Living Skills Are Taught

Are you a woman alone? A man suffering from career menopause? A parent looking for skills? A couple that can't communicate? A woman looking restlessly for a new lifestyle? An adult who wants to be creative?

All of these problems will be tackled in a series of programs offered by the Continuum Center, which recently moved into new headquarters in the Meadow Brook Farmhouse on the Oakland University campus.

A 10-week program of human relations training in the Gestalt Awareness Training sessions began Tuesday, Jan. 25. Nine more sessions will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesdays.

Communications training for couples is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays, from Jan. 26 to March 1 in the Meadow Brook Clubhouse.

A practical exploration of the social, economical and psychological problems of the woman alone will also begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 26, at St. John Episcopal Church in Royal Oak. Divorced and widows will discuss their legal rights, as well as the problems of raising children alone.

Mrs. Barbara Hoffmann will encourage a renewal of creativity in adults during a five-week workshop on using the creative process, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesdays starting Feb. 2 in the clubhouse.

Men will join the lineup Feb. 5 when Jon Greenawalt, personnel director of Guardian Industries leads a Saturday program in communication skills and personal growth for men who are struggling with the problem of the middle years both at home and at work. Orientation is 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Meadow Brook Farmhouse.

Two eight-week series on parent effectiveness training begin at noon Monday, Feb. 7, and at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 10, in the Farmhouse. Parents are given professional insights and skills for the difficult job of raising children.

The investigation into identity program, which is funded by the Kellogg Foundation to help restless women find a new life style, will be offered in four locations this spring. The program of behavioral, vocational and education testing in a human relations setting will begin at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 15, in Fairlane in Dearborn.

MRS. JUDITH

CHOATE, executive director of the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death, will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 2, in William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, for the foundation's Michigan Chapter. The public may hear her talk on the "crib deaths" of 10,000 babies each year in the United States.

Jobs For Women Topic At EMU

YPSILANTI Elizabeth D. Koontz, director of the women's bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor, will visit Eastern Michigan University Feb. 2 to meet with students, faculty and administrators.

She will speak on job opportunities for women at noon in Room 201 of the Pray Harrold classroom building on the EMU campus.

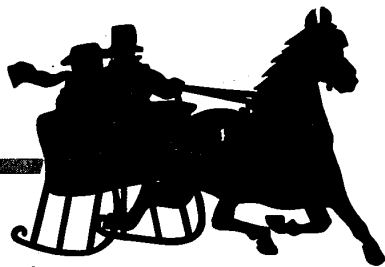

Mrs. Koontz began her career as an elementary and special education teacher in North Carolina. She became the first black to be elected president of the National Education Association in 1968, and initiated the NEA's conference on critical issues in education. She became head of the Department of Labor's Women's Bureau in 1969 and in that same year was named a delegate to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women. She has honorary degrees from several colleges and universities, including EMU.

Her visit is sponsored by the Cooperative Career Planning Program.
