"I'm afraid I haven't been useful like you, Louis." Then her fact lighted; her eyes became eager, and mated. "But I've tried to make a good job of raising Harvey Jr. wish you could see him." she adder softly.

"Let's see. How old is he now?"
"He has his mother's disposition. The treatment of the most prove trained him away from that, we said moodily. Then her work that he said moodily. Then her he goes to the university, then Harvard and Oxford. His teachers say he has a wonderful mind and will go a long way, if he has a chance. "Her voice trailed off wearly." I don't doubt it." Dr. LaMott said seriously, "with such a mother. But, you, Dolores, how have you been. Any more trouble with that large."

Take it here in my sanitarlum?" he pleaded.
"Oh, that would be lovely!" she said in pleased surprise. Then, thoughtfully: "I have some things I must attend to first—" "I'd don't want to frighter you, but if you drive back to Yuma—" His voice was infinitely tender as he bent over her. "Let me take care of you, Dolores," he begged. "Give me that much." Her eyes opened as though waking from a dream, and, aghast, he saw a soul in torment! The next instant the veil was drawn.

Again the shrill siren of the ambulance sounded and, once more, Dr. LaMott was called to the receiving room. The nurse pushed back tangled hair from a white face and he looked into Dolores' eyes.

Her lips were moving, but no sound came as he benti over her. She realized it and laid her finger in his lips, with a weak, negative FOR RENT—Three room apart ment with bath 32818 Grand River 35-1-

"Of course, Dr. LaMott," said the investigator from the insurance company, "we're not doubting your report. Her death was apparently, accidental; all the cyewitnesses agree on that point. But—if she had been killed the day before, we would have saved thirty thousand dollars because the money to cover her past due premium was wired from this town about an hour before he was struck. And here's another strange thing. The finance companies had taken every thing she had. Cars, real estate, furniture even her furs were movinged.
"And the like to know it where did also get the money for the premium?"
"Is your company going to contest the claim?" asked Dr. LaMott quietly.
"No—our evidence would seem nothing infore than a confidence to a jury."
