need any sugar at all. We do need the food energy that sugar gives us. And the same energy can be obtained from cereals, bread, potatoes, fats and other familiar starch foods, rich in carbohydrates.

Straps and honey may be used instead of sugar in baking. Cakes can get along without frosting, and milk has its own sugar.

Corn, carrots and sweet potatoes are vegetables rich in their own sugar.

Onions and puddings need little sugar; salads practically no sugar. And literally tons of sugar are wasted by Americans daily because they do not stir thoroughly their cup of coffee or tea!

Speaking of transportation, have you bought your winter coat supply yet and have you joined an "auto club"?

The two things are not related. Coal is shipped by railroad, and it accounts for one-fourth of the fuel traffic of the nation.

Michigan automobile plants, fast being converted to war production, are beginning to turn out an increasing amount of tanks and bombers and other machinings of death. Furthermore, these finished machines require thousands of parts which in turn, require transportation in thousands of freight cars.

By next fall and winter, two things will probably take place:

One is a critical congestion of railroad transportation, just as shipping today is faced with a critical shortage. Every ton of coal bought today for delivery this spring and summer will free railroad cars next fall and winter for rush shipment of tanks and guns and shells and will ease any threat of a coal shortage.

A plane for MacArthur's men, a tank to shove the Germans back to Berlin, a gun to blast the Japs out of Manila — will NOT be held up in order to ship coal for your home. Want to help MacArthur? Then order your coal TODAY!

Second coming of war transportation importance is an inevitable depletion of rubber tires. How long will your present tires last? There's the rub.

Governor Murray D. Van Wageningen has summoned mayors of some 34 leading cities of Michigan to consider adoption of the "Pontiac Plan" (explained in this column last week).

Instead of the wasteful spectacle of four or five automobiles heading in the same direction at the same time, each with an empty back seat, one car might do the job. Traffic would be reduced, parking problems eased, many lives saved — all because the Japs seized rubber plantations in Malaya, 10,000 miles away!

"Drive slower and speed victory" may be another 1942 war slogan. These are small sacrifices for us to make.

practically every product of the cotton textile industry; put a temporary ceiling over oil and gas to war; varnishes; and a permanent cap on food or silk waste, now used only for military purposes.

Moving into still another phase of civil life, the War Production Board ordered that military and essential needs be given preference in installation of telephones.

Operators of the country's biggest network estimated the restrictions would result in denial of about 200,000 applications for main-line residential service this year.

Sewing-Machine Output to Step UPB also called a halt to production of sewing machines June 15, with limited output in the meantime; shut off metals, cork and plastics for noncommercial fishing tackle; restricted deliveries of iron and steel products to orders with high production ratings. Instructed the cotton textile industry to convert a large part of its capacity from such civilian products as clothing fabric to military items like bag osanburg and bag sheeting; directed a quick end to manufacture of high production ratings (except combines) requiring rubber tires; reduced the amount of elastic fabric that may be used in foundation garments; extended limitations on delivery of natural and mixed gas into parts of six states; and required transportation in motor fuel because it is a necessary ingredient of synthetic rubber.

Materials needed for repairs to air conditioning and refrigeration equipment were granted high preference ratings. Preference ratings were also used to make sure that machinery is kept in good running order to meet the demands for duty products.

Meanwhile, WPB delved into another source for nickel, urgently needed for armor plate and other components of fighting machines. Under a new order, all scrap containing nickel is to be segregated, and melted only for authorized uses.

16,000 Dentists Sought Now under the new War Manpower Commission, the Procurement and Assignment Service for Physicians, Dentists, and Veterinarians sent out a questionnaire designed to find 16,000 physicians and 3,000 dentists who can be called to duty with the Armed Services this year without disrupting care of the public's health.

AT THE REDFORD THEATER

At long last the dramatization of Richard Jewell's best-selling novel, "How Green Was My Valley" is brought to the screen by 20th Century-Fox under the able productive genius of Darryl F. Zanuck. Here is the film that has been eagerly awaited and from the accounts of preview audiences it promises to fulfill the expectations of the most discriminating motion picture fan.

The keynote of this production which is due to open Friday at the Redford Theater is the fidelity of its portrayal to the novel of the same name. Lulu against the colorful background of a Welsh mining village, "How Green Was My Valley" brings to life the dynamic characters who captivated the over five million people who read the

Seen through the eyes of the youngest member of the family, the play traces the threads of life of the Morgan family over a period of years, revealing their joys and sorrows. It's the brave story of a family never conquered, not by armed men or hardship, hunger or hate — nor by the turbulent years that stole the greenness from their Valley.

Walter Pidgeon, cast as Mr. Griffith, the minister, is said to cap his career with a splendid performance. Beautiful Maureen O'Hara portrays Angharad, the lovely Morgan daughter, who captivates the pastor. Anna Lee in the role of Bronwen is modest and lovable — the epitome of womanhood, while Donald Crisp as Gwilym Morgan, the father, is firm yet kind.

It's a patriotic duty to help keep telephone lines clear so that important war messages will not be delayed. Even though your line may not be needed for war calls, a "traffic jam" of calls might tie up a central office, stopping emergency messages from getting through. And scarcity of war material makes it impossible for us to add to central office capacity as fully as we should like to do.

Keeping telephone conversations short will help. We suggest that you know beforehand what you want to say; speak distinctly so you won't have to repeat, and do not hold the line merely to talk of trivial things.

In so far as material shortages permit, we shall continue to provide the best service possible, and we look forward to the day when we can meet all requests as in the past. But now, and for the duration, our needs come first.

KEEP THESE POINTS IN MIND

You can help vital war messages go through if you—

- Make telephone conversations short
- Avoid calls to 711; 2 to 4 P. M.
- Be certain you have the right number
- Answer promptly when your telephone rings
