EXTRA PASTURES KEEP COWS SANE, DAIRYMAN SAYS

Stanchionists! Cows in Oakland county are to exhibit signs of what approaches insanity from long association with their stanchions through winter months.

In an explanation from A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman at Michigan State College, this condition can best be remedied by wise pasture programs which need year around planning.

Spring is the time of year when cows, if they ever do, go nearly crazy. Release from stanchions to early grass is a tonic that reflects in their dispositions and in their milk yield. What perhaps most affects the profit side of a dairyman's book is the low cost of milk produced largely on pasture feeding.

Desires feed supply, the spring tonic of such a pasture as ryegrass offers vitamin A through the carotene in green grass, improves regularity in breeding, saves barn feeding and reduces labor, Baltzer points out.

Early temporary pastures do more. They save the permanent pastures until the latter are solid enough to permit extensive grazing. Baltzer reminds dairymen of midsummer problems by suggesting plans for planting sudan grass. Put in during June, it is useful in July and August when a pasture such as bluegrass dries up.

Some of the mixed seedings also serve to prolong summer pasture. Brome grass put in this spring can begin to offer food next year. Alfalfa and brome is becoming popular in Michigan. Some dairymen bank on early planted fodder corn. When cut in August this fills in the usual cut in pasture and staves off the time when a herd must go back into the barn to store up more tons of stanchionitis.

WEST FARMINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Vicory have moved to the old Phelps farm on 11 mile road.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cox had a sale and are moving from a farm on Walnut Lake road to a small farm which they have purchased on Welch road.

Mrs. J. C. Cox is confined to her home with an attack of influenza.

"Barkers" must use their lungs on the Midway of the 1939 World's Fair on San Francisco Bay, for public address systems will be allowed them.

Fun at S. F. World's Fair

Zoe Dell Lantis, Exposition beauty, receives the trophy as winner of the "daisy chop" sweepstakes in a rickshaw race on Treasure Island while Bill Chan, the victorious runner looks on. Miss Lantis, representing America, receives the trophy from Ruby Lew of the Chinatown concession at the World's Fair.

Fruit Growers Invited To Lecture On Spraying

Fruit growers in this area are invited by Karl D. Bailey, Oakland County agricultural agent, to attend lectures Friday at the Michigan State College and the meetings will be held at 1 p. m. in the Wisconsin County Hall and 8 p. m. in the Rochester Town Hall.

Fruit growers from Wayne and Oakland counties interested in the production of apples, peaches, pears, plums and cherries, are invited to attend these meetings.

Mr. Rasmussen is a State-wide authority on spraying recommendations for tree fruits. These meetings are sponsored by the extension service of the college in cooperation with local growers.

Mr. Spaller Asks for Peace!

Mr. Spaller had a cottage to rent. He came to our office and paid to have this want ad in the paper for three successive weeks:

FOR RENT, Four Room Cottage near Catholic school. Inquire Hugo Spaller, 31635 Grand River, Farmington. 153-p.

For the first insertion, it cost him 35 cents, and for each of the others, 25 cents, or 85 cents in all.

A few days after the first insertion had appeared in The Enterprise, Mr. Spaller came in to ask a favor of us. He rented the cottage shortly after the paper came out to one of our readers, but he was still being disturbed by folks who had seen the ad in The Enterprise and wished to "inquire."

If you have a set of books, a girl's bicycle, a fur coat that still has a lot of wear in it, or anything someone in this area might be able to use, tell him about it through the want ads in The Enterprise.
