GRID TEAM SEEKS CONFERENCE WITH CLARKSTON

With one victory chalked up on the season's ledger, the Farmington High School griders will travel to Clarkston Friday with determination to open their Southwestern Oakland County football season.

Feeling a bit out after a fine display of spirit in the opening game at Flat Rock last Friday, in which the visiting Blue and White nosed out last year's champions of the Southwestern Suburban League under newly installed floodlights.

6 to 6, Coach Shoemaker and his assistants have been driving the squad hard this week.

Following the game their first appearance on the local gridiron, the following Friday, October 7, when the strong Milford team will oppose them.

Ticket Campaign

Student section members are busy selling season tickets to townspeople, faculty members, high school, and Junior High school students. By putting on a ticket campaign the council is aiding in defraying the expenses of the athletic department.

Friday's game showed the team had plenty of spirit. Being an inexperienced eleven they showed need of polishing, but practice and competition will iron out these difficulties.

Coach Shoemaker found his boys all playing heads-up football, with no member outshining his cohorts.

Ed Peterson, however, demonstrated that with a little training he will prove to be a valuable ball carrier.

Last Quarter Score

Outplaying Flat Rock most of the game the local invincibles started a drive from midfield in the fourth quarter which netted them their greatly deserved touchdown. Quarter Back Bill Pink carried the ball with a quick thrust through the center for the game's only score.

Shoemaker intimated that he will stand pat on his lineup, using the same team against Clarkston that were present at the opening whistle in Flat Rock.

BALLET CARAVAN TO OPEN DETROIT TOWN HALL SERIES

A glamorous and important event will be the opening of the Detroit Town Hall in the Fisher Theatre Wednesday morning, October 10, when the Ballet Caravan, making its Detroit premiere, will present three entirely new and original ballets. Important because this young organization of 20 dancers, organized by Lincoln Kirstein in 1936, has already created a sensation in the East.

"Filling Station" and "Yankee Clipper," two of the most talked-of ballets of the past season will be presented, as well as "Promenade," a concert classical ballet to Raynalds, Virgil Thomson, who wrote the music for Gertrude Stein's "Four Saints in Three Acts" composed the music for "Filling Station" and the choreography of Lew Christensen, who dances the chief role of "Mac" the gasoline attendant. Paul Bowles who was recently honored by an entire concert in Mexico City, wrote the music for "Yankee Clipper" to Eugene Loring's choreography.

Second on the series of 20 Wednesday mornings, at 11 o'clock will be Frank Lloyd Wright, famous architect, who will appear October 18. Mr. Wright will speak on "The Future of Architecture." Elsa Maxwell, famous for her original parties, comes October 26 to tell why "Today Society is Different."

November 2 is the date for Felix Morley, editor of the Washington Post, who returns to Town Hall to speak on "The Press and Public Opinion."

Tree Plays Villain's Role; Then Is Hero

Conservation officers headed by John Winton, district supervisor at Mt. Michigan, saved two fishermen from possible drowning in the An Sable river by taking them from a fallen tree to which they had clung two hours after their canoe overturned. Neither fisherman was able to swim.

W. G. Phelon, Flint, and C. M. Schaffer, Saginaw, were fishing downstream in a canoe when a tree which had fallen into the stream capped the boat. Both men managed to catch hold of the tree and hang on for more than two hours despite the swift current.

Motorists brought word of their plight to district conservation headquarters here and Supervisor Winton accompanied by Frank Comins, fire warden, and Wayne Tennant, equipment operator, drove to the scene and maneuvered a boat into position to rescue the men. Both fishermen were severely submerged.

Fairy Brushes Tiger's Teeth In Tiny Tot Book

That instructors are using modern methods to teach tiny tots healthy habits is demonstrated by the following announcement:

"Let's Grow—Be Healthy and Happy" is the title of a booklet just received by the Grand Rapids Anti-Tuberculosis society for the use of teachers of kindergarten, first and second grades.

It is designed to teach health through the use of animal pictures, planned to be colored. Space is allowed for the child's record of his own health habits.

Fairy children are shown doing various health chores for animals. "Keep hands and body clean" is illustrated by a kangaroo having his teeth brushed by a fairy calling attention to a clean mouth. "Cover each cough and sneeze" shows an elf having a hard time to cover the sneeze of a giraffe. "Go to bed early" is illustrated with a charming submarine scene. "Caring for eyes" is an arctic classroom advise youngsters to "stand and sit tall" if they would have healthful posture and a bareback rider on a zebra urges all to "play outdoors daily."

SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD HAS NOT APPROVED PLATES

No metal plates or other similar devices intended for use as permanent record of old-age insurance account numbers have been approved by the Social Security Board. Neither is the use of such devices authorized or sanctioned by the federal agency.

This statement was made today by Walter D. Redman, manager of the Social Security Board field office in Pontiac.

"Several of these devices are now on the market," Mr. Redman said.

"At least one gives the impression that it is an official product of the government as it carries the styling of an eagle flanked by the initials 'S. S.' and immediately below the words 'Registered U. S. Government Social Security'."

"Although we have urged workers to keep separate records of their account numbers so that it will be easier to issue new ones where cards are lost or destroyed, we have not authorized production of any supplementary device or card," he added.

Mr. Redman pointed out that there is danger that in producing the unofficial and unauthorized metal plates the name or number of the individual may be changed. The account number cards are used not only as the basis of individual records which show the amount of benefits workers will receive, but also are used by the state unemployment compensation commissions in their payment of benefits under the job insurance plan.

STATE'S CANNERY TOMATO QUALITY IS AMONG HIGHEST

Despite much unfavorable weather in September, federal-state inspection records disclose that the quality of Michigan's cannery tomatoes, crop is among the highest in the nation, according to Commissioner John B. Strange of the Department of Agriculture.

The records, the first made available under federal-state inspection, show that high percentage of the tomatoes of the state meet federal requirements of No. 1 or first class products.

Tomato producers, according to Strange, were prompt in learning the requirements of grades and after the opening of the canneries throughout the state, cut tomatoes were practically eliminated; the merchandise being delivered for processing at the factories.

Excellent conditions the earlier part of the season produced high quality tomatoes, with the bulk of first deliveries being No. 1 to 100.

Reduces Quality
Rain and cool weather, starting

September 9, the reports show, reduced not only the quantity of tomatoes offered for sale, but the quality as well. Since that date, the number of No. 2 tomatoes has been gradually increased, but the quality for the season in its entirety is above the expectation of officials at the start of the season.

"Inspection reports," said Strange, "at the close of the season will show that Michigan ranks right at the top in quality. We have had splendid co-operation from the growers in this program, one of the most important features being their attitude toward culls. Upon learning that they were not to be paid for poor tomatoes, that quality would bring them a greater revenue, the culls were left in the fields. This is the place, the department contends, for culls in any fruit or vegetable crop."

Janet Robertson has been ill at her home on Valley View, with a throat infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Turner of Reedside Park announce the birth of a seventh daughter, Thursday, September 29.
