ADVERTISEMENTS Are Your Guides To Value

Experts can roughly estimate the value of a product by looking at it. More accurately, by handling and examining it. Its appearance, its texture, the "feel" and the balance of it, all mean something to their trained eyes and fingers.

But no one person can be an expert on steel, brass, wood, leather, foodstuffs, fabrics, and all of the material that makes up a list of personal purchases. And even experts are fooled, sometimes, by concealed flaws and imperfections.

There is a surer index of value than the senses of sight and touch . . . knowledge of the maker's name and for what it stands. Here is the most certain method, except that of actual use, for judging the value of any manufactured goods. Here is the only guarantee against careless workmanship, or use of shoddy materials.

This is one important reason why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. The advertised product is worthy of your confidence.

Merchandise must be good or it couldn't be consistently advertised.

CHICK LOSSES LOWERED IN INSULATED HOUSES

Heavy losses of young chicks have been the unfortunate experience of many poultrymen who started with good chicks, a clean brooder house, a stove in good working order, correctly balanced feed and an adequate supply of fresh clean water. Sudden weather changes are known to cause such losses as baby chicks are sensitive to cold and drafts.

In agricultural experiment stations brooder houses are commonly supplied not only with artificial heat but also with insulation to retain the heat and maintain temperatures at a steady level.

As shown in the illustration, a new brooder house is being insulated with cane fibre board to protect young chicks. A sudden sharp fall in the outdoor temperature at night will not affect chicks in this house because the heat will not leak away as rapidly as it will in an uninsulated house. Fuel is conserved, thereby reducing the cost of brooding chicks in such an insulated house.

Brooder houses can be kept dry and free from drafts only by correct ventilation. Insulating a brooder house is a long step toward getting proper ventilation, which depends on even temperature and the elimination of drafts.

New State Park To Be On Leelanau Peninsula

A new state park will come into existence during the next several months on the tip of Leelanau peninsula.

A WPA project calling for an expenditure of $23,000 on the site has been approved, to permit the installation of water and sanitation facilities, construction of a small caretaker's lodge and the purchase and building of various equipment. Some work already has been done on the site by the parks division of the department of conservation such as road improvement, but accommodations for visitors were limited. The last legislature appropriated $8,000 as contribution towards the development of a Northport area and since then the parks division has surveyed and drawn a master plan of the site. The hope is that work can be commenced in time to make the park available for at least part of next season.

Ample notice of change of address should be given when moving. Notice should be given before changing it possible.
