The local Women's Mission Union met on Thursday, September 23 in the church at 10 a.m. for their Cross Work Luncheon.

There was a discussion on the dividing of the Union into six regional Circles, due to the eminent transportation problem.

Items of Interest to WOMEN

THIS WEEK AT YOUR LIBRARY

HOURS:
Wednesday—11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m.—3:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.
Saturday—2:00 p. m. to 9:00 p. m.

Books reviewed this week are all new to the library. Simplified Nursing by Dakin and Thompson and Knowing Yourself and Others by Donald McLean are endorsed by the American Red Cross.

Simplified Nursing—Dakin and Thompson. The fundamentals of nursing in a simple, concise and logical form that will meet the needs of any intelligent person in the home, the practical nurse or the trained attendant.

This revised edition of a book that has been the standard for a number of years is brought completely up to date and takes into account the changes in our economic structure, the needs of the civilian defense program, the progress in medical and educational fields and the development of a new point of view toward the responsibility of specially training groups for the welfare of the community.

Although the material here is technically accurate, it has been brought completely up to date and takes into account the changes in our economic structure, the needs of the civilian defense program, the progress in medical and educational fields and the development of a new point of view toward the responsibility of specially training groups for the welfare of the community.

MICHIGAN APPLE JELLY—AND MINT

Now's the time to get putting of the oporettes I was in. News- paper clippings and a photo of a boy who was my leading man in one of them. Wonder where those "kidd" are now? Through one of these newspaper clippings, I received a letter from an English soldier stationed in India. That paper happened to reach him, and he wrote me at the school. We corresponded for over a year and was very interesting.

And here's the book my father gave me when I thought I wanted to be a photo-engraver. Still think I'd have liked that, though he said it was "no business for a girl!" Here's my Baby Book. I don't take the time to keep Baby Books for our children. I certainly treasure mine and get quite a kick out of the "cute things I did and said" of the picture, just as I came, taken on the old settee.

Next is my High School Memory Book. In it are school publications, clippings, autographs, letters, favors and accounts of places visited, and things done—Golden Hours, indeed.

Down to the bottom of the pile, and here is a box tied in blue ribbon and here is a box tied in blue ribbon and here is a box tied in blue ribbon.

A WORD TO THE WIVES

Hello there—we girls are always being kidded about being sentimental and hearing "moments of the bygone days, but I'll wager there are very few of us that haven't on a bundle of those "memories" high on a closet shelf or in the attic. I have—and I don't know what I make me part with them.

Michigan, a Guide to the Wolverine State. This book is the latest in the series of guides compiled by workers of the Writers' Program of the Work Projects Administration in the State of Michigan and is sponsored by the Michigan State Administration Board.

The general background of the state is thoroughly described, and the principal cities and towns, with full information about where to go, how to get there and what to see. Michigan is the favored state of the North Temperate Zone because of its climate which is thermostatically controlled by Great Lakes.

Michigan is a delight to either hunter, fisherman or sightseer. There are two State Parks with a total area of nearly 1,000,000 acres, a series of game preserves and many State highways designed primarily for recreational use.

One of the most interesting chapters in the Michigan Guide is the one on Marine Lore, which tells the stories and legends that exist among the lake-men, many of the chants and songs are included in full. This guide is a most interesting book for women and tourists alike, because of its historical background.

TRY THIS RECIPE FOR VARIETY IN THE LUNCH BOX

Lunch box time is here, not that you haven't had to pack any lunches for hubby but when the children start back to school and need lunches too, I soon runs into money to run out and buy dessert for all of them. So we must do a little more baking than we did during the summer months, and it must be something that will keep well, such as cookies or cup cakes baked in the little paper cups. The following is a most delicious recipe.

CHOCOLATE PUFFS

- 1/2 cup boiling water
1/3 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 tsp vanilla
1/2 tsp baking powder
2 tbs cocoa—heaping
1/2 tsp soda
1 egg
1/2 cup sour milk
1/2 tsp vanilla
Cream sugar and shortening, add egg and hot water, beating well after each addition. Stir dry ingredients and add alternately with the sour milk. Add vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven. Makes 18 medium sized cupcakes.

MACCABEE NEWS

Another potluck luncheon, with Bunco following, will be held at the home of Mrs. Jessie Roux, on Randall Friday, September 25, at 12:30 p.m. Members and friends are cordially invited.

THE GARDEN PATH

Fall gardening consists mostly of digging up the tender bulbs and roots harmed by freezing and putting in those hardy ones that need the snow those we take up are Dahlias and Gladioli, taking Dahlias first, its comforting to know we can leave them in the ground until frost has killed the foliage. We have to wait all spring and that help to make, fall the riot of color it is.

Care should be taken in the treatment we give the tubers (or to be correct, the tuberous roots). After the foliage has died down cut the stalks off just above the ground. With a garden fork lift the entire clump and turn upside down on the basement floor to dry off a little for few days.

Next comes the roots in water and cut away any rotted parts. Pack in sand or peat moss and keep in a fairly cool place—but do not let them freeze. Take an occasional look at them during the dormant period. When they appear to be shriveling, sprinkle the sand or moss lightly with water. Dahlias may also be wrapped in paper and stored in the pantry or kitchen during the winter—just wrap the same precautions as those during the drying out. If sprouts should develop, in late winter, cut them off about an inch from the plant. Canna can be lifted and stored the same as Dahlias.

Gladioli are something else we will take up every year as they will freeze out. They are generally planted at 2 or 3 week intervals so it is necessary that we watch and dig the corms (or bulbs) before the foliage has died down so much that you can't find them.

There were six tables of Bunco playing after the potluck lunch. Mrs. Myron Carriers on Eight Mile Road last Friday afternoon. Prizes were won by the following: Mrs. C. Kirby, the raffle prize, a handmade luncheon cloth; Mrs. Bertha Spaller, door prize; Mrs. Pearl Callan, first prize; Mrs. Elizabeth Scherer, second prize; Mrs. Louise Manzel, third prize.

THIS AND THAT

Have you noticed, just in the last few days, how the leaves are beginning to put on their fall clothes, and the wind has a bit of a sting in it? You could call it the beginning and the end season. It's the end of summer and canning and the beginning of schools, fall house cleaning and more social activities.

Better not have your hair cut by any more girls, cause the new fall hair-dos are sleek, upswept, upon-the-head-type. I don't know why they do that to us, just after getting it cut nice and short for the feather bobs.

If you have trouble making grape jelly taste like grape jelly (as I do), try making grape marmalade or jam. Works fine too, better flavor and more body than jelly.

Did you ever plan your day and expect to accomplish so much only to have so many interruptions that almost nothing was done? Leave your day with a kind of a futile feeling when you crawl in bed that night.

Then there is the day when everything goes so smoothly and ex- cepting special nice things happen— those days stand out in our memory for a long time.

Don't forget to use those nice big yellow, ripe cucumbers in your garden now and make Shipperly Jacks. If your family doesn't like them, inquire among your friends and neighbors and see if they can't use them.
