Farm land does a real crop producing job when the soil receives adequate nourishment.

Halt Michigan Soil Depletion

CHICAGO.—In spite of treading improvements in farming methods and machinery in the past half century, crop yields have failed to keep pace with scientific progress and soil fertility has steadily declined, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Typical of the situation throughout the Middle West, the statement quotes a recent bulletin by Dr. C. E. Millar, head of the soils department of the Michigan State College, who declared:

"The fertility of our soils has been greatly depleted as measured by crop yields in the last 60 years. In the case of a few crops such as potatoes and wheat, some increase in yield is shown, but on the whole, the average yields of the most generally known crops are about the same as they were more than a half-century ago."

"This situation is astounding when one considers all the improvements in farming which should have resulted in increased yields of crops. 'All Americans' are concerned

'PLOW DOWN' METHOD HELPS PLANT FOOD BOOST CROP OUTPUT

More Bushels of Corn an Acre Plus Higher Fertility Are the Result.

CHICAGO.—How "plowing down" fertilizer before planting time has increased corn yields from 12 to 21 bushels per acre, was revealed in farm tests in which comparisons were made with results obtained from applying plant food in the row or broadcasting it on the surface.

Demonstrations on the farm of Ewald Kahle, of Bremer County, Iowa, were typical of results recorded. On one plot Kahle used 200 pounds per acre of 3-14-8 in a planter attachment and secured a yield of 78.9 bushels per acre.

On another plot he plowed under 400 pounds per acre of 10-4-4 fertilizer, prior to planting. Then he applied 200 pounds of 3-14-8 in the row in a manner similar to the first plot. From this treatment he harvested a yield of 100.1 bushels per acre, or 21 bushels more than from the row application alone.

On the farm of Floyd Gerkin of Oelwein, Iowa, a fertilizer treatment of 300 pounds of 10-4-4 per acre, plowed down before planting time, yielded corn at the rate of 90 bushels per acre, whereas 115 pounds of 3-12-12 applied in the row produced 78 bushels.

That "plow-down" methods are profitable even on highly fertile land was indicated by results of a test in Woodbury County. Four hundred pounds of 10-4-4 were broadcast and then plowed under in the latter part of April. Corn was planted about the first of June. This plot yielded 113.2 bushels per acre. An unplowed plot on similar soil yielded 94 bushels. This is an increase of 18.2 bushels per acre was obtained from the fertilizer treatment.

"The results of the foregoing tests as well as others conducted through out the corn belt," says an agricultural report, "indicate that this 'plow-down' method of fertilization not only pays for itself but yields a good profit besides. Moreover, such treatment adds importantly to the fertility level of the entire field and bequeaths residual benefits that add to the yield of crops that follow."

HILARIOUS COMEDY RETURNS TO DETROIT THEATRE

"My Sister Ellen," the hilarious comedy hit, now in its second year in New York, will play a return engagement in Detroit, at the Shubert-Lafayette Theatre starting Sunday evening, March 15th. The engagement is to be for an indefinite length. Popular prices will be in effect for the entire run.

The play relates the troubles of two sisters, who hail from Columbus, Ohio. They go to New York where they settle in a basement apartment in the Greenwich Village section. One is intent on a stage career, while the other has ambitions as an authoress. Their trials and tribulations, affairs of the heart, and ultimate success, were related by Ruth McKenney in a series of stories in "The New Yorker". It was adapted for the stage by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov.

At present there are three companies of "My Sister Ellen" on tour. One is in New York, where it celebrated its 500th performance last week; another is touring the West coast, a third is playing the cities in the east. The fourth company, under the direction of Frank McCoy, is to be presented in Detroit for a run.

In the cast of the Detroit company will be found such noted players of stage and screen fame as Ethel Britton, Robert Hardy, Mary Elliott, Arthur Jarrett, Betty Van Dyke, Randolph Preston, Robert Alexander Cochrane, Ruth Conley, Robert Bernard, Mary Power, Dean Norton, King Donovan, John Grogan and Royal Raymond.

The presentation of "My Sister Ellen" in Detroit at the Shubert-Lafayette is somewhat of an innovation insofar as admission prices are concerned. It is the very first time that the play has been offered to the public at popular prices, and it marks a return to the "good-old-days" of theatre going, when the prices were in reach of everyone's pocketbook. The best seats for all the evening performances, including Sunday, will be available at $1.10, others will be 75c and 50c. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday. Prices for the former will be 25c and 50c and for Saturday 50c and 75c.
