AT THE REDFORD THEATER

The greatest comedy in motion picture history—great because it departs completely from the beaten track, because it possesses hilarious imagination and a background of deep emotion, because its actors and the characters they play are magnificent and memorable—opens Friday at the Redford Theater. The film is Columbia's sensational "Here Comes Mr. Jordan."

the very beginning; with this we heartily concur.
Mr. Montgomery appears as a chap named Joe, who has an unscrupulous ambition. His efforts to attain that ambition are aided by sympathetic, ever-ready help from Clyde, a character delightfully real when portrayed by Actor Claude Rains. James Gleason contributes a stand-out comedy performance, greater in effect than even his magnificent work in "Meet John Doe," while Edward Everett Horton is similarly valuable as a somewhat impatient fuddy-duddy, of the type he has made a by-word on the screen.
Lovely Evelyn Keyes, in the romantic lead, proves herself an actress of remarkable ability heading for immediate stardom.
Alexander Hall's polished direction, which captures every possibility for laughter and the refreshing and delightful screen play by Sidney Buchman and Seton I. Miller are as important to the final overwhelming effect of "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" as are the performances of its superb cast, Harry Segall penned the original screen play, "Heaven Can Wait," upon which the flawless new film is based. Everett Riskin produced "Here Comes Mr. Jordan."

Robert Montgomery, in one of the most unusual roles ever brought to the screen, is superbly starred in the amazingly amusing new comedy. Appearing in major support are Claude Rains, Evelyn Keyes, James Gleason, Rita John, Edward Everett Horton and John Emery. The film was directed by Alexander Hall, from a screen play by Sidney Buchman and Seton I. Miller.

"Here Comes Mr. Jordan" is a motion picture filled with laughter, with romance and thrills. Its hilarity is predicated upon a situation which, while it bears retelling now and for years to come, should really be seen to be fully appreciated. The Redford Theater, in presenting the surprising, sensational screen story, urges its patrons to obtain the fullest enjoyment of the film by seeing it from
