

Your Checking Account IS A "BARGAIN"

The average amount which a bank can earn today from a $100 checking balance is about 21c a month.

All you could buy for 21c—without a checking account—would be a single $80 post office money-order.

Yet, as a checking depositor, you get safety, convenience, prestige, and the use of valuable facilities which only a bank can provide. Even if you were required to pay a small service charge for not maintaining a required balance, you must admit that you would still be getting a "bargain".

DELINQUENT TAX PAYMENTS HIT $15,000,000

Reviewing the results of the "pay your taxes" campaign just completed by county and state officials, Auditor General George T. Gundry estimated today that payment of delinquent taxes for the state during the last few days of August amounted to more than $15,000,000. As a result of payment either in full or on the moratorium payment plan approximately $60,000 parcels will be removed from the tax sale list, Mr. Gundry said.

Crediting the recent advertising campaign authorized by the administrative board with much of the success in collecting, the Auditor General stated that payments this year were nearly 50% greater than those of the corresponding period last year.

Due to the avalanche of descriptions paid to county treasurers they will be unable to make their returns to the state in time to prevent posting on the tax sale rolls, Gundry said. He pointed out, however, that even though the original estimate of 1,500,000 descriptions are advertised for sale these that have been paid will be withheld from sale by the county treasurers.

The Auditor General indicated that fully two thirds of the tax payers allowed themselves of the moratorium plan for the amortization of their delinquencies.

Wisconsin Dells May Be Fifty Million Years Old

The Dells of Wisconsin has survived at least fifty million years, according to a writer in the Chicago Tribune. In some of its canyons one can stand on pre-Cambrian granite and see the ripples cut into solid masses of rock by the Cambrian seas, which covered North America, Europe and Asia during the first period of the Paleozoic era, the earliest geologic age recording life on earth.

The rhythm of the Paleozoic era was one of alternating submergences and emergences of the land. But when the shallow seas subsided for the last time, the granite foundation of the Dells region was built high with sandstone.

After two more geologic ages had run their course, the Pleistocene age packed in cold storage more than half the world, including all of Wisconsin except the southwestern corner. But milder weather was at hand when the ice cap, and with the "great thaw" came there was the Wisconsin river cutting its southwesterly way toward the father of waters through rugged of water, wind and weather have wrought great changes in those cliffs, many of which have assumed weird and fantastic shapes. But the same dark, green reflects the rich reds, yellows, purples, browns and greens of the craggy bluffs and verdant upper banks.

Mrs. Mildred Werner, son Frank, and Mrs. Leslie Peterson of Redford were guests Thursday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Gilbert.

The Poodle Dog
The standard poodle is frequently known by the erroneous name, "French poodle," a non-existent variety. The so-called French poodle is a German breed. The word "poodle" is derived from the German "puddel," applied to the breed because it retrieves from the water. Strictly speaking, it is the "canis familiaris aquaticus." In France, the breed we know as the poodle is called "caniche," which derives from "chien canne" which translates into "duck dog." To go a bit further in debunking the "French" part of the poodle: it was in France that the hair was first clipped from the dog so that it could swim better, but it was the English who developed fancy clipping.
