MRS. WORSFOLD HONORED BY O.E.S. AT LUNCHEON

A very delightful event of the week was the surprise party held Tuesday afternoon at Botsford Inn by officers of Farmington Chapter No. 239, O.E.S., honoring their worthy matron, Mrs. Ida Worsfold.

A delicious luncheon was served at one o'clock in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion.

After the luncheon Hazel Diamond, associate matron, paid a lovely tribute, expressing the high regard and affection of the officers for their Worthy Matron, and for her year of friendship and service. Florence Ramsey, blue West, Elsie Westfall and Ella Darling all made brief but appropriate remarks, supplementing the words of the Associate Matron. Mrs. Worsfold responded and expressed her sincere thanks and gratitude for such a lovely party, and such a complete surprise. She expressed thanks for the friendship, love and loyalty of her officers and remarked for once in her life it was just difficult to talk.

The reminder of the afternoon was spent in making bridge prizes being won by Mae West, Elaine Westfall and Florence Ramsey. All voted the party a huge success and complimented Ella Darling, who had planned many weeks in advance for the delightful afternoon. Nineteen guests were present.

HIGHWAY DEPT. PREPARES FOR WINTER SEASON

Blitzkrieg methods, combining speed with power, will be used by the state highway department in its annual battle to keep Michigan's highways free from ice and snow this winter. It was revealed this week by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner.

Already orders have been issued directing engineers to complete pressing preparations for winter's invasion as rapidly as possible. Said Van Wagoner: "Speed is all important in our fight to keep the highways open 365 days a year. Speed in getting on the job—then speed plows throw the snow to the outer highway limits instead of merely pushing it on to the shoulders means uninterrupted traffic flow in all except the heaviest of storms."

Organization, Van Wagoner pointed out, is tremendously important for snow removal. "Again," he said, "we must have speed in reporting trouble, and speed in getting on the job. Storm reporters at gas stations and similar locations where phones are available day and night, plus a full time watch at maintenance garages and headquarters, must be provided to keep our highways as near as possible on a basis of summer conditions, including comfort and safety."

When a storm is feared, the commissioner explained a night patrol system is put into action. Advance plans must be made for division of work among the crews—during severe storms, particularly, men must be given rest. And there is less casual emergency labor available than in the past, according to district engineers.

While snow removal remains the big job of the highway department in keeping northern Michigan roads open, ice control has become the chief source of trouble in the southern part of the state.

"So far as the mechanics of winter maintenance are concerned," Van Wagoner stated, "we have the special problem of heavy snow in the Upper Peninsula. We talk about our state-wide program of snow removal, but strictly speaking it is only in northern Michigan that snow removal is our principal problem."

In the Upper Peninsula last year, we spent about 65 per cent of our winter maintenance funds for snow removal, about 10 per cent for snow fence and about 25 per cent for ice control."

In the Grand Rapids district it was shown that percentages ran 45 for snow removal, nine for snow fence, and 46 for ice control. Working still further south into the Detroit area it was found the costs ran 31 per cent for snow removal, six per cent for snow fence and 62 per cent for ice control.

"Ice control," according to special instructions issued by district engineers by Van Wagoner, "means the application of quick action emergency measures to counteract slippery conditions as early as possible—these measures to be followed by the complete removal of ice from all pavements as soon as practical after skid control has been established. It is in a position to carry out these instructions, all district crews have been ordered to inspect and put all equipment in working order previous to the first emergency, store stock piles of sand, clevers or other abrasives at convenient locations and arrange for rental shovels or loaders as early as possible."
