

Lost Species Point Warning, Says Jordan

Frederick F. Jordan, director of National Wildlife Restoration Week, and Sonny Jordan on the grounds of the Jordan home in Connecticut. The General Wildlife Federation, sponsoring Wildlife Week, was founded in response to the demand for a nation-wide alliance of organizations concerned with the future of outdoor America. Mr. Jordan points out that many species, once abundant in this country, are either extinct or in danger of extinction. Here are (1) the Labrador duck, last one killed in 1838; (2) Eskimo curlew, a "bluebird" species, may be extinct; (3) great auk, extinct for a century; (4) Carolina parakeet, last one killed in Florida, 1904; (5) passenger pigeon, last one died in Cincinnati zoo in 1914; (6) heath hen, last one died at Martha's Vineyard, Massachusetts, in 1933; (7) whooping crane, a few stragglers left.

CASE WARNS AGAINST SENDING BILLS IN MAIL

Motorists who send currency through the mails to the Department of State, do so at their own risk, Leon D. Case, Secretary of State has cautioned.

The warning was sounded on the heels of the recent statement by Case that investigators from his department, and from the United States postal service, are attempting to solve the mystery of cash stolen somewhere between the points of mailing in the state, and the capital.

Thousands of dollar bills are received annually in payment of fees for operators' licenses; if currency is lost, applicants have no receipt for their payments. Case stresses. Money orders should be made payable to the Secretary of State at Lansing. Orders made payable at the office of issuance, require payment of an additional fee for which the Department of State has no funds. Such money orders are returned to their senders.

Eugene Davis, who is attending Howe Military School at Howe, Indiana, spent the Christmas holidays with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hillman. They were hosts also on Christmas Day to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hillman, sr., of Redford.

In organizing Michigan for National Wildlife Restoration Week, to be held in March, it is being pointed out that all species of wildlife are endangered by the increasing pressure of civilization.

Prof. P. A. Herbert, of East Lansing, is State Representative of the General Wildlife Federation. E. L. Foreman, of Pontiac is regional director for the Federation, in charge of organization for Wildlife Week in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

In his list of vanished species, and of species in danger and species restored or on the way back, no state has a record more interesting than Michigan's.

"Michigan was the great nesting center of the passenger pigeon," says Director of Conservation P. J. Hoffmaster.

"The Michigan grayling was world famous. A recent survey failed to produce a single grayling. Michigan had native elk, perhaps within the memory of men still living. Elk were exterminated, and twelve years ago two small herds were brought in and released in the lower peninsula. They have increased, but we have no assurance that the elk will take its place among our game animals."

No Wolverines!

In early times there were caribou in the Lake Superior country and a few bison on the southern prairies of the state. Strangely enough, there is no reliable record of the wolverine, which gave its nickname to the state.

"Moose have been reported, in very small numbers, in the upper peninsula for years and now the herd made up of specimens trapped on Isle Royale and transported to the mainland seems to be doing well."

"Among the fur-bearers, the lynx, fisher and marten are almost extinct in Michigan."

HENS CAN EAT UP EXCESS POTATOES

Poultry flocks in Michigan are due for some changes in their diets. It suggests that the poultry department at Michigan State College are followed.

Agreement of 8,000 potato growers in the state to withdraw more than 700,000 bushels of the huge crop means new uses can be made of these potatoes for livestock feeding. Research of the poultry department indicates that part of a hen's diet can be made up of boiled potatoes.

Studies made by Melvin Klopper, 1936 graduate from Byron Center, show that where potatoes can be obtained at low cost they can be a profitable part of the mash feeding. Raw potatoes made a poor showing, however, in comparison with normal mash feeding and also in comparison with cooked mashed potatoes. A report of "Potatoes as a Feed for Chickens" can be obtained from the Poultry Department, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCracken and Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCracken and children will be New Year's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hewitt in Detroit.

Mrs. Rhoda Roche of Romeo spent Christmas with her sisters, Mrs. Phebe Ross and Mrs. Ed Quinn of Farmington.

An operation was performed on Bobby Weaver at Pontiac General Hospital Thursday morning. He has been ill of pneumonia.

Amusement Zone Of New York Fair Biggest in History

NEW YORK (Special)—An amusement zone designed to accommodate at one time the entire population of the city since of Akron, Atlantic, Birmingham, Dallas, Denver or St. Paul will greet the millions of visitors to the New York Fair 1938.

By far the largest entertainment section ever constructed, it will contain enough shows, devices, restaurants, villages, shaded rest spots, recreation and pleasure to handle more than 250,000 fun-seekers.

One huge theater-restaurant alone will have seats for 5,000. Another music auditorium will seat 2,500. An amphitheater to contain huge crowds will be built by the state of New York at a cost of $1,600,000, erected at the head of one of the lakes it will be the scene of operas, aquatic exhibitions, pageants and other extravaganzas.

The visitor to the Fair will walk about two miles merely to pass through the amusement section which will be laid out in the form of an oval with no "dead end" streets.

The 280-acre tract will be divided into at least thirty-five villages or zones, and every concession will conform in design and atmosphere to the particular zone in which it is located.

An example will be the "Little Old New York" village, where the theater will be a replica of the famous old Park theater, the principal cafe will duplicate Steve Brodie's saloon and the attendants will dress in character. All architecture will be themed to that picturesque period. Admission to the zones will be free.

Scout News

Troop 45 continued its meetings despite the holidays. During the meeting Monday night attention was given to instruction in the use of triangular bandages. Some of the scouts were pretty well tired up during the demonstration—with legs, arms and head bandaged.

Three weeks ago a prize was offered for the best piece of wood or soap carving presented. So far Jack Samuelson and Charles Oldenburg are in the lead. We hope to have several models for display soon.

Ray McCurdy and Barton Smith recently paid a visit to the equipment store to complete their scout uniforms.

The new work bench is almost completed, thanks to the friendly aid of Mr. Auler. Plans have been made to secure a motor and machinery for the work bench. Scouts who have passed certain required tests and are working for merit badges will be eligible to use the machines.

The window filters have been restored in the Scout Cabin and a house warming is being planned.

The scouts are requested to get their hiking outfits ready. They may earn credits during the hikes which are being planned.

The Scoutmaster's telephone number is 301 M.

COLLEGE GETS ONE PHONE NUMBER INSTEAD OF 75

Iowa State College opened this fall with a completely remodeled telephone system. In the past, any one wishing to place a call to the college had to determine which of the 75 listed numbers was appropriate to his purpose. Now all calls will be routed to the college switchboard of the campus telephone system, where the call will be put through to the proper department.
