

THIS AND THAT —

Ever notice how clean and fresh everyone looks on the street car in the morning and how bedraggled and tired they look in late afternoon?

Kinda makes you feel this old country is worth saving after all when you see the Neighborhood Victory Garden Plots in town, with neighbors working side by side.

Street car scene: A nice, big fat duck being toted home in a shopping bag for somebody's dinner.

Is there a day goes by that the old saying isn't proven, that "men are nothing more than over-grown boys?"

Ever watch a spider try to crawl out of a bath tub? Your could liken them to the struggle of living—gasp a little then slide back again.

Ever notice how still the animal world becomes before a storm?

What a blessing good neighbors are when you need them!

P. S. Happy Birthday—to me.

SALAD DRESSINGS MAY BE MADE AT HOME

It is getting exceedingly hard to get the salad dressing or mayonnaise of your choice in the stores—why not try making your own.

EASY MAYONNAISE

2 tbs. enriched flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. sugar
1/2 cup cold water
1 egg yolk
2 tbs. vinegar

Mix flour with dry ingredients in a small saucepan. Stir in the water gradually, so there will be no lumps. Stir over low heat until mixture thickens. (If heat cannot be controlled, use a double boiler.) Remove from fire. Put egg yolk, vinegar and oil in small bowl. Add the hot paste and beat vigorously until cool. The dressing will thicken on cooling.

1/2 cup sugar
1/3 cup mild vinegar
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion, grated
2/3 cup tomato catsup

An Unbeatable Warm Weather Combination

IT'S up to you, the homemaker, to live up to the family's leisure time now that war restrictions are keeping them at home. A few refreshments served in an attractive manner can easily turn a Sunday afternoon into a gala occasion, and what's more, your family will be delighted with the little fuss you have made over them. The party spread, photographed above, is really no trouble at all to make. The dainty sandwiches and frosty feed coffee are an unbeatable warm weather combination. But be sure to make the coffee a bit stronger than usual to allow for melting ice. When you serve sandwiches in warm weather, it is a good idea to make them with light spreads such as those shown in the illustration. The following are excellent: cream cheese, green pepper and celery; watercress and mayonnaise; tomato aspic garnished with olives; chopped parsley and cream cheese; and chopped carrot and lettuce. Don't forget to cut the bread very thin and into varied shapes to make a more attractive sandwich plate. Assorted breads also lend variety. There is nothing quite so tempting to serve with these sandwiches on a scorching summer day as feed coffee. You will regain your pep and cool off while enjoying its flavorful goodness. And be sure to take the most out of your coffee by making it fresh each time you serve it. The ultimate in flavor is obtained by pouring freshly made hot coffee into a glass filled with ice. Add sugar and cream to individual taste. Many people prefer to take it plain with nothing added to the delicious coffee flavor.

Brushland Bill—Richard Huzarski. Bill Garmon had troubles—lots of them. They were in the form of debts which his father had left him. But Bill had courage and energy and a determination to get rid of those debts. His great-uncle had trapped and hunted in the North Wisconsin woods, and had earned a good living at it. Bill was sure that his generation was as tough as his great-uncle's, so he decided to live in those woods for a winter, take care of himself, and earn enough to pay off the debts. He met up with a mad trapper, but he was a friend too—a grand old man who took Bill and shared with him the secrets of the ways of animals and streams.

This thrilling story of animals and hunting was written by a man who lived these adventures, and he knows well the life he writes about. And as for Brushland Bill—well, the neighbors changed their tune about him when he came back to town again!

Journey For Margaret—W. L. White. William L. White, "Bill White" of Kansas, went to England with a private memo—"up look kids." This memo, in a class, recorded his desire to adopt an English child. Not long after he landed in England, White found Margaret, who at this time was three and a half years old.

Margaret was White's personal job in England, and this is his personal book about Margaret and her England. His Public Job was writing dispatches for America, and he made it his business to see, hear, and feel all phases of the war. He spent his nights at R.A.F. flying posts, watching the bombers go off to Germany. He went mine-sweeping in the English Channel. He was bombed himself. This is the fiery background for Margaret, the little girl White was finally able to adopt and bring back to America.

With the thoughts, speech and action of an embattled people focussed through the story of a child, the reader feels as if he is reading for the first time the human story of England at war. Mother Russia—Marjorie Hindus. A vivid and enlightening account of the Russian people in 1942—the people who again and again have amazed the world by turning back the ruthless and powerful German army. This book tells what those people are like and explains how and why they have been able to achieve military miracles. It tells how they live in this war—how men, women and children work and fight; how, whenever they can, they enjoy themselves; what they read and what they believe in; what they are fighting to preserve and to achieve; what changes the war has brought about.

"I have always felt," says Mr. Hindus, "that a single day in a village or a single meal in a factory would tell me more about the people than an interview with a leader, however exalted." He traveled widely, to cities and villages, he saw the lines and in the conquered territories, and he found nowhere any signs of weakening or of despair. The Russians fervently wish for the war to be over, but until the destruction of Hitler's military machine this watchword everywhere is: "Death to the German invader."

Cereals Nutritive

Instead of stressing foods that are scarce, homemakers should put more emphasis on foods which are available in as large amounts as we are likely to want them. Outstanding in this class are cereals. There is every prospect of ample crops both here and in Canada.

As a group the whole-grained cereals have far more nutritive value than most people realize. . . they are rich in several important minerals and vitamins. Used as meat extenders, as breakfast food in puddings as well as bread, large portions of cereals can be introduced into the diet without our being especially conscious of them. Recent information has been released that all of our white bread will be enriched by the addition of some of the nutrients which are removed in the milling process. This is certainly a step forward. Nevertheless the original whole wheat itself is to be preferred, for in it is every thing that wheat can contribute.

THE GARDEN PATH

After the past few months of rationing, doubtless no one needs to be urged to store carefully all surplus fruits and vegetables that cannot be canned. But many gardeners do not know how to go about the task. Study recommended methods of storage and make your plan now, so you will be ready to store mature vegetables before freezing weather this fall.

For the successful storage of fresh vegetables, four important factors must be taken into consideration: temperature, moisture, ventilation, and light. Those which are similar in structure and growth require similar storage conditions. No one storage place can be used successfully to store all vegetables.

Another thing that is very important is to put into storage only high quality produce—vegetables that are free from insect damage, disease, bruises, cracks, blemishes, cuts, sunburn, frost or mechanical injury. Care must be used in harvesting to avoid bruising.

Sanitation of the storage room or house is good storage insurance. Thoroughly clean and ventilate the place before putting any products in for the winter. The inside of the storage structure and all boxes or crates should be disinfected with a solution made by adding one pint of formaldehyde to six gallons of water, or one pound of copper sulphate to ten gallons of water.

Basement Or Cellar Storage

Where vegetables are stored in a cellar under the house, if the cellar has a furnace, one corner should be partitioned off for the storage space so that the storage temperature can, if possible, be kept below 50 degrees. The walls separating the storage space from the heated part of the basement should be tight and well insulated. The storage room should have an outside window for ventilation.

Pit Or Bank Storage

Families that lack a good storage cellar, either under a building or outdoors, can get satisfactory results with one of several types of storage pits. To make a pit, select a well drained place in the garden or some place convenient to the kitchen.

The pit may be of any convenient size, but it is more satisfactory to make several small pits rather than one large one. When a storage pit is once opened, it is best to remove all the contents at once; hence, the advisability of small pits. It is best to store small quantities of all root crops in each pit. It will then be necessary to open only one pit to get a supply of all vegetables.

The New Responsibility Law
Can Put You Out of Business

If your work requires the use of a car you must be prepared AT ALL TIMES to show satisfactory proof of financial responsibility up to $11,000.00 or carry adequate auto insurance. Otherwise, if you are involved in practically any accident you will lose your right to drive and be forced from your work.

Don't risk so much when protection costs so little. Automobile insurance is not expensive, especially Wolverine's "No Exclusion" policy which gives you COMPLETE protection.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

5 Ocean Navy

When Pearl Harbor burst upon us our great expanse of territory was protected by a one ocean navy of about 350 first line ships with an addition of an approximate number building.

Now we are in a five ocean war and we are required not only to pay for the building of enough ships of the line but also for hundreds of Liberty ships and auxiliary craft. The amount of money you invested in War Bonds when we had a one ocean navy was all right then, it isn't enough now. Buy more and more War Bonds.

Fewer and Shorter
Telephone Calls—
Please.

WAR CONDITIONS have brought about a serious overload of the local telephone system.

During many hours of the day and night, the central office cannot handle more calls than are now being made. No new service can be installed except as telephones now in service are ordered disconnected.

To help keep lines and equipment clear for vital war production calls and emergency civilian calls, PLEASE...

1. Make fewer and shorter calls, both local and long distance.
2. Do not ask "Information" for numbers listed in the directory.
3. Do not call for "time-of-day".
4. Ask the young folks to cooperate, as a wartime measure.

We look forward to the time when we can expand the telephone system adequately and again provide all the service wanted, when and where wanted.
