

WEST FARMINGTON

The family of Mrs. Edith Graham gathered at her home Sunday August 1, in honor of her birthday. Arriving home from church, Mrs. Graham found tables and chairs arranged on the lawn in readiness for a picnic dinner. Over 40 persons were present including Mrs. Graham's children, grand-children and great-grandchildren. They plan to meet again next year on her birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Mary Heikler, Mrs. Elizabeth Heikler, Mrs. Edith Graham, Mrs. Anna Graham, Mrs. Nettie Bachelor and Mrs. Sarah Knapp attended a shower in honor of Mrs. Augusta Coffield at Farmington Friday.

Mark Bachelor is improving. He is now able to get about with the aid of crutches.

Starr and Mrs. Graham received word that a little daughter, Ruth Ann, was born to Mrs. George Graham at Walled Lake, Saturday, July 31.

STATE OF MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE DIVISION OF DISEASES NOTICE OF MEETING OF BOARD OF HEALTH (STATE OF MICHIGAN)

County of Ingham ss. To Whom It May Concern: I hereby give notice, that on the 25th day of July, 1937, a copy of an application was filed with me, by M. D. Van Wagoner, State Highway Commissioner, (according to Section 7, Chapter 12, Act No. 216, P. A. 1925, amended by Act No. 365, P. A. 1926 and Act No. 231, P. A. 1927) asking for the laying out and opening of a drainage ditch on U.S. 16 Drain, located in the township of Farmington, County of Oakland.

Now, therefore, according to the provisions of the laws and statutes in that behalf provided, a public meeting will be held at the intersection of Green and Grand streets, section 28, Farmington Twp., Oakland Co., on Monday, the 14th day of August, 1937, at one o'clock in the afternoon, to determine the necessity of said improvement.

All persons interested in the said improvement are requested to be present if they so desire. JOHN B. STRANGE, Commissioner of Agriculture by John Hudson, Deputy.

W. W. WOODS, Oakland County Drain Commissioner. August 2-August 12

WAY BACK WHEN by Jeanne. CARL SANDBURG NEVER WOULD SETTLE DOWN. HOW many times have you heard someone say, "I don't know what to do about that boy of mine; it looks like he never will settle down?" Carl Sandburg was like that. A boy who skipped from job to job and gave his simple Swedish immigrant parents many a worried hour! He was born in 1878 in Galesburg, Ill., of people who were uneducated and kindly, simple and poor. Forced by poverty to go to work when he was thirteen, he began the seemingly endless series of jobs that gave him such true understanding of the common people.

He drove a milk wagon in Galesburg and he blacked boots in a barber shop. If you could have looked into the future, you would find Carl Sandburg would be a great poet, they would have laughed you out of town! He became a scene shifter in a cheap theater, a train handler in a brick yard, and then a turner's apprentice in a pottery shop. Cheap manual labor, nothing skilled about most of it! He worked as a dishwasher in a midwestern hotel, a harvest hand in the Kansas wheat fields, and a carpenter's helper. He begged meals from house-to-house, in exchange for blackening stoves. He had a growing boy!

Carl Sandburg was learning the painter's trade when the Spanish-American war broke out, and he went to Longford college and he worked his way through as a bell ringer, gym janitor and college correspondent for the Galesburg Daily Mail. In college his literary ability developed and he became editor of the school publications. After graduation he supported himself as advertising manager of a department store and sales manager of a business machines firm.

He entered politics, became a reporter, and in 1917, Carl Sandburg joined the staff of the Chicago Daily News, where his work has been outstanding.

A rolling stone, a restless jack-of-all-trades has been Carl Sandburg, but from the time of his literary work he has written steadily stories for children, a biography of Lincoln, and hundreds of poems about the mass of people.

So, if that boy of yours is restless, if he skips from place to place, be patient. Carl Sandburg gained fame by knowing many people, many jobs, many problems.

WELSH TERRIERS Old Breed. Welsh terriers are among the oldest purebred terriers in existence. Claimed to have been bred by these living in and about the district of Wales of these terriers being raised as early as 1760, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times from an ancient pedigree and descriptions it seems most likely that the first specimens of the breed were the old black-and-tan English terrier and the majority of authorities credit this country as the origin of the Welsh.

Nagoya's Castle One of Japan's Great Treasures. Nagoya's castle is Japan's chief pride and a national treasure as well. A shrewd feudal baron in 1611 forced his enemies to build it for him at their expense; afterward they were too poor to equip an army against him. Royal apartments within its protection are decorated with rare woods, carving, and painted panels. One painting depicts a tiger, considered so life-like that his eyes were lost blank to keep him from seeing anyone to pounce upon, notes a writer in the Chicago Daily News.

The Middle Ages persist within the moats and walls of the castle, but the city outside is of, by, and for these times.

The work which has made Nagoya famous for years is the decoy pottery, after studying china-ware in China, settled at Seto, a dozen miles north, and began making cups and bowls from the local reddish-brown clay, pronounced the best in Japan. Seto-ware in Japanese has the same meaning as chinaware in English. The little chinaware in English. The little chinaware in English. The little chinaware in English.

Imperfect pieces of porcelain are pounded into powder and used as enamel on cloisonne; the popularity of which is supposed to have originated in Nagoya four centuries ago.

Highway Aid Based on Service

Improvement of highways on the basis of their service to traffic and their contributions to road revenue was advocated last week by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner before the annual convention here of the American Society of Civil Engineers. "That policy," said the commissioner, "if it is based on sound and unbiased judgment, can be firmly established as the cornerstone of the highway of the future and as the auto-owner's bill of rights."

Expressing gratitude for $48,500,000 appropriation enacted by the legislature for the state highway department "to partially replace the motor vehicle revenues transferred to local units," the commissioner said that nevertheless "there is a vital need for sound and permanent basis for the allotment of these revenues. A way must be found for determining the proper agencies and location for the expenditure of weight and gas tax revenues. If long-range planning and fair treatment for the car-owning taxpayers are to be anything but empty dreams."

New Fiscal Basis. The commissioner referred to what he termed "a revolution in the fiscal basis of Michigan highways." He pointed out that in 1930 motor vehicle revenues made up only about 35 per cent of all highway funds raised in the state, but that in 1935 the proportion had increased to 65 per cent.

Out of Proportion. "Although county and local roads carry only a little more than 27 per cent of the vehicle miles, produced on rural highways, they are the sites of the expenditure of more than 60 per cent of the motor vehicle revenues. At the same time, the primary system of rural traffic, receives less than 40 per cent of these revenues—Deductions made from the primary road share reduce the actual amount available for construction and maintenance on this system to less than 39 per cent of the total motor vehicle revenues."

Total traffic on Michigan highways was estimated by the commissioner at 10,500,000,000 (corrected) vehicle miles a year. He said that Michigan people own automobiles in the ratio of one car to every 3.5 persons. Rural residents in the Upper Peninsula own one car to every eight people while in the small urban communities of southern Michigan the ratio is as high as one to every 2.17 persons.

Fruit Pickers Warned Not to Enter Areas. Major Howard Starret, State Reemployment Director, this week warned prospective cherry and other fruit pickers not to go directly to the fruit picking areas in search of jobs.

"Growers in several areas have complained that thousands of men and women who do not meet the specifications set up by the employers have drifted into the orchard country and are seriously disrupting the hiring routine," Starret said.

"In Traverse City a trail-load of job seekers from Detroit were sadly disappointed in not receiving jobs after having spent time and money for transportation," Starret revealed. "Had these first registered at the NRS office in their community they would have been given detailed information regarding the location of the available jobs and the wages offered." According to reports the Michigan cherry crop will be one of the finest in years. Thousands of pickers are already working in many fruit growing areas, at higher wages than previous years. Persons who wish to be considered for jobs on Michigan farms are urged to register with the National Re-employment Service office serving the county in which they reside. In Michigan 44 district and branch offices and 81 transient or part-time offices offer complete employment service to residents of the State. Besides this over 600 farm contact points are voluntarily helping in the current farm program.
