The Encyclopedia of Sports says:
"Court tennis, first known as jeu de paume, originally was an outdoor game, and was played in the Middle ages in the parks and fosses of chateaux in France, and Italy. Its patrons included a long line of European monarchs and its popularity among royalty is responsible for its present name. A court built by Henry VIII at Hampton palace is still extant and celebrated its 400th anniversary in 1939."

The office of Civilian Defense has released a little card, suitable to be gasted at Some convenient place in you home, offering fittle way, suitable suggestions for civiliant suggestions for civiliant suggestions for civiliant suitable properties of the properties

1. Put unity

1. Put unity
ity,
2. Be a rumor stopper.
3. Meet sho'tage by sharing.
4. Keep the morale standards of the Nation high.
5. The secret of steadiness and inner strength is on every penny—in God We Trist.

That is particularly true with spect to the use of long distal lines, he stated, inasmuch as the increuits are congested with in tary and war production calls. all calls, both local and long tance, telephone users also saked to be brief. Inability of company to expand its system sticiently to care for the increas business because of the scarcity materials more urgently needed war is given as the reason.

The lines to Washington are more congested with calls than any others in the country, the térphone manager safd, and customers of the company are being requested in newspaper advertisja and over the radio not to call the Nation's capital at all unless he particular call directly concerns the war effort.

Inner attength Is on every pennyin God We Trust.
