DON'T CONCEAL TELEPHONE, MAGAZINE ADVISES
When a subscriber wrote to the magazine "How Beautiful," asking for a good way to hide the telephone, this was the response she received.

"Hide the telephone? Never! I wouldn't even consider doing it," is the published reply. "The telephone is a functional part of modern life and is accepted in decorative schemes for its usefulness."

PERSONS, PLACES AND ACTIVITIES YOU HAVE HEARD OF READ ABOUT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

Devotee entirely to the study and treatment of pernicious anemia and related diseases of the blood, the Thomas Henry Simpson Memorial Institute for Medical Research of the University of Michigan has been one of America's leading agencies in combating this disease.

It was through investigations carried on in the Simpson Memorial Institute that the Vincennes treatment for pernicious anemia was developed. This treatment is now widely used in fighting the disease.

The institute was a gift to the University from Mrs. Christine M. Simpson as a memorial to her husband who died of pernicious anemia. Her gift included $150,000 for the building shown above and a $250,000 endowment.

Since the Institute was opened in 1927, over 700 patients with pernicious anemia, as well as many other patients with other types of the disease, have been examined and treated by the staff.

The knowledge which has been accumulated by various investigators has been made available to the medical profession through 123 publications in various medical journals in the last nine years. Further, members of the staff of the Institute have collaborated in the teaching of medical students in the University.

BELL BOX USED AS A BANK PUTS PHONE OUT OF ORDER
Fifteen cents put the telephone out of order in a Norwich, Conn. home recently.

Orrin Harris, repairman, sent to investigate a "trouble" report, opened the telephone bell box, and when fifteen pennies dropped out one by one, he thought he had "hit the jackpot." It developed that a youngster in the family had been using the box as a savings bank. His deposits finally caused a short circuit in the wires.

A Nurse Aide at Work

A National Youth Administration employee assists the regular nurse in serving a patient in the Children's Ward of Bronson Hospital, Kalamazoo. She is one of 466 NYA workers who supplement the regular staffs in 36 Michigan hospitals.

NYA Nurse Aide Program Employs 466 Girls In State

Two and one half years ago, Head Nurse Amy Seward of Kalamazoo's Bronson Hospital, concluded that the efficiency of her staff was impaired by trifling minor duties that were nevertheless essential. Mrs. Seward took her problem to the National Youth Administration of Michigan and a project was set up at the hospital to which 27 unemployed girls were assigned as "nurse aides."

From the start, these nurse aides proved so beneficial to Bronson that other hospitals in the State requested similar projects and, in the last two years, an extensive program has grown up in Michigan. Last week when it was officially and heartily endorsed by Executive Secretary Olive Sewell of the Michigan State Nurses Association, the NYA Nurse Aide Service employed over 466 youth in 36 hospitals and clinics from Iron Mountain to Detroit.

After a necessary preliminary training period, the NYA employees engaged in this service execute routine tasks that otherwise would be done by trained nurses. Under supervision of a hospital's dietitian, they serve as waitresses; in the linen room, they prepare surgical dressings, repair blankets and mangle linens; in the laboratory, they clean glassware and type reports; in the children's ward they feed, bathe and entertain children. The girls work 16 hours weekly at these and similar duties and, in addition, have two hours of class work where they are taught fundamentals in hygiene, dietetics and pre-natal and child care.

The Nurse Aide Service differs from the majority of NYA work programs in Michigan in that the training it embodies is not primarily designed for any specific field of employment. Although many girls have profited enough from their work in hospitals to secure positions in offices, restaurants and homes, and have even been inspired, in some cases, to enter the nursing profession, the training that they receive better prepares them for homemaking in general. Not only do they increase their knowledge of dietetics and fundamental nursing problems, especially in regard to the care of children, but the qualities of obedience, promptness, cleanliness are instilled in them.

at the bills, find that charges are not high but that the arm is getting no profit back from devices that could be used with poultry, crops and livestock.

Thus the investment, says Elinger, often looks like a luxury to a farmer. He is discouraged from purchasing the labor saving devices that could earn profit that could be used to pay for the household purchases.

Elinger is pursuing the thought in meetings throughout the state as he participates in the agricultural extension service of the college.

His figures gained from farm records show that if Michigan is to continue its annual leadership in adding power to new farms, the practical side of purchases of equipment needs greater attention.

Mr. Spaller Asks for Peace!

Mr. Spaller had a cottage to rent. He came to our office and paid to have this want ad in the paper for three successive weeks:

FOR RENT: Four Room Cottage near Catholic school. Inquire Hugo Spaller, 31632 Grand River, Farmington. 18-3-39.

For the first insertion, it cost him 35 cents, and for each of the others, 25 cents, or 85 cents in all.

A few days after the first insertion had appeared in The Enterprise, Mr. Spaller came in to ask a favor of us. He rented the cottage shortly after the paper came out to one of our readers, but he was still being disturbed by folks who had seen the ad in The Enterprise and wished to "inquire."

If you have a set of books, a girl's bicycle, a fur coat that still has a lot of wear in it, or anything someone in this area might be able to use, tell him about it through the want ads in The Enterprise.
