

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

A delegation from the church attended the Evangelistic meeting at the Novi Baptist Church in Novi on Tuesday evening. These meetings were held all week by the Vanderjagt Party.

There is a new project on at the Baptist Church and it is hoped that the members and friends will make it most successful.

Each Sunday, envelopes addressed to the students away at school and to members in the armed forces will be available. People are asked to select one or as many as possible, thus assuring each absent member of at least one letter that week. This is a very worthwhile cause and can be only as successful as each individual makes it. Let's get behind it and keep the letters traveling to our boys and girls.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Jensen had as dinner guests last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. James Holbrook and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Putman. Mr. Holbrook left Putman for Fort Custer.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ross spent last Sunday with their daughter and family in Lake Orion.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thiele and daughter, Judy, and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Haft and son were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Jensen.

RED CROSS

The Red Cross Sewing Room at the American Legion Home will be closed during the month of June and July. But the ladies are asked to give all the time possible to Surgical Dressing at the Town Hall Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 10 and on Tuesday, 10 to 4.

Mrs. Harry Brough, Chairman.

Everybody Loves Coffee Rice Pudding

HERE'S a dessert standby in fancy dress that all the family will fancy! Good publication rice pudding made doubly delectable with the addition of coffee flavor. Rice pudding is wholesome, inexpensive and popular, and Coffee Rice Pudding is all these things with a taste "plus" value.

Just save any drops of coffee left in the pot after meals and collect them in a covered glass jar in your refrigerator. You'll be surprised how quickly the 3/4 of a cup called for in this recipe will collect—no matter how casually you plan.

The flavor of coffee has a special place as a favorite among American people. And that's no wonder! Rice pudding, too, has built its popularity soundly over many years. Combine the two and you've got something! Serve Coffee Rice Pudding with piping hot, delicious coffee and it will climax any meal. Make the pudding carefully, and get the full benefit of the boost in morale and the delightful stimulation it offers. Here's the recipe for

Coffee Rice Pudding

1 cup rice 1/2 cup milk
3 cups milk 1/2 cup sugar
1 cup cold leftover coffee
Wash rice thoroughly and drain. Combine all ingredients and pour in buttered 1 1/2-quart baking dish. Bake in very slow oven (250° F.) about hours, stirring at least 3 times during the first hour to break crust that forms. Do not stir during last hour of cooking. Chill before serving.
Yield: 6 servings.

FISH LOAF
WILL USE UP
LEFTOVERS

Fish is gracing the tables in many homes that have never had it before. Made into a loaf and a simple way to use leftover fish from a big one, or a nice way to stretch a small can of salmon. Served with a vegetable and salad, you won't have to worry about the absence of potatoes, either.

FISH LOAF

2 cups cooked flaked fish
2 tbs. chopped green pepper
1 tbs. minced onion
2 tbs. butter
1 cup fine soft bread crumbs
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
2 eggs separated
1/2 cup milk
2 tbs. lemon juice

Shred the fish. Sauté green pepper and onion in the butter, add the fish with the bread crumbs and seasonings. Beat eggs, add milk and then add both to the fish mixture. Stir in the lemon juice. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a greased loaf pan, set in a pan of hot water, bake for one hour in 350 degree oven. Serve with Cheese Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE

2 1/2 cups milk
2 tbs. enriched flour
3 tbs. shortening
1/2 lb. cheese, grated or cut fine
Place butter in sauce pan, add flour and stir until thoroughly blended. Then add milk, cook over low fire until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted.

THIS AND THAT . . .

THE GARDEN PATH

Without a doubt this rainy spring has not only dampened the ground but the spirits of all gardeners as well. But there is one consolation—there is still time to put in a late crop of almost everything. And we will get busy and pray for a nice long summer so that the tomatoes and melons will be able to ripen.

Certain kinds and varieties of vegetables are more satisfactory than others for small Victory Gardens. Wise selection this year is particularly important because the need for food conservation is keen.

Although bush beans yield well, pole beans will produce several times as much for the same space occupied. Beans of the Kentucky Wonder type are especially practical because if some of the pods become too old for snaps, the beans inside are delicious for "green shells."

Beets will "kill two birds with one stone" for they furnish a green leafy vegetable during their young stage and best roots later in the season for use and storage. A row of Swiss chard, no more than ten feet long will supply a family with greens all summer. If the outer leaves are kept picked and the inner leaves allowed to keep on growing.

Cabbages are usually thought of in connection with large gardens. But the government stresses this "crunchy" leafy vegetable because of its high vitamin content. Many small garden therefore will include cabbage. Only careful selection, however, will produce enough heads to be worth the effort. Early small heading varieties such as Copenhagen Market are best. The plants are so compact that twelve to fifteen heads can be grown satisfactorily in a twenty foot row.

Vines of the spreading type, melons, winter squash and pumpkin, are often a nuisance in small quarters. They know no boundaries and seldom stop running all summer. Summer squash varieties of compact habit are ideal, particularly the improved straight-neck strains. They take up comparatively little space for the quantities of tasty succulent fruits they produce.

Some varieties of tomato yield far better than others for the amount of room the vines take up. A Victory Gardener will not go wrong in choosing Marjorie to get a lot of excellent fruit from little space.

Children of North Africa—Louise A. Eitelsohn. A splendid introduction for American boys and girls to the children of that great continent where civilization began, where man first recorded his thoughts on stone tablets on the banks of the Nile and where pyramids still tower—that great continent of teeming jungles and vast deserts, of buried towns and old, old cities. The children of these stories were friends of the author's when she lived in Africa not so long ago and, although conditions there have changed, these children and their families remain much the same. Different in many ways from us and from each other, these children are still very alike in their love of fun. Since many brothers and cousins and friends have lived in North Africa, American boys and girls will love these stories which bring a far away country so much nearer. The Days of Opheila—Gertrude Diamond. A book about Mexico that cuts through the surface and shows the living people. Opheila Escoto was a little girl whom the author met when she went apart, hunting in the City of Mexico, and who became her maid. Opheila's father was a night watchman with a family; this teen to support, and for many months the author shared the life of the Escotos, sympathized with them in their misfortunes and watched the love story of Opheila's brother, Daniel, with its tragic denouement.

The book also tells of visits to the parched, poverty-stricken country of the Ojotl Indians, of the picturesque dances and rituals of a wedding in tropical Tehuantepec, of hazards of traveling in a Mexican bus along the Laredo Highway, of the wisdom displayed by Mexican judges in handling the homeless children of the Revolution, and of the vagaries of Mexican officials who tried to deport the author on the grounds that she was a Polish refugee.

On Being a Real Person—Harry Emerson Fosdick. The book starts with a clear, fresh discussion of how a person can and must learn to accept himself as he is. An honest appraisal of personal strength and weakness leads to an understanding of what one may do to improve his methods of getting along with himself and with other people.

It closes with an equally clear and practical discussion of what Dr. Fosdick calls "The Principle of Released Power." Here is help on what man wants most to know:

How may I draw strength from those spiritual forces which will give more meaning to my life and more power to carry it through? Dr. Fosdick knows what he is talking about. His experience in dealing with individuals, his wide reading and his own native insight give him something vital to say and the grace with which to say it well. The usefulness of this book was recognized by the response to the condensation that appeared in the Reader's Digest a few months back.

Lassie Come Home—Eric Knight. This is one of the most poignant, yet thoroughly realistic dog stories of the past decade. It is a yarn of Lassie, the prize dog of a humble household, who is sold to a wealthy family when hard times befall her original owners. Yet dogs cannot reckon monetary wealth—they honor their masters for other things than this.

So Lassie, taken hundreds of miles away, does what many colts have done before her. She starts for home so that, as in the years before, she can be faithful to a duty—that of meeting a boy to the schoolhouse door. Mr. Knight's understanding of dogs is no less than his knowledge of the background in which this story is set. It rings with authentic touches, bringing in characters that come to life with clarity. Thus this story is no less one of a courageous dog than of a patient, courageous people.

Here is a special treat for all dog lovers.

Save Soap

Although soap is still plentiful, the patriotic housewife saves soap, saving in her war conservation. Left-over bits should be saved and made into liquid or jellied soap by adding hot water. Glass sugar dispensers such as are used in restaurants are convenient holders for liquid soap made in this way. Learn by experiment just how much soap you need to make good suds and thereafter use only that amount to start with. As the suds die down or are used up, add more soap carefully to make the lather live. Do not waste soap.
