Poppy Day

Auxiliary, and has enlarged the need for Poppy Day contributions. Almost every veteran now dying leaves a widow and children. Unless legal proof of a disability received in the service amounting to a pension, her and or more had been established by the veterans, no government aid is available for the widow and children. That is when the Legion and Auxiliary step in with emergency aid, if the widow is without means, they strive to keep the home together.

For every veteran who dies, several are stricken down with disabilities. The government provides hospital care for all, when hospital beds are available, but other forms of aid are restricted and again the American Legion and Auxiliary must meet the needs. Poppy making provides for many disabled men without compensation. The Poppy Day funds make it possible for the Legion and Auxiliary to bring relief to thousands of disabled veterans and their families every year. Right here in Michigan there are many men, women and children who are still paying the price of the World War in suffering and hardship. The money contributed for Poppies will be for them. If everyone understands the need, it will be no one without a poppy on Poppy Day.

Made By Veterans

Every little red crepe paper poppy sold is a 100 per cent veteran made Poppy. The American Legion and Auxiliary at each attached to the poppy is an absolute guarantee of this fact.

Nothing expresses the honor we feel for the World War dead more fittingly than wearing the Poppy. It is their flower.

A red Poppy, bought for a small amount, means a step forward in Child Welfare and Rehabilitation. The general public may not be thoroughly acquainted with these details, for, as years have gone by, the memory of the World War has become dim in the minds of many, and too, a new generation has arisen which has no understanding of what that memory means. It is the main objective of the American Legion and Auxiliary this year to endeavor to educate the public to the true significance of the Memorial Poppy, and for what the proceeds are used.
