Put Unity Into Your Community

Put unity into your community.

That request was sent out recently by the Office of Civilian Defense. A community that has the cooperation of all its citizens is almost unlimited in the amount of good it can do, and the number of accomplishments it may attain.

Each must remember, though, that unity begins at home. One of the first things a child realizes is that a family operates as a unit, or at least it should. A family that works together and plays together is an ideal family group. Little differences are easily patched up, and everyone is so much happier and feels so much better when they are all working together, toward the same goal.

That same feeling of unity, extended into the business world, can do much to make a success, both in the community in which you are located, and through contacts with other business firms in other cities.

Likewise have we seen unity make an ideal neighborhood. A group of families that are friendly, and that always seem to get along well together, with no serious misunderstandings, where each family seems to enjoy the sociability of the others, is a neighborhood to be proud of. Anyone would be glad to make their home where these conditions prevail.

Extending it even further, one finds an occasional community where everyone seems to be working toward the improvement of that community. When a project is attempted or when there is a real job to be done, such as the one at hand now, to establish an adequate Civilian Defense Corps, everyone turns out and does his part. There is no quibbling or backbiting connected with it—just put your shoulder to the wheel, and before you know it, you've accomplished what you set out to do.

Farmington needs your support now. When you are called upon, don't hesitate to step up and do your part. Make Farmington a community where there is unity, and one you may well be proud of.

Records For Our Fighting Men

A year ago Mr. and Mrs. America were scouring cellars and attics and forgotten corners on the in-between floors for old aluminum items. Last month they were hunting down rubber gadgets. And now, thanks to the American Legion, there's a nationwide quest for old phonograph records. These records will be sold as scrap, and provide the funds for new records and phonograph players to be shipped to American fighting men here and overseas. Already millions of old records have been collected. Millions more are needed. And there is a solemn obligation to find them.

For the American Legion's Records For Our Fighting Men campaign, while not concerned with equipment for the war machine, is deeply devoted to the cause of the men on whom we depend to run that machine. These men are Americans with a profound love for good music. Because they're Americans they like all kinds of music, and because they're in many cases far from home, the music that springs from America not only provides recreation and entertainment for them, but also serves as a reminder of the things American which we all treasure, which we're fighting for.

By all means, help the Legionnaires and their co-workers in achieving success in the good work which they have undertaken.

Continuing the column's tabloid review of Michigan history, we present twenty questions this week for the most part on contemporary life.

is, there is liberty." Among the Bible citations is this passage (I Cor. 2:9-10): "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.12): "Spirit blesses the multiplicity of its own pure and perfect ideas. From the infinite elements of the one Mind emanate all form, color, quality, and quantity, and these are mental, both primary and secondary. Their spiritual nature is discerned only through the spiritual senses."

ALL ARE WELCOME

The United States produced in June almost three times as much munitions as in November. War Production Board Chairman Nelson revealed last week. His special report showed large increases in output of all the several classes of arms, but he warned the Nation against "undue optimism" over against "undue pessimism."

"When these proportional gains are converted from an economy to a production for war purposes inevitably goes up."

Mr. Nelson's sober attitude was justified by the announcement of the War Shipping Administration that the recent shipbuilding of the past few months has not kept pace with United Nation's losses (ships lost a new mark of their own in the week ended July 12). Only cargoes "essential to the prosecution of the war" are to travel from now on.

New Shipyards vs. Ships Now The WPB chairman laid stress on coming shortages of materials. As applied to the vital ship program, this problem showed itself last week in the action of the Maritime Commission. The Commission reaffirmed its decision to cancel contracts for 320 Liberty cancel contracts for 320 Liberty cancel contracts for 320 Liberty cancel contracts for 320 Liberty.

At the same time Chairman Nelson studied the report of his committee on cargo planes, and said the question of fleets of huge fighting bombers was not being overlooked (some shipbuilders were urging that their yards be converted to make planes like the Martin Mars). While Mr. Nelson warned against expecting too much in the way of immediate construction of any new types of cargo planes, he pointed out that the present cargo plane program is considerable and is growing rapidly.

Meanwhile WPB committed itself to another step along the path from piece-meal to over-all treatment of wartime production. With material already being under control of the production requirements plan, WPB now will mobilize plant facilities by concentrating a number of civilian industries in "nucleus" factories instead of applying limitations to companies here, there, and everywhere. In this way it will be possible to increase the efficiency of the industries for both their peacetime and their wartime products.

Civilians felt the pinch of wartime dislocations last week as meal became temporarily hard to get in parts of the country. Lent-lease and military buying from packers in a slack period had created an extraordinary competition for livestock; prices to packers had gone up; small companies supplying civilians were caught between the demands and the OPA maximum prices for their sales; and meat began

PERSONAL SECURITY
 Pay by Check

Financial security is not merely a matter of piling up money in a bank reserve; it is just as much a matter of paying it out safely.

The safest way to pay is by check. You have a record of what you have paid. You can prove that you paid. You don't have to carry so much cash around, and you don't have to run around so much yourself.

Paying by check is best—for convenience and for security.
