Three Traffic Deaths Per Day in May

The state of Michigan experienced 3 fatal, 55 personal injury and 183 property damage accidents each day in May. For the entire month the totals were 92 fatal, 1702 personal injury, and 5035 property damage accidents. These resulted in 105 deaths and 2351 injuries.

This is a 50% fatality increase over the previous month's experience since April suffered 61 fatal accidents and 72 deaths as compared to May's 92 fatal accidents and 105 deaths.

Fatal accidents on rural roads more than doubled with 15 being reported in April as compared to 31 in May. Also accidents on trunk lines and in the larger cities increased appreciably.

This state-wide increase was reflected in all types of accidents. Collisions between two motor vehicles and also non-collision accidents more than doubled. Pedestrian and railroad train-motor vehicle accidents increased slightly.

America Has Five Breeds

Of Popular Draft Horses We have in America five well-known breeds, and all are so much alike that only an expert can tell them apart, relates Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening in the Chicago Tribune.

The Shire, Suffolk, and Clydesdale belong to the English group. The Belgian, as its name discloses, comes from Belgium, the Percheron from France. Breeds are the fountainhead of all our draft breeds. No Belgian is the largest of the lot. Bred on low land eminently suitable for production of big horses, the Belgian has little to do from foalhood upward but to eat and grow. The Belgian government has played the leading role in improving its heavy horses.

Undoubtedly the Percheron springs from the same fountainhead in Flanders as does the Belgian. The accepted belief among historians is that on defeat of the Moors by Charles Martel in 732 the eastern stallions of the invaders were crossed with the larger horses of the low countries and the foundation of the Percheron laid in that region. Arabian and Andalusian blood has since been infused.

Characteristic of two of the British group—the Shire and Clydesdale—is the long hair on the lower legs. This is said to be true of any horse raised in the lowlands. The start of the Clydesdale occurred in 1750 when John Patterson imported from England into Scotland a black Flemish stallion. To this horse all the Shire Clydesdales may be traced. The Shire is traced back to the same black horse of Flanders.

Larger Animals Do Not Produce the Most Young

The larger the animal in size the smaller is the litter as a rule. Thus the average number of young born by the opossum is 18; of the rabbit, from six to eight; of the pig, ten, and of the monkey, man, cow, horse, walrus, camel and elephant, but one.

Also, states an authority in the New York Times, the larger the litter the higher is the mortality. The opossum, for example, is never able to rear more than 13 of her 18 offspring, with the probability that not more than 11 or 12 will survive. The fact is that the opossum has only 12 serviceable nipples, instead of the 18 required for her brood. But to make up for the deficiency she works an incubator in the form of a pouch in which the prematurely born can develop. At that it is a struggle for survival, with 10 immature creatures clawing for food. Once a successful clawer has seized a nipple, he never lets go for six weeks, which explains why half a dozen of the weaker young must die.

Twining runs in families, so that it is probably a genetic trait.

Dreams Are Short

Dreams are of very brief duration in spite of the fact they sometimes seem to the dreamer to extend over long periods—hours or even days, according to a writer in the Detroit News. A few seconds may be the actual time of a dream but it seemed to carry the dreamer through a long series of adventures. Dreams have no significance whatever in the foretelling of the future. They are merely transient pictures, often distorted, created by our senses in our relationship with existence.
