PHOENIX, ARIZ.—

THE LOST DUTCHMAN MINE.
If you have a thirst for adventure and a hankering for gold in for more gold. For months the huge quantities, both of your desires can be satisfied just 35 miles east of this capital city of Arizona—if you are lucky. With in an hour's ride of this busy metropolis is a gold mine—finders of Captain Kidd. Thousands have tried their luck looking for the buried treasure and at least six have died in their attempt, but you may be the lucky person.

In every western state that produces gold it is an easy matter to pick up a story of a lost gold mine, but usually when the tale is investigated it is found to be just another story cooked up for the benefit of eastern visitors.
But "The Lost Dutchman" near this city is founded on fact—its history is a tale of massacre, thievery, earthquake and murder.
In 1846 one Miguel Peralte journeyed into this then unexplored area in search of gold. After numerous small finds he became convinced that somewhere in the Superstition Mountains there was wealth in untold quantities. Returning to his home in Chihuahua, Mexico, he organized a party of six and placed it under the command of his three sons, Pedro, Ramon and Manuel. In 1846 this party re-entered the territory and discovered a rich placer mine at the present site of Mormon Flat.
While the two younger brothers examined this rich bonanza, Pedro went further into the mountains in search of the source of the placer gold. He discovered not one, but eight rich veins.

In the winter of 1846-47 the three brothers returned to Mexico where the two youngest bought ranches and retired to a life of ease. Pedro, however, organized a party of 60 men and returned to the mine. For months the party worked the veins, until a disaster struck. The Apache Indians were concentrating their forces for an attack. Quickly burying the major part of their wealth, the party tried to escape.
The attempt was unsuccessful and the party was massacred. The Indians, not caring for wealth, emptying the mine of the ground and keeping the camp bags. In 1914 two prospectors recovered $18,000 of this gold while digging at the site of the massacre.

To the Indians, Superstition Mountain was sacred ground.
Hunting was taboo—traveling was banned. In an endeavor to keep out further intruders the mine shafts were filled and all traces of the white men removed. But in 1880 the vein was rediscovered by two men named Jacobs and Lindbergh. While working the mine they were murdered by Jacob Walz. "The Dutchman" and his partner, Jacob Welsler, as soon as Walz realized the wealth of the mine, he in turn murdered Welsler.

For many years Walz worked his ill gotten mine. Numerous temples were made to follow him and locate the source of his wealth. In every case he outwitted or killed his pursuers. In 1877 he retired in Phoenix where he passed away in 1891, aged 83.
He had not visited his mine in 10 years.

On May 3, 1897, an earthquake shook the mountains. Cliffs toppled and hillsides were shaken down. Somewhere under the debris there lies "The Lost Dutchman," Arizona's most famous mine. What are you waiting for?

CLARENCEVILLE

By Mrs. Mary Rutla

The little people of Edgewood Kindergarten are to be commended highly on their collection of salvage. They lug cans of fats, tin cans and old stockings to school and they received the flag for buying the most defense stamps this past week.

Ethel Plink has returned to Ypsilanti Normal School after enjoying five days at her home, prior to commencing the mid-term at college.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the Barnum family of Furlingbrook, on account of the death of Mrs. Barnum.

The Barnes family attended a showing of Arabian Nights at the Fox Theatre in Detroit, Friday.
Mr. Swarthout, accompanied by several of the Cubs of Den 8 attended the General Motors Exhibit on Saturday afternoon.

We are glad to report Mrs. Vanderburg of Waldron is well, and able to be out again.
Little Arthur Bollito has been on the sick list the past week but is much better now.

About 17 tables of cards, including buncos and other games, were played at the Daughters of Isabella Valentine party on Saturday night in the Macabee Hall.

If you wish to Read Your Own METER
THIS CARD MAKES IT EASY

To help conserve the nation's stock of automobiles, tires and gasoline, we are reading household meters and some commercial meters every two months instead of monthly.

For the month when your meter is not read, your bill is a payment on account. It is based on your normal use of service, and it enables you to keep your expenses budgeted on a monthly basis. When your meter is read the following month, your bill covers your actual use of service for two months less the amount you have paid on account.

Most customers find this plan convenient and satisfactory. A few have asked the privilege of reading their own meters in the month when our meter reader does not call.
That's perfectly agreeable. If you would prefer to read your own meter, drop in at the office and we'll gladly give you some postcards like the one pictured here. They are already stamped and addressed, and it's easy to fill them out.
