Infantile Paralysis (Exchange)

Polio-myelitis (infantile paralysis) which makes its greatest claim during the summer and early fall, attacked over 400 persons in Michigan last year.

It is not the intention of the Michigan Society for Crippled Children to create the attitude of fear, yet the symptoms of polio are often overlooked by well intentioned parents. This is largely due to the fact that in the early stages the symptoms are similar to those which accompany lesser illnesses.

Don't take chances—If any of these symptoms appear, call a doctor. Headache, nausea, vomiting, constipation, colds in the head, or a stiff neck. Here are four things to remember:

1. Keep children out of crowds as much as possible.
2. Avoid anything that might weaken the resistance of a child such as over-exertion or lack of sleep.
3. At the first sign of illness, especially stomach or respiratory trouble, put the child to bed.
4. Never fail to call a doctor.

Most of the responsibility for the early care of a polio victim rests with the local doctor and the home. Whether or not the paralysis will leave a serious involvement depends a great deal on the amount of patience and determination with which parents carry their share of the responsibility. It is unfortunate that mothers and fathers wishing to do everything possible to assist their youngsters often make the mistake of not following the doctor's orders.

Hot Weather Cautions (Exchange)

Common table salt, iodized preferred in Michigan, played an important part in the hot weather cautions issued recently by Dr. Don W. Gudakust, State Health Commissioner, in an effort to prevent the recurrence of heat fatalities which caused 956 deaths in the extended heat wave of July, 1926.

"In case of excessive perspiration add an extra amount of ordinary table salt to the diet," he said. "A full teaspoonful or more a day is needed to make up the bodily loss. This extra salt adds not only to one's comfort, but also lessens the danger of heat exhaustion or prostration. Salt is best taken with the drinking water. Such a drink is both pleasant and refreshing."

The two extremes of life, infancy and old age, are especially susceptible to the ravages of extreme heat, said the commissioner. Persons over 40 and particularly those who may be troubled with diseases of the arteries or heart should avoid over-exertion and exposure to the sun during the hottest part of the day.

Briefly, he said, the following rules of hot weather hygiene may prevent unnecessary deaths during the current heat wave:

1. Eat lightly and dress lightly.
2. Avoid over-exertion especially after eating.
3. Avoid exposure to the sun during the hottest part of the day.
4. Abstain from stimulating drinks, but drink plenty of water.
5. Take frequent cooling baths.
6. Avoid swimming immediately after eating.
7. Add teaspoonful of table salt to daily diet.

Suckers (Exchange)

Postal officials at Washington say that after nearly every one of those big English horse races where millions of dollars are wagered in betting pools, there comes an influx of inquiries, especially from residents of small towns, requesting information about where such "tickets" can be purchased. Here's both sides of the picture. The recent English race at Althorp paid sums ranging from $1,000 to $150,000 to 1700 winners. That is the pretty side of the picture. Against those 1,700 winners, however, there were 5,500,000 losers. Every one of these wagered their hard-earned cash and never got a penny in return. There were just three winners in every 1,000 ticket buyers. Even a professional gambler who would play such odds as that would be considered crazy.

Viewing both sides of the picture it would seem that the best advice that can be given Americans interested in the new summer game of horse racing is a road to sudden wealth is this—keep your money in your pocket. Don't be one of the five and a half million suckers.

Jail Sentence To Be Given Frauds

A reminder that the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Law is armed with teeth to discourage attempts to fraudulently file applications for benefits was issued today by the Commission. The law provides 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

"Anyone who thinks there is a chance to collect job insurance benefits without being entitled to them is fooling himself and taking the chance of going to prison," declared Executive Director, Albert E. Larned.

"The law specifically authorizes the Commission to criminally prosecute all who willfully furnish false information when applying for benefits."

No "Easy Money"

"This provision was set up not as an obstacle for those entitled to benefits, but to punish any who may believe there is in the procedure a chance for 'easy money.'"

"A swindler might believe he can fool the interviewer who makes out the papers. But he can't fool the records on file in the central office."

These statements made in applying for benefits do not agree with previous wage records supplied by employers, a check back will correct any natural mistake. Errors are likely to occur in some instances. These are excusable.

Misdemeanants

"But a deliberate attempt to defraud will show up immediately. Claimants who deliberately make false statements are liable to prosecution as misdemeanants."

"There is an additional penalty for using the mails to defraud—a serious Federal offense—for any who may devise a way to have a false claim processed to the point of payment."

"Prosecution has already been made in several states already paying benefits."

"The commission is making no idle threat in promising strict enforcement of the criminal attempts to defraud those rightfully entitled to compensation."

Safeguard

"The commission must safeguard the fund and the rights of those covered by it."

"It is our aim to make it impossible to collect valid claims, but impossible to defraud the fund."

Mr. Larned pointed out that recipients of benefits must certify for each week that they are still totally unemployed before the order will be issued for refunding a check. The man who begins to receive checks and who is actually employed, will be caught up with sooner or later when his employer files reports of wages paid to him.

Can you afford $1.55 a month FOR COOKING?

... then you can afford ELECTRIC COOKING NOW!

This figure is a one-year's average of actual cooking costs in families of three persons, at the rate of 2 1/2 cents (25¢) per kWh. The cost of operating your range will vary with the amount of cooking done, and with the use of retained heat and the wireless cooking method.

Perhaps you have always wanted an electric range, but felt that it cost too much to operate. You will be pleasantly surprised at the newest cost figures just compiled by actual meter test, over a period of a year's time. In the survey, 5 well-known makes of electric ranges and 9 different models were included. The ranges were used in kitchens in actual homes, under everyday working conditions, by women cooking meals daily. The average cooking cost for families of three is only $1.55 A MONTH. Electric cooking on today's modern ranges is not expensive. Why not install an electric range in your kitchen now—so that you can enjoy its comfort through the warm summer months?

See the new electric ranges on display at department stores, electrical dealers or at Detroit Edison offices.
