AT THE REDFORD THEATER

The Hardy Family takes a fling at life, both romantic and dramatic, in the seventh of the popular series, "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," opening Friday at the Redford Theater. All the family forces are back. However, Lewis Stone as the Judge, Mickey Rooney as Andy and Cecelia Parker as Marian fall victims to a spirit of caprice and it is up to Fay Holden (Mother Hardy) and Sam Haden (Aunt Milla) to remain the stabilizing members. Newcomers to the cast are Helen Gilbert a new discovery who plays Andy's latest love, and Perry Kilburn, who recently scored an outstanding success in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

W. S. Van Dyke II, director of such pictures as "The Thin Man," "San Francisco" and "Sweethearts," is said to fully capitalize all the possibilities of the humorous situations in which the Hardy family finds itself.

The adventurous spirit strikes the Hardys like a cyclone. In this picture, the Judge loses his usual conservatism and almost everything he owns in a crooked promotion stunt. In the end, however, his good sense prevails and he turns a "gold brick" into pay dirt. Then Andy quarrels with his sweetheart, Polly Headsett, played by Anna Rutherford, and falls crazily in love with a beautiful school teacher. To win her esteem he turns playwright-actor, and, despite his father's advice, even proposes to the older girl. Marian decides to forsake social life for a career and in return gets mixed up with the swindling promoters. Also showing at the Redford is "The Sun Never Sets," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Ostrich Slaughter Rises With Demand for Pelts

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA.—Because only cutters wear ostrich feathers now half a million ostriches have been slaughtered in the Karoo district of South Africa in the past four years.

Ostrich feathers at one time brought an income of $10,000,000 to the union. While feathers, which brought $100 and more a pound in the boom days before the World war, can hardly be sold now at 50 cents a pound.

But as feathers have gone down skins have gone up, and now ostrich skins are selling at $1.25 each.

So the farmers are killing ostriches for their skins, which are sent to Britain, France and the United States to be made into fancy leather goods. The ostrich farms of the Karoo are giving place to fields of lucerne and vineyards.

WPA Workers Uncover Century Old Boat Hull

CAPE MAY COURTHOUSE, N. J.—The hull of a 30-foot vessel, believed to be more than a century old, has been uncovered here by WPA workers.

Frederick O. M. Carson, superintendent of the project, said the boat was constructed of oak and pine timbers joined by spikes made of iron and bronze. Carson said the keel was fairly well preserved.

Bronze spikes have not been used generally in boat building for at least 100 years, according to Edward M. Peck, custodian of the Cape May county museum.

COMEDY WILL OPEN SEASON AT CASS THEATER OCT. 16

Eddie Dowling, who electrified Broadway three years ago with his production of "Hallelujah" with Maurice Evans, followed up with the successful Paul V. Carroll plays "Shadow and Substance," and the comedy gem of last season, "The White Steed," which will be the attraction at the Cass Theater, Detroit, for six days, beginning Monday, October 16. Both of these plays were the high lights of their respective Broadway seasons but "The White Steed" received more popular acclaim in both New York and on tour because it was written in a lighter vein and was more understandable.

"The White Steed" is symbolically based on the old and romantic tale of Ossian, the son of Finn, who was taken away by the lovely Niam on her white steed to the Land of Youth.

The principal conflict in "The White Steed" is between hearty, human, lovable old Canon Matt Lavelle and Father Shanaghnessy, who has come to take over the duties of the canon because of the temporary illness. The Canon, wise in the ways of human nature, has been inclined to close one eye to the human weaknesses of his flock, which are not necessarily sinful. The Father, who is sincere but bigoted in his ideas, is determined to put his people under iron discipline which will dam all evil and all failings. To this end he forms a vigilante committee, which is composed of the town's best meddlers and immediately sets up a flood of excitement. He holds up his hands in horror at a little honest love making, a stroll in the moonlight, or a little kiss in the dark, all to the hearty amusement of the old Canon. Nora, who has been educated in England, returns about this time and the Father's new idiotic ideas stir up all her pagan fire and the sleeping manhood of the boyish schoolmaster, who is addicted to too much drink, and who she declares she will make a man of, one worthy to mount behind her and ride away with her on her white steed.

There is hearty comedy, hard laughter and dramatic suspense in "The White Steed" and as played by Whitford Kane and Gertrude Flynn, Ralph Cullinan, Grace Mills, Tom Bates, Gram O'Valley, Thomas P. Dillon, Farrell Felly, William Cragin, Elizabeth Malone, Eleanor Laurence and Patrick Henry, makes theater-going a new venture once again.

DONDERO PLEDGES TO KEEP UNITED STATES OUT OF WAR

In an open letter to residents of the 17th Michigan District, Representative George A. Dondero, of Royal Oak, pledges his utmost efforts to keep the United States out of war, and promises his opposition to the repeal of the embargo on arms. His letter:

To My Constituents: I have received hundreds of communications regarding the repeal of the arms embargo. Over 85% are opposed to its repeal. In order that the people of my district may know my position in this issue, this general letter is being forwarded to every newspaper circulating in the 17th Michigan District.

The Neutrality Act was passed to keep this country out of war. It had my support and vote, including the embargo on arms. Congress has now been called in special session to repeal the embargo on arms. The Act was passed almost unanimously by Congress after complete and thorough consideration, when war did not exist. It gave notice to the world in advance what our position would be in case war broke out. Now war has broken out and its repeal is asked. To change our position after war has been declared is in itself an unelectoral act.

In December 1914, after war had broken out in Europe, the Congress attempted to pass an embargo on arms. Great Britain at once protested to our American Ambassador in London that it would be a violation of international law and considered an unfriendly act toward England. Our State Department, through Secretary of State Bryan, concurred in the position taken by England and the entire matter was dropped. This is exactly the situation today.

Let us keep our men, money and munitions at home. Let our thoughts be of America first. I believe that our most desired aim can best be attained by holding fast to the position we took when war did not exist, namely by keeping the Neutrality Act as it is.

I am conscious of my responsibility to my constituents, my country and my God, whose guidance I humbly ask to maintain peace and security in our beloved America. I pledge my every effort to keep the United States out of war.

Sincerely yours,
George A. Dondero,
Member of Congress
17th Michigan District

APPROVE PLANS FOR HIGHWAY RESEARCH STUDY

Plans for cooperative highway research by the state highway department and Michigan State College were approved this week by the state administrative board. The state board of agriculture had previously approved an agreement under which the two agencies would join in research activities in college laboratories and class rooms.

The department is awaiting approval of office arrangements which would permit the newly created research division to function on the college grounds. Office space tentatively has been arranged in the Olds Engineering Building.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wageningen said the department would make available to the college all of its research findings and methods and give constructive application to class room work. The research division, under its newly appointed head, John W. Kushing of Battle Creek, intends doing research work in concrete and bituminous road construction in the field of physical chemistry.

New and miscellaneous methods of highway construction will be studied, the commissioner said, and researchers will endeavor to develop concrete pavement with a longer period of usefulness.

FORMER PASTORS JOIN IN CHURCH FESTIVAL BY WIRE

When the First Presbyterian Church at Racine, Wis., recently celebrated the centennial of its establishment, the voices of two former pastors, who now reside elsewhere, came over the telephone wires and joined with the members of their former congregation in the ceremonies. The clergymen are the Rev. Dr. C. S. Nickerson, now at Beverly, O., and the Rev. Dr. N. K. Tully, of Eugene, Ore. They spoke from their homes to their former parishioners, many of whom had not heard their voices since they left Racine. Dr. Nickerson and Dr. Tully were heard just as clearly as their parishioners were accustomed to hearing them from the Racine pulpit. Their voices were broadcast with hearing of the assembled congregation by means of a loud-speaker.
