hold down the trenches yourself. Allow no family encouragement or anxiety to show.

The author has advice for personal appearance, dress, and speaking voice; and urges a hobby, a cause or something of interest to improve conversation. He suggests you stalk your man where men are found . . . in clubs where men meet, political meetings, and, not in tea rooms, or bridge-club. Also, as men are plying these days, you must take the lead, knowing how to talk or act in their presence.

It follows that your summer campaign, carefully laid, may net you one good husband.

About the Weather

(Exchange)

Recent hot spells in various sections of the country naturally have revived comparisons of heat with conditions of former years. In the United States the hottest spot on an average is a place in Death Valley, California, named oddly enough, Greenland Ranch, where on July 10, 1910, the temperature rose to 134 degrees.

The record for cold in this country is held by Miles City, Mont., where the mercury sank to 65 below zero in 1888.

Higher and lower temperatures have been recorded in Africa and Siberia, respectively, although Death Valley's high mark is within two degrees of the world's record, 136 degrees at Azizia, Tripoli, in 1924.

Some interesting cases of excessive rainfall and snowfall have been noted by the United States Weather Bureau. The hardest rain ever recorded was at Ophir, Calif., where in California, where an inch of rain, equivalent to 115 tons of water per acre, fell in one minute on April 5, 1925. At Porto Bello, Panama, 2.47 inches of rain fell in three minutes on May 1, 1908. The heaviest snowfall ever to occur at a place equipped for accurate observation was 23 inches in 24 hours at Washington, D. C., in January, 1922.

The most equable and pleasant climate in the United States, and perhaps in the world, is enjoyed by Key West, Fla., where the temperature has never gone above 100, nor below 41 above zero. Its average for January is 70 and for July 84. Even in the heat of the summer this island city is relatively cool, being fanned by breezes from the Gulf of Mexico, which seldom fall when they are needed.

Thunder in the East

(Exchange)

The touchiness of some foreign offices nowadays in matters concerning sovereignty is amazingly illustrated by the Moscow-Tokyo tension over a couple of uninhabited sandbars in the Amur River. The quarrel has taken a serious turn as the result of a fray between Russian and Japanese gunboats. But the collision does not alter the basic insignificance of the dispute. Neither island can be traced on ordinary maps. Only the broad Amur is shown, the boundary between Soviet Russia and Manchukuo, which runs around the Manchurian salient or the bulge into Siberia which the Chinese Eastern Railroad cuts on its way to Vladivostok. Even in the old days the boundary was always subject to dispute. Toward the west, where there is no such clear boundary as a river, the boundary of Manchurian territory is quite indeterminate, always a subject upon

The committee appointed by Mayor Warner to get an estimate of what it would cost the City of Farmington to build a new band stand, also the most desirable location for the stand, reported to the Commission at its last regular meeting that the stand would cost about $10,000.00. Also, the best location for the stand would be on the Farmington High School recreation field. Motion made by Gildemeister, supported by Hutton, that the committee present the plans to the Farmington School Board for their approval. Carried, all yeas.

Motion made by Nacker, supported by Oldenburg, to adjourn. Carried.

Howard Warner, Mayor.

Harry Moore, Clerk.

Fennel Facs

In ancient days fennel seed was held in such respect and reverence that a saying grew up about it—"He who sees fennel and gathers it is not a man, but a devil." The Saxons included it among the nine sacred herbs which had the power to dispel the nine causes of disease. Little culinary use is made of fennel in America, although it has a delightful flavor greatly resembling the more popular anise. It grows in many parts of the world.

New York Fair Hall To Feature Radio and Television

NEW YORK (Special).—Radio, television, movies, telephone, telegraph, photography, news and magazine print—all those factors so closely related to communications in American life—will have their own pavilion and ten-acre exhibit zone at the New York World Fair, 1939, according to an announcement by Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

The Hall of Communications will be built this year on the 1216-acre exposition site within a few minutes ride from mid-town Manhattan. Its location is adjacent to that of the unique Theme Centre structures, which with their "hourand wonders" will dominate the Fair grounds.

Although the Hall will be grouped ten acres of buildings to be erected by private exhibitors in communications industry, said Mr. Whalen.

Before the building will be two ultramarine pylons, 160 feet high and faced with continuous glass lighting fixtures. Features of the structure are a great hall, in which will be placed the focal exhibit summing up the role of communications in the World of Tomorrow, and a glass-walled restaurant opening out to a dining terrace and garden. The total length of the Hall of Communications will be over 400 feet. Its cost is estimated at $400,000. Numerous other Fair structures are under way at stages of design. Construction of the exposition, however, will not reach its peak until early next year.

Bedouin Hospitable Besides being one of the picturesque nomads of the desert, the Bedouin is "most hospitable," says a writer. A Bedouin host thinks it humiliating to ask his guest his name, his destination, or the time of his departure. It is a recognized law of the desert that if a stranger appears at your tent and your sheep are grazing far away, you are entitled, in order to follow the ancient law of hospitality, to stand a neighbor's sheep and to stay it in honor of your guest. This is a sort of borrowing and not literally stealing as the law is observed by all neighbors. Hospitality is not limited to food and drink, but includes affording the guest protection should his life be threatened. If a guest's belongings are stolen, the host will make every effort to have them restored.
