The Horse and Buggy Doctor, by Arthur E. Hertzler, M. D. An old-fashioned country doctor writes a wise and witty account of his career in this entertaining best-seller. He reviews the days when his practice covered many miles of Kansas prairie, and transportation was limited to the horse and buggy; his period of study abroad under great German doctors; the building of his own hospital, a dream come true. But the most interesting features of the book are the author's humorous sympathetic philosophy, and his shrewd analyses of the many people he has treated.

Charley Manning, by Elizabeth Corbett. The author of "Young Mrs. Melgs" adds to her fame as a portraitist of Wisconsin and Illinois with this story of Charley Manning, typical man of the world of the 1880's, and most talked about citizen in a thriving Midwestern community. The talk even included scandalous rumors to make the ladies of Main Street shake their heads, for Charley was something of a gay dog, but he fell properly in love at last, and what happened then forms the chief plot of Miss Corbett's delightful novel.

Handbook for the Curious, by Paul Griswold Howes. The curator of Natural History at the Bruce Museum answers in this book the questions he is most frequently asked by people curious about the odd and interesting living things around them. Worms, starfish, crabs, insects, snakes, fish, and toads are among the species described, and Mr. Howes is careful not to bore the reader with too many details. He tells merely the creature's name, to what group it belongs, a few facts regarding its activities, and whether it is harmful or beneficial. The species he writes about are in general native to the United States, though several beyond this range are included. Many photographs illustrate the book.

Shudders and Thrills, the Second Oppenheim Omnibus. This volume includes five of E. Phillips Oppenheim's most exciting novels, stories of thrilling adventure in pre-war England and the Riviera. Among the characters are Scotland Yard officials, beautiful women in distress, clever, engaging criminals, all the types familiar to Oppenheim readers. The fast-moving plots conceal mystery and international intrigue.

HENDERSON TELLS OF RUBBER SHORTAGE

Price Administrator Leon Henderson is shown speaking center as he told members of the Senate committee investigating the defense program, "There is not one pound of crude rubber or retreading rubber available for automobile tires for civilians for the next two years." The committee, on left, heard Henderson as he painted a gloomy picture of what American motorists can expect in the next two years.

DOROTHY'S DIARY

MONDAY: George's sister Enid and husband Charles write that they will be with us this weekend. Begin extensive housecleaning and menu-planning, since Enid is inclined to be fussy. Won't have to worry about guest room; since it was done over in preparation for the visit Aunt Emma never made.

TUESDAY: create set of different sized bottles to hold leftovers in ice box, which will open Enid's eyes by simple process of painting covers of pickle and mayonnaise jars bright red (to match kitchen trimmings), and adding my monogram in white.

WEDNESDAY: continue camp-medicine cabinet in bathroom with two new tooth-brushes, sample sizes of tooth-paste, face powder, cold cream, vanishing cream, etc., all the things guests (even fuzzy ones) are apt to forget when packing.

THURSDAY: am given recipe by Nona to use during the week-end, and only hope I can get Canadian or American crab-meat, instead of Japanese!

CRAB-MEAT FILLING FOR PATTY SHELLS (serves four)
Make one and a half cups white sauce, seasoned with 1/2 tsp dry mustard, and 1/4 tsp Worcester shire sauce. Add 1 green pepper, chopped very fine, and 2 tsp chopped chives. Add 1 can crab-meat, and blend well. Fill patty shells, and garnish top of each one with pimento slices.

FRIDAY: decide to economize on crab-meat recipe by using bread instead of patty shells. Do this by cutting squares of day-old bread about two inches thick, hollowing out center, and toasting golden brown in oven.

HINTS FOR HOME-MAKERS

Dishes and pans in which eggs have been cooked or served will wash more easily if soaked first in cold water. Hot-water causes eggs to harden and stick to the dish.

Try this for delicious salad dressing. Drain off some of the super-syrup from glassed peaches, pears or any fruit and use it to thin prepared mayonnaise.

Never use silver flatware or serving dishes on a rubber drain mat, even for a short time. Chemical reaction tends to tarnish the silver.

THE VICTORY GARDEN IV Time And Depth For Planting

Planting dates for vegetables vary, but there are roughly two classifications for these crops. Seeds of one type are very hardy, and include peas, cabbage, radishes, turnips, spinach, onions, carrots, and beets; they may be put in as soon as the earth can be worked. The planting period lasts from the end of March through April, but the seeds should be in before May.

Soft-hardy vegetables, such as cucumbers, squash, peppers, tomatoes, and egg plants should be put in some time between the end of May and the first two weeks in June. Planting time for sweet corn comes about the end of April, and lasts until the end of May. Some gardeners plant it as late as July the first but that is certainly the deadline. Cantaloupe is another late crop, and should be sown between the middle and the end of May. A second planting of beets and carrots for fall use may be made as late as July 25.

DEPTH OF PLANTING. One of the mistakes most often made by amateur gardeners is sowing seeds too deeply, particularly the very small ones. If put too far in the ground, they haven't the strength to reach the surface; seeds should be covered by just enough moist earth to permit germination. Here is a table of approximate planting depths that may help you.

- 1/8 to 1/4 inch: celery, parsley.
 - 1/2 to 5/8 inch: broccoli, spinach, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, peppers, radishes, turnips, lettuce, onions.
 - 1 to 1 1/2 inches: asparagus, beets, Swiss chard, cucumbers, muskmelon.
 - 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 inches: pumpkin, spinach, squash.
 - 1 3/4 to 2 1/2 inches: peas, beans, sweet corn.
- Next week's Victory Garden article will be devoted to flowers in the home garden.
