OCC Faces Friday Strike

Classes began as scheduled Wednesday on the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community college, but could come to an abrupt halt as early as Friday.

The OCC students may face empty classrooms Friday if the Board of Trustees has not ratified a contract with the faculty by that time.

The OCC Faculty Association, a non-affiliated union, voted unanimously on Labor Day to ratify a proposed master labor contract that allegedly had been agreed to by both faculty and administrative bargaining teams on Sept. 2.

A strike would affect OCC's three campuses, Orchard Ridge in Farmington, Highland Lakes and Auburn Hills.

John Homeister, president of the OCCFA, said the faculty voted nearly unanimously (with one dissent) to begin withholding services on Friday if the board had failed to ratify the agreement by Thursday night.

A SPECIAL meeting was called by the board for Thursday.

The faculty alleges that the board has refused to accept the agreement because of provisions for wage increases. Homeister said that the one-year contract calls for a 4000 increase during the year for all faculty members and an additional $30 per month cost of living increase.

He emphasized that the written contract specifies the increases will not be paid until the wage-price freeze is lifted and that the increase will not be retroactive.

A SPOKESMAN for the administration said classes would begin as scheduled but would not indicate if the board had refused to accept the agreement.

Homeister said he had not had formal communication with the administration on the contract since the agreement was reached.

Bernard Fieger, attorney for the faculty, said unfair labor practice charges were filed in Oakland County against the board.

He said the charges were filed because the board "refuses to include in the writing agreement the agreed-upon salary schedule and because they haven't bargained in good faith."

The charges will go before the employment relations commission, he said.

C'ville Pact Up For Approval

Clarenceville teachers have ratified a new contract which includes a four per cent salary increase to begin after the wage-price freeze is thawed.

The ratification by the 180-member bargaining unit of the Clarenceville Education Association sends the teacher contracts to the board of education for formal decision at its meeting tonight. (Thursday).

Teachers, who reported to school Tuesday and ratified the contract then, have been without contracts since Aug. 31 when their old agreement expired.

Negotiations with the other three unions of school district employees - bus drivers, custodial and cafeteria, and secretarial workers - on salary matters are continuing. Details on the teachers contracts and the school board's decision will be found in this weekend's Observer newspapers.

Grass Seed Abundant

Natural Kentucky bluegrass from midwestern fields typically has about two million seeds to the pound. The new, elite bluegrasses now being offered have been selected not only for fine appearance and persistence, but for relatively quick sprouting and seedling vigor. These modern bluegrass varieties may run only a little over a million seeds to the pound, but in compensation each seed is bigger, huskier, bursting with stored food that gives the new seedling a vigorous start in life.
