The Morlok quadruplets sell the first 1939 tuberculosis Christmas Seal to Governor Luren D. Dickinson.

QUADRUPLETS HAVE NO FEAR OF TUBERCULOSIS

The four little Morlok sisters, the only identical quadruplets in the world, share the happy life of Michigan children who are protected on many fronts from the diseases which maim and destroy. But they are particularly fortunate in living in a state with so fine a record in fighting tuberculosis. Each has had a tuberculin test and one sister has been X-rayed. Tuberculosis will never be a hidden enemy to them.

With thanks of their own now that they have passed their ninth birthday, the quadruplets one and all are concerned about health. When other children report that they ate only a plain bread for breakfast, it worries them. They have fruit juice, oatmeal, toast and a big glass of milk. They alone consume 120 quarts of milk each month; they sleep 10 to 11 hours each night; they practice simple rules of hygiene; they are health conscious.

The Christmas Seal with the double-barred cross has taught health to thousands of Michigan children over the years. It is much less costly in life and dollars to plant health principles and tend their growth than to cure the sick. Health is more expensive than prevention. That is why a large share of the money raised by the sale of Christmas Seals is spent on health education for young and old and that is why the Morlok sisters, Edna A. Wilma D., Sarah C. and Helen D. urge everyone to buy and use the tuberculosis Christmas seals.
