Air Corps Repels "Invasion" During Test Maneuvers on Eastern Seaboard

Right: Communication center at the "wing" command at New Haven Airport, showing at the left some of the 39 telewriter units installed at air bases from Massachusetts to Maryland and linked by 2200 miles of wire circuits, through which G.H.Q. directed the operations of the entire air force. Below: Pursuit planes in combat formation (Official U. S. Army photo). Below right: Four-motored "flying fortress."

The most elaborate concentration of air forces ever mounted by the U. S. Army took place not long ago when the Air Force was called upon to repel "invasions" from the New England and Virginia coasts. In addition to 220 planes, the maneuvers employed the "War exists between the United States and a coalition of Asiatic and European powers. Far out on the Atlantic a naval force of these powers is escorting troop transports and aircraft carriers obviously intent upon effecting a landing on the New England coast. Another force, with even more planes, has just left Europe, probably headed for Virginia."

That is the "pose" the Army put to its G.H.Q. Air Force recently, calling upon it to organize, on the ground and aloft, a line of defense which would frustrate these attacks. Just to make the problem a real one, the Army strategists left the Navy's Fleet in the Pacific, fully occupied with defensive operations there and unable to lead any very heavy support.

All Types of Planes Engaged

Under the command of Major General Frank M. Andrews, the first mission of the Air Force was to set up headquarters at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y., with subsidiary air bases so located that their planes would be able to push defensive operations along the coast from Maine to Georgia.

Having settled upon this ground plan, General Andrews then put the Air Corps into the air en masse. Pursuit, attack and bomber planes took off from California, Texas, Louisiana and airfields in between, with more than 8,000 men, in the most elaborate concentration by air that the Army has ever staged.

The maneuvers employed the most modern equipment and the very latest practices in aerial operations. In all, some 220 planes participated. There were swift Boeing pursuit planes and severely

PHONE CALLS REACHED NEW RECORD IN 1937

Long Distance Messages Totaled More than 55 Million—Service Extended to New Countries

Long distance telephone calls handled by the Long Lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company reached a new peak in 1937, with a total of about 55,000,000 calls. This is about 4,500,000 more than in any previous year, and 7,450,000 more than that in 1936.

Overseas Calls Total 59,000

Teletypewriter service also continued to show steady growth. There were about 3,650,000 teletypewriter messages in 1937. This was an increase of 638,000 over 1936.

The overseas radio services also made a new record in 1937, when about 59,000 messages were transmitted in this way, exceeding by 19,000 the number transmitted in 1936—which was the previous high year.

During the year, service was extended to several places, including Damascus in Syria, Baghdad in Iraq, Sofia in Bulgaria, Port au Prince in Haiti, Juneau in Alaska, and to two additional ocean liners.

Bell System telephones may now be connected with about 36,000,000 of the world's 39,000,000 telephones, and communication is possible with 72 different countries and localities.

Another important achievement of 1937 was the completion of the fourth transcontinental line, which provides additional telephone facilities over a new route to the Pacific Coast. This project involved a big engineering construction job of new pole line between Amarillo, Tex., and Kingman, Ariz., but adds one more route for the constantly increasing traffic between the East and West Coasts.

At The Redford Theatre

SYLVIA SIDNEY

Sylvia Sidney, who proved her self filmdom's first tragedienne in "An American Tragedy," "Street Scene," "Pury" and "You Live Only Once" will come to the screen of the Redford Theatre from Friday through Monday in her latest film success, "You and Me," in which she is costarred with George Raft. The pair lead a brilliant cast of supporting players which includes Warren Hymer, George E. Stone, Barton MacLane, Robert Cummings and Harry Carey.

Miss Sidney and Raft, last seen together in "Pick Up" several seasons ago, are together in another drama of hounded humans, "You and Me." It is a powerful romance of the city streets, with Miss Sidney seen as a paroled convict who keeps her past from Raft, also an ex-convict when they marry.

The pair live an ideally happy life, despite the fact that Miss Sidney must keep the knowledge of her wedding from the probation authorities, because of a law that paroled convicts must not marry. When Raft gets suspicious, be-

CHILD ADOPTION MANUAL PREPARED BY LEGAL COUNSEL

For the first time in the history of Michigan jurisprudence there has been brought together in one volume a concise exposition of the statutes and court procedure relative to adoption of children and juvenile court procedure.

This manual is now made available to welfare agents and child welfare agents as well as to probate judges and child caring and placing agencies of Michigan as a ready reference to many of the questions arising in the field of child placement.

It was prepared by Mr. F. F. Fauri, legal counsel for the State Welfare Department with the cooperation and counsel of a committee of the Michigan Association of Probate Judges in answer to the constant demand for explanation of the difficult problems surrounding adoption.

The manual has been one year in the making.

Procedural Manual

As expressed in the foreword it is hoped that the compilation will serve not only as a procedural manual but also for the purpose of pointing out the weaknesses of existing legislation with the view of revising the present laws relating to children.

"Good child placement on a permanent basis is not possible," Mr. Fauri states, "without complying with our statutes. The legal aspects of adoption go hand in hand with the social aspects. An adoption which fulfills all social requirements does not give security to the child if the legal procedure outlined by our laws is not followed, resulting in failure to create the legal relationship between parent and child and the disrupting of a carefully planned placement."

"This may come within weeks or months of the reading of the adoption order, or many years later, when, upon death of the adoptive parents, the child is expected to inherit from such parents but the order is declared null and void upon attack by the natural heirs of the adoptive parents."

"Social planning and legal planning are interdependent, both being essential and necessary for the protection of the child being adopted."
