THE MODERN CHALLENGE TO YOUTH

In June thousands of young men and women across the country will be graduated from high school. They are a casual, fun-loving lot, the girls with brilliantly-painted fingernails and mouths to match, the boys with gaudy socks and the newest dance steps. "A bunch of irresponsible well-to-do youngsters," Grandpa would say. Yes, they appear carefree and thoughtless, but peel off the veneer and you will find them serious and bewildered. "Where do we go now?" and "What comes next?" they are asking. They realize that they are facing life as adults in one of the most abnormal periods the world has known, but they won't admit that it has set them thinking. It is not so much the present conditions—the war—as it is what will follow the war, that is so puzzling. To plan for a future as unstable and indefinite as the next five or ten years is a problem to set anyone back on his heels.

The boys are wondering how soon they will be drafted. Will it be worthwhile to attend college for a year or two before entering the army? If they wait until the war is over to go on to school, think how long it will be before they are prepared for self support. If they should go directly to college, they might be graduated in the midst of a depression. They will have spent the years of prosperity in preparation, and when they are ready there will be no positions available. Perhaps the depression will come before they have finished college and many will be forced to drop out. Maybe it would be best to work for a year, save all that's possible, and then go on to school. But again, if they start immediately, they may be able to finish college and find a position before the depression comes.

Many will abandon thoughts of higher education to take part in defense work. But after the war there will be an over-supply of draftsmen and tool and die makers when the defense plants close down. Thousands of these young men used to high wages, and many having acquired debt and responsibilities, will be thrown out of work. What will become of them when jobs and money are scarce and they are trained for positions that no longer exist?

Then there is the person who has talent for an occupation at a standstill because of the war. It would be difficult to make an efficient stenographer of a girl who has a natural flair for clothes. After the war and depression there will be a boom in dressmaking and designing. There will be plenty of opportunity for new ideas and talent. But what does the girl do in the meantime?

Some people are wondering how the high wages of a defense plant are going to affect young people. Many young men with little or no experience are earning as much as seventy dollars a week. A lot of these are working on the night shift. With this amount of money in their pockets and one, or perhaps not even one, evening a week free in which to spend it, avoid problem areas. There is very little entertainment to be found in the morning or early afternoon. But these young people need and demand recreation. How will they fill this need? Gambling? Drinking? Perhaps. This we must prevent now rather than cure later. Service men will be taken care of by the U.S.O., Y.M.C.A., and similar groups. Why doesn't some organization provide activities such as morning athletic contests or daytime dances for these defense workers?

These are the problems confronting today's youth. This dark, appearing horizon will not defeat or discourage them. They are ready to face it as a challenge. They will prove that it can be met and overcome, each situation individually, until peace is restored to our United States and every threat to our freedom is destroyed.

F.H.S. Crew Triumphs Over Milford

Farmington High School's baseball team journeyed to Milford this past week and in a free hitting contest out-slugged their opponents by a score of 13 to 9. There was no scoring in the first inning, but in the second, Farmington led the inning off with 5 runs. Milford scored 4 in their half. In the third Ryan led off with a single, took second on an infield out, went to third on an error and scored on another infield out. There was no more scoring until the fifth, when the local lads combined 4 hits and 5 Milford errors for 4 more runs. This made the score 10 to 4. In the sixth they gathered 3 more runs on 2 hits and 3 more Milford errors. Milford staged a rally in their half of the sixth, featured by a 4 run homer, but it fell short by 4 runs. In the last inning neither side scored, and the final score stood at 13 to 9.

Beck led the Farmington hitters with 3 singles, with Ryan coming next with 2 hits.

F.H.S. NINE DEFEATED BY CLARKSTON

Farmington High School's baseball team took it on the chin again last Friday when they were defeated by Clarkston by a score of 5 to 3. Clarkston started things off in the first inning by scoring 2 runs on 3 hits and a Farmington error. The home town lads counted next, in the second with 2 runs. In the first half of the third the Clarkston side put together 5 hits, 2 Farmington errors, and a base on balls for 5 more runs. This made the score 7 to 2.

In the home half of the third, Bob Lehr started off with a triple and came home when the Clarkston pitcher made an error on Sullivan's grounder. Sullivan went to second on the same error, stole third, and came home on a pass ball, but that was all the scoring. In the third Pauline, Farmington shortstop, reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and third, and came home on a Clarkston error. In the fifth Ryan, home town rightfielder, started off with a single, got around to third on errors, and scored on an infield out. This was Farmington's last scoring threat. Clarkston added another run in the sixth, but this was all the scoring for the afternoon. The final score stood at 8 to 6, with the home town team coming out on the shorter end.

Bob Lehr led the Farmington hitters with 2 hits in 3 trips to the plate.

Camera Club Disbands Until Next Fall

On Wednesday, May 20, the F.H.S. Photography club gave a lecture on "The Use of Photography in Criminology." The lecture was accompanied by a series of slides on which illustrated and showed the ways in which photography is used in trapping criminals and solving crimes. They also saw a moving picture illustrating and explaining the use of television, and what it's like behind the preparation and production of such entertainment. Although the membership of the club has decreased during the past two months, the remaining members have all learned to develop and print their own pictures.

LINE EXTENSIONS for electric service

Because of the urgent need for copper in war industries, restrictions have been placed on the building of extensions to existing electric lines.

These restrictions prevent us from making extensions to our lines, except as follows:

As of March 26, 1942, no extension in excess of 250 feet may be made without specific authorization in advance from the Director of Industry Operations, War Production Board, Washington, D. C.

Priority preference to build does not include this line extension. That must be applied for separately, and we are glad to aid you in the preparation of forms, submitting your request for the extension to the War Production Board, Defense Plants, Defense Housing and other projects directly related to war industries are given first consideration by them.

Before making plans to build a house, home builders will save themselves much delay and maybe even disappointment if they will make these applications as early as possible. Any Detroit Edison Office can give further information.
