SPRING FEVER?

Yup, looks as though Spring is really here. You can see signs of it all over.

"Ho-hum."

See that fellow over there by the window, the boy with the brush cut? He's the one that just yawned. I've been watching him for the last fifteen minutes; can't seem to settle down myself, and he hasn't sat still yet.

First he looks out the window. This only increases his discontent, so he looks around the room to see who is doing what. Everyone seems pretty busy, so he gets up and sharpens his pencil. He manages to break the point two or three times, but he finally gets back to his seat. Now he's looking out the window again. I'll bet he's watching those sparrows on the window ledge.

Look at those birds; they hop up and down sunning themselves without a care in the world. The smallest one seems to be the bravest of the lot. He hops right up close to the window and stares in. I'll bet he's thinking "what a bunch of dopes those creatures are, sitting in a stuffy ole' room while all nature's singing and prancing about, glorifying in this beautiful day."

He flew away. Oh, well, I guess he just wanted to show off. Just because he hasn't any homework or any classes to prepare for, he feels pretty good.

There goes the bell. Hot dog! lunch time! Now I'll get to see if it's as nice outside as it seems from the inside.

Gee, look at those little kids. They always have fun. I wonder if that's all those boys do, play marbles all the time.

I remember when I used to play. I had a cigar box with a hole in the top, and each player tried to drop his marble in. If he succeeded then I gave him two, but, if he missed, then I took the one that didn't go in.

Well, business was pretty good 'till someone discovered that only very small ones would fit. Oh, well, I didn't want their marbles anyway, and you have to get your first black eye sometime.

As I was saying, you can just smell the spring.

There are some little girls playing high water, low water, and even a few playing jacks.

What's that selection from the poem we read in English the other day? "In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." Anyway, Tom Brewster is beating up Dickey Lowell because he wouldn't give Sally Thomas his apple core, and she asked for it first, too.

There's Billy Brown carrying Sarah's books.

"Ah, that thou couldst know thy joy
Ere it passes, barefoot boy."

All we need now, to make the scene complete, are some boys playing handball against the school wall.

There goes the first bell, I'll have to whip if I don't want to be late; but, before I cut, let me give you some advice:

"Experience may be the best teacher
But to profit by someone else's is cheaper."

If you get all A's you may be able to indulge in Spring Fever, but otherwise keep that nose to the grindstone it's bone, so don't worry about wearing it down.

A runner dosen't slow down in the last lap of a race—just the opposite: he puts forth his best effort.

Remember, "There's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip."—drip.

Spring Vacation Begins March 27

"School's out! School's out! Teacher's let the monkeys out!" or so the saying goes. Because everybody is catching either annual spring fever or the measles the School Board has announced spring vacation as extending from March 27 to April 6. Let's hope this Easter vacation will be full of good times and good weather.

Captains Elected To Head '42-'43 Teams

Farmington High School's championship football and basketball teams met this last week to choose their captains for next year. Dick Pauline was chosen to succeed Bob Russell, this year's basketball captain. In football there was such a close race between Bill Fournier and Dave Sullivan that both boys were awarded a co-captaincy.

Student Council Holds "Girls Pay All Dance"

The third in a series of Saturday night record dances was given in the gym last Saturday—only this time there was a difference in the way the dance was held. Instead of the boys having to pay the girls' way to the dance, the girls had to pay the boys', which made it very easy on the boys' pocketbooks. As the Student Council have purchased some new records, they furnished a very pleasant evening of dancing. The dance started at eight o'clock and ended at eleven.

Since quite a few boys and girls have the measles, the dance crowd was smaller than usual.

St. Patrick's Day Tea Given For Faculty

A St. Patrick's Day tea was given for the high school faculty by the Homemaking II girls. The centerpiece for the table was a green hat and the other decorations were green. Bernadine Trapp poured. The other hostesses were June Vance, Mary McGregor and Nancy Lee Moore. Nancy was also in charge of decorations. The waitresses were Joyce Habermehl, and June Humphrey.

The guests enjoyed themselves so much that the comment, "We ought to do this more often" was heard several times.

Baseball Nine Gets Underway

Coach Bob Hutton called together, for the first time this year, his league championship baseball team. Practically the same team that finished last season will be back again, with the exception of the battery. Because of the inclement weather the boys are loosening up in the gym.

Faculty Guidance Group Meets With Director

The General Guidance Committee held its fifth meeting with Mr. Carl Horn, State Vocational Director, Tuesday, March 17. The report of the Record Committee was read by Miss Goodman, chairman, and discussed by the group. This report concerned the type of information that ought to be available on each child enrolled. Next meeting the members of the General Committee will make recommendations concerning the type of material that should go into every child's permanent record folder.

Members of the General Guidance Committee are Miss Isabel Steele, B. E. Oliver, Miss Helen Thomas, F. W. Ryan, E. V. Ayres, O. E. Dunckel, Robert Chapman, Miss Betty Goodman, R. J. Stewart, and Miss Marion Dammon.

MEASLES ! ! !

An epidemic of three-day measles has taken quite a number of students from school in the last few months.

One of the best records has been compiled by the F.H.S. Physics Class. It has a record of 9 cases out of 16 students. Those who have had this three-day pest are in the following order: Dan Ryan, Charlie Sullivan, Paul Mench, Art MacCulloch, Gordon MacKay, Jack Simpson, Bob Ham, Jack Samuelson, and Bill Carpenter.

Any More?

'TIS SAID

'Tis said in Economics class on March 17, that Mr. Hutton was wondering (out loud) what the Irish had done to deserve a special day. After a moment's thought Dan Ryan popped up with, "Well, gee whiz, if it weren't for the Irish, where would all those tall stories come from?" After hearing a few of Dan'l's, we're beginning to wonder.

Parting is such sweet sorrow—or something. Anyhow 'twas with regrets the Homemaking gals said goodbye to Mrs. Tyson, who left Friday, March 20, to put all her teaching to practice in a home of her own. She will be replaced by Mrs. Robert Chapman.

All the lads and lassies who have so far evaded the measles are beginning to wail, "Oh, what if I have 'em during spring vacation!

These strong March winds are doing gruesome things to most of the girls' hairdos. Half of them look like a flock of Fiji Islanders when they get to school.

'Tis spring (according to the calendar) and a student's fancy turns lightly to spring vacation—a whole week with nothing to do but enjoy himself. Then back to school to get a bit of rest.

JUNIOR HIGH NOTES

When the students in the eighth grade become of age, they are sure to make good upstanding American citizens because by that time if they keep on with the studying they have been doing, they will know about all there is to know concerning our government. At present they are studying the beginning of the political parties and their histories. They have made charts of the typical offices of the three branches of the U.S. government; local, state and national.

In seventh grade geography they are studying the Great Lakes industrial and manufacturing regions.

The eighth grade has finished it's basketball season and is proud to announce that "they won every game."

Here and There With Third Graders

The third graders have many arithmetic papers on the bulletin board this week. They are learning or rather have learned, how to divide leaving a remainder. The Bluebird reading class began their new books entitled "If I Were Going". They have already completed about five books. Even though these pupils are busy with many other activities, they still keep up with their library reading. In order that Nature may have a nice spring, as well as we, the third grade has made a set of "reminders" and put them on the board. These "reminders" help us recall that we should "keep off the grass and give it a chance to grow" and many other tips that we should remember.

Like everyone else we are

to conserve materials for the war effort!

HOG BRISTLES for paint brushes (largely imported from China) . . . tungsten (most of our supply comes over the Burma Road) . . . rope (Manila hemp) and burlap: These are just a few of the hard-to-get items that are now on the restricted list of materials needed for the war effort. Few people realize how long that list now is. It includes—in addition to such well-known things as rubber and copper and aluminum—many steel alloys (containing manganese, chromium, molybdenum, nickel, cobalt), chlorine, tin, antimony, magnesium, cadmium, mercury, zinc. There are dozens of other critical materials.

Here in the Edison Company, we are pursuing a policy of "making things do" . . . and of using substitutes wherever possible. We formerly built our farm lines of aluminum. When the shortage in aluminum developed over a year ago, we switched to copper. Now that copper is scarce, line extensions can be made only on government priority orders. So it goes all along the list.

We are using malleable iron castings instead of bronze, steel rods instead of brass on circuit breaker repair work. In our meter boxes, the "sleeving" on test leads is made of varnished cambric instead of rubber. Even in major plant additions, we are making numerous design changes necessitated by shortage of critical materials. These are a few of the ways we are cooperating with the nation's war effort.

THE DETROIT EDISON COMPANY
