

State Names New Health Commissioner

Dr. Don W. Gudakunst officially assumed this week his new duties as State Commissioner of Health. Dr. Gudakunst, formerly deputy commissioner of the Detroit Department of Health, succeeds Dr. C. C. Stenous of Grand Rapids.

To protect and improve the health of Michigan's citizens, declared the new commissioner, there are four conditions which the Michigan Department of Health must aid in meeting: (1) There must be a general knowledge of the need and value of medical services in times of health as well as sickness. (2) There must be adequate and competent medical service readily available. (3) There must be both social and mechanical facilities for providing medical care. (4) Provisions must be made for payment for these services dependent upon the economic status of the recipient.

Public health would be raised to the highest possible level if these four conditions were fully met throughout the state, said Dr. Gudakunst. Education of the people in respect to medical care will be a fundamental part of the state health program calling for the closest cooperation between educational leaders and health specialists, he predicted.

NEW BOAT TO JOIN STATE'S FERRY FLEET

Another boat will join the state-owned ferry fleet at the Straits of Mackinac next summer.

Murray D. Van Wageningen, state highway commissioner, has the approval of the state administration board this week of the purchase of the "Pere Marquette No. 20", property of the railroad company of the same name. The price is $49,000.

With an overall length of 339 feet, the boat is 83 feet longer than the "City of Cheboygan", the largest vessel in the present fleet. It has a capacity of about 115 motor vehicles compared with about 85 for the "City of Cheboygan."

The boat will proceed from its present dock at Ludington to the dry dock at Mackinac, Wis., for reconditioning in about ten days. It is expected to go into service at the Straits June 1.

The "Pere Marquette No. 20" was built in 1904. It went out of service as a railroad ferry for Lake Michigan several years ago when the railroad company decided upon a speedier craft.

This will be the fifth state-owned ferry at the Straits. The state highway department also operates the leased vessel, "Salute Marie" as an ice crusher in the winter and for summer truck traffic. The railroad ferry "Chief Wawatam" is also available for emergency duty.

Bids will be taken within the next two weeks for extensions to the coal dock at St. Ignace where the new boat and the "City of Cheboygan" will dock. The other boats will use the State dock.

Meanwhile the widening and extension of the Mackinac City dock is going ahead to provide separate docking facilities for the two largest boats, a widened causeway, and more spacious parking facilities.

MANY DAIRYMEN CO-OPERATE WITH STATE PROGRAM

Many Michigan dairymen are working with the State or Federal Bureaus of Animal Industry to eradicate animals afflicted with Bang's Disease. Several hundred of these farmers, who ship milk to the Detroit market, are filing their test reports and proof of testing are strictly followed.

Under the State program, herd owners are not paid an indemnity although there is a law providing for such payments if and when the Federal government ceases to provide indemnities. The State has made no appropriation to carry out this phase of the law.

The State program does provide for issuing certificates of clean herd certification, when three clean tests have been made in succession. The Association office states it is their understanding that the Federal tests will be accepted by the State in its program for accreditation.

UNEMPLOYED ARE URGED TO GET SECURITY NUMBERS
Persons who are looking for employment are advised to obtain social security account numbers if they have none, according to Walter B. Redman, Manager of the Pontiac field office of the Old Age Insurance Bureau. Many employers will not hire workers until they show social security numbers. Mr. Redman said, hence it is well to obtain these in advance of applying for jobs.

TELEPHONE ENEMY NO. 1

Rain, wind, a freezing temperature. Together, they produce the telephone's arch-enemy — a sleet storm.

At the first warning of this enemy's approach, your telephone company starts preparing for defense. Every department is notified. All stand ready. And soon crews of men in repair trucks are rushing to the point of attack.

Such emergencies as this dramatize the value of our association in the Bell System. For we call upon all the System's resources . . . in manpower and equipment and experience . . . to restore and protect the service.

Emergencies, however, represent only one phase of the many-sided program that safeguards your telephone. Rigid inspection, indoors and out, goes on day after day. Thorough tests and check-ups are made constantly. Millions of dollars are spent every year for new and better, sturdier equipment.

To keep your telephone always ready for use . . . at any hour of the night or day . . . neither pains nor expense can be spared in combating the enemies of the service.
