NAVY HONORS FORMER PRESIDENT ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Navy Day was inaugurated in 1922 by the Navy League of the United States and its observance is sponsored annually by the League. October 27th was selected because it is the anniversary of the birth of President Theodore Roosevelt, so much of whose life was devoted to establishing a strong navy for the United States of America. It will be remembered that President Roosevelt, first achieved a national reputation by writing a naval history and finally a work of such merit that it was incorporated into Clow's Royal Navy, a monumental history of the British Sea Service. Later, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy and finally as President, Roosevelt bent his tremendous energies to impress upon the American people the necessity for an adequate navy, and endeavored through his leadership to realize this ideal.

October is also the month in which the American Navy was founded in 1775 by the Continental Congress. In addition to paying a devoted tribute to the sea heroes of the nation and recalling the splendid part the Navy has played in making and keeping us a nation, Navy Day observance has proved a valuable means of fostering a better understanding of the Navy and its work. Such information, in the opinion of the Government is by public opinion, is essential to the formation of correct judgments affecting naval policy, and in this observance has played a considerable part.

With the cooperation of the radio broadcasting industry; the press and motion pictures, and with the participation of the Navy and other governmental agencies, as well as the American Legion, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other patriotic societies, Navy Day has developed into a day of serious thought on the subject of reasonable Naval defense.

More Game Today Than in Pioneer Days

Some treasured shillibets of American lore have suffered in the researches of the Federal Writers' Project compiling the recently completed edition of the American Guide Book Series. A notable example is reported from Baraga county, accounting for the Indians' "Wisakook" burned forests. The area, bounded by the Big Lake, which the Indians called "Kitchigami." It was the scene of the annual hunts of Illinois and Wisconsin Indians before the coming of the white men. The hunting method was similar to the British "drive" but added an anti-conservation practice that belies the Indians' reputation as protectors of game and forests.

After pitching camp on the Sturgeon river at Big Lake, the tribesmen would await a favorable wind, then fire the woods "the way," and the driving game toward the encampment where bowmen lay in wait. Thus, white men found no large timber in the district.

Another exploded belief in the wilderness regions is that hunting is "not what it used to be." In many sections of the north game is more plentiful today than in pioneer days, according to lumbermen and foresters who say the virgin forest growth was too dense for large animals and that deer actually followed seasons of forest fires.

LEGION OFFICIAL DESCRIBES WORLD WAR HORRORS

Seventeenth District American Legion Publicity chairman, W. B. Gambee, of the Groves-Walker Post No. 246, of Farmington, describes in this week's article, "You, and the American Legion," the horrors of the last war, and how much more terrifying the next war will be. The article follows: "War! War! America cannot stay neutral, we must fight and be patriotic to our country! The listening through took up the cry, and so the agitator had done his bit toward creating turmoil in America. But, do we want the bloodshed, the horrors, the devastation, and the sorrow of another war? Are we ready to fling our youths into the lines to be shot and gassed? I am sure every thinking American will raise his voice in a defiant no!"

"Another war is not what we need to preserve our democratic standards and our high ideals. War is a ghastly ordeal and we should pause before we take the final step. Pause and remember the disasters of the last war. In millions of veterans' photographs are pictures of devastation, smouldering ruins, bodystrewn battlefields, and the agonies of dying comrades. These facts, for they were merely facts of 17 or 18, were in the glory of their youth. They did not realize their folly; they did not know!"

"Pain and Suffering
"In hospitals today veterans of the World War, cared for by the great organization of the American Legion, are living in pain and suffering. Some are crippled for life, others are shell shocked or passed. They will never recover; their is a living death! They are the vast legion of the Living Dead, an ex-lance more horrible than any on the face of the earth.
"In one such hospital in Michigan there are 300 men under the American Legion's care. And there are about 55 hospitals in the United States. That would make a total of 1,650 men under supervision in hospitals in this country. These figures are merely approximate, of course, but the idea is the same. Then too, there are about 400 women and children cared for in one Legion home in Michigan, 400 destitute, who, after 18 years, are still depending on the American Legion for care.
"Shocking Number
"Just think of it, these thousands of men, women and children all over the U. S. A. shocking number after this many years of peace. And how many more would there be in America if we would again take up the battle cry? I cannot tell you how many there would be, I cannot begin to establish a set total, but I can let you judge for yourselves what you and your loved ones would suffer if you found yourself in such circumstances. I cannot even estimate how many more maimed and how many more broken lives and hearts there would be after 18 years from the time you are in such circumstances in your minds the horror and the suffering there would be as you see the country.
"War is never worth the price we pay for it, and reckoning in lives and money it is not worth one tenth of the price. The only thing left for us to do then, is to teach ourselves to be peace-loving Americans. With your help and cooperation the American Legion will succeed in doing this for America. And we must hope and pray that never again will we need to drink of the bitter glass of war, unless the price that peace demands is impossible to pay!"

MICHIGAN FISHING

Since Father Hennepin, LaSalle's polyepoly reporter, went into ecstasy over "the white fish" at Detroit, Michigan has lured fishermen. It is declared by WPA Field Writers' Project workers. Various localities claim special excellence, but White Lake near Muskegon claims to be the most steadily-fished waters the year around. In a recent winter, more than 2,500 shanties were erected there for fishing through the ice. Winter fishermen use spears, tip-ups and sometimes hand-operated tinkle for perch and pike.
