MARCH WINDS An old man's hat goes rolling Down the street so far. A little boy runs after it And is nearly hit by a car.

What a lovely spot I'd found.

The heavens deep and cheerful blue The snowflakes falling down, Breezes-from the old North Win Blowing through the town.

The snowflakes not a one alike Soon began to pack I'd say over to myself, To the city I'll never go back.

Hills were once a darkest green, But now they were shedded with snow.

Sleds and skates and ski tracks. Soon began to show.

The sweet fresh smell of country

Which floated around and above Gave me a deep impression That I had found the town I'd love.

I'll agree with anyone.
Who says the country's best.
I'd rather live a country life
Than any of the rest.
