

CIVIL SERVICE
ANNOUNCES EXAMS
FOR DEFENSE JOBS

The Civil Service Commission announced recently that it would fill important administrative positions in Defense and other Government agencies through competitive examination procedure. Among the positions for which registers will be established are: Executive Officer, $8,000 a year; Chief Administrative Officer, $6,500; Principal Administrative Officer, $5,600; Senior Administrative Officer, $4,600; and Administrative Officer, $3,800 a year. Persons appointed will serve as executives in a Federal agency or division thereof. Extensive and highly responsible administrative experience acquired either in public or private employment is required, the amount of experience, and degree of responsibility varying with the grade of the position. Unusually high capabilities are necessary. It is useless to apply if you cannot meet the high standard of requirements shown in the announcement. Applicants will not take a written test but will be rated on their qualifications as shown by their applications, subject to collaboration. Applications must be filed with the Commission's Washington office by July 21, 1941.

Another examination just announced by the Commission is for country coordinators to carry out the administration of the National Poultry Improvement Plan. The positions are in the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture, and pay $3,500 a year. A four-year course with included courses in poultry husbandry and experience in administering or supervising organized poultry improvement work are necessary. For this examination applications must be filed not later than August 1, 1941.

The Commission also announced new examinations with revised requirements for persons qualified in all branches of naval architecture and marine engineering. The salaries for such positions range from $2,500 to $3,500 a year. Persons who were not placed on employment registers as a result of the previous examinations for these positions, which closed June 20, 1941, are urged to apply at once under the terms of the new announcement. Applications will be accepted until June 20, 1942. College study in naval architecture or marine engineering, and professional experience in this work are ordinarily required, however, provision is made for the substitution of additional experience for education, and for the substitution of shipyard experience for the prescribed professional architectural or engineering experience.

Full information as to the requirements for these examinations, and application forms, may be obtained from the section of the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

AT THE REDFORD THEATER

Great American Broadcast

That Alice Faye is popular with fellow actors as well as the public was attested by the "Standing Room Only" sign that was placed on the door of Stage 15 of the 20th Century-Fox studio where Alice sang her numbers from "The Great American Broadcast," in which she co-stars with John Payne, Jack Oakie and Cesar Romero. Each time the blonde songstress was scheduled to "give out" with a bit of melody, both the stars and the studio staff made a bee-line for Stage 15.

The words and lyrics of her numbers written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren seemed to "give out" the Great American Broadcast, coming Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, to the Redford Theater, meet with the high Gordon and Warren standard. There was one element, however, which almost proved a stumbling block.

It is further ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy hereof, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing, in the Farmington Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County, and that prominent cause a copy of this notice be served personally on each party by mail, return receipt demanded, to each of the known heirs at law, legatees and devisees at their last known place of address at least ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Arthur E. Moore, Judge of Probate.

Parole Board Rules Wife, Husband Must Live Apart

"Whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder . . . By its own practice and admission, the district parole board of Washington does not feel bound by this Biblical injunction. One of its parolees was released from the Lorton reformatory recently and told she would be thrown into prison again for a year if she sees or speaks to her husband within the next 12 months.

In June, 1939, Charles R. Simms, 33, and his wife, Mary, 22, were arrested and indicted on narcotic charges. They pleaded guilty and threw themselves upon the mercy of the court. Simms was given six months to a year and his wife was sentenced to one to two years. After serving his full term Simms was released last May. Mary served a little over a year when she was paroled in August.

Simms was waiting outside the gates of Lorton reformatory when they swung open to release his wife whom he had not seen for a year. "I can't see you, Charles," she wept, as he rushed up to embrace her. "I can't go back with you. I'm afraid to talk with you. I don't want to come back here for another year behind bars."

Charles went back to his home full of bitterness against the kind of justice which continues to exact punishment after the prisoner has served his term in jail. Mary took an apartment a block away in desperation. Charles appealed for help to the parish priest who had married them a short time before they got into trouble.

Birds as Bait Many inducements have been used by interior decorators and rental agents to induce the apartment hunter to sign on the dotted line, but according to Frank Fennell, renting manager of Essex house, nothing has been quite as alluring in this respect as the lure of canaries that sing merrily in the "show apartments" at Essex house. The birds, adding a cheery note to the day, are said to be instrumental in helping to rent the suites once the prospective lessee has laid eyes on the little creatures. Even though "giving the guests the bird" is the last thing that any one would expect dapper Mr. Fennell of doing, that is what he really does, for the canaries go with the apartments.

Festival at Mackinac Island Begins July 25

In preparation for the Mackinac Island Festival July 25-26-27, an Indian Village started to rise this week on Windemere Point, where the Red Men will hold forth during the gala event which promises to rival New Orleans' Mardi Gras and Pasadena's Tournament of Roses.

Nearly one hundred Chippewas and Ojibwas from various parts of the upper and lower peninsula converged yesterday on this "village of America" to set up wigwams, teepees, handicraft operations and at the same time rehearse their parts in the colorful pageantry that will feature the Festival.

For nearly two weeks prior to their arrival the Indians worked in the woods skinning trees to bring with them bales of birch bark to be used in building the village. Those Indians who cannot be accommodated in the Village will be housed in camp style in Fort Mackinac itself.

When not employed in the tableau, the Red Men will be engaged in Indiancraft work. Arrangements have been made for visitors to participate in the work or learn Indiancraft.

Joining with the Indians in the preparatory work are the 555 year-round residents of the Island all of whom will be garbed in the costumes of 150 years ago to help bring to life the Festival's theme—"Old Mackinac Lives Again."

The Festival committee, of which Gov. Murray D. VanWagoner is honorary chairman, this week will appoint a number of the townspeople to impersonate celebrities of the Island in years gone by.

Joseph H. Thompson of Ypsilanti general chairman, announces that there will be no admission to any feature of the Festival. It is to be entirely free to the public. At the same time he repeats the assurance that although the Mackinac area expects to be host to the greatest crowds in its history, there will be no deviation from normal accommodation prices on the Island.
