

FRIDAY
was something of an occasion, for it marked a visit by Farmington's centenarian, C. N. Andrews, to the business section of town, his first visit in over a year and a half. Mr. Andrews came into town to get a shave. We hope it isn't another year and a half before he gets the opportunity to look the town over again.

AN EPIDEMIC of horn blowing seems to have hit the city. Wednesday some poor child was badly scared out of his wits when the horn he was blowing became stuck, and blew continuously for a short time, until his mother was able to get to him. Again on Thursday morning a small boy, left in the car while his mother went in the store, decided the horn on the automobile made a new and interesting toy, and he had the best time ever.

WE'RE SORRY we can't give you any encouraging information regarding the condition of Johnnie Knight, seriously injured in an automobile accident over two weeks ago. He has not yet regained consciousness, and his condition remains unchanged. We're hoping for better news before the week is up.

GARDENS are responding to the welcome of warm sunshine in truly wonderful style. Judging from some of the tales we hear, Jack and his beakstail will have nothing over produce from local Victory Gardens. Farmingtonites will be amazed if they respond eagerly to all the vitamins they're getting out of the Victory Gardens.

ANY MORE NAMES to be added to the City and Township Honor Roll? Several more were added this week, and we'd like to get them all up right away. If you know of any that have been omitted, please advise either Joseph DeVrient, or the Enterprise office, so they may be added. We've heard some mighty fine comments regarding the Honor Roll.

THE FLEET'S in and there's no disputing that, considering the number of white uniformed young men about Farmington. Seems like the Navy's week about these parts.

LOST One soldier. Just to avoid any confusion or misunderstandings, should anyone see a slightly bearded young man, wearing the uniform of Uncle Sam's Army, and a Staff Sergeant by rank, who appears to be lost, please direct him to the Enterprise office, and we'll see that he is properly delivered to his destination. We understand almost nothing about what happens between Selfridge Field and Farmington, and it's all most confusing—and not at all amusing.

THIS IS AN INSTANCE where no news is good news. There is still no word as to whether the Red Cross Bandage Unit of Farmington will reopen. Mrs. Nelson reported this week that she had not received any further word from the Oakland County chairman in regard to the new shipment of gauze, and accordingly no date for reopening of the unit here can be determined. The many inquiries received indicate the ladies are getting anxious to get back to work, and will be happy when the unit is again open.

Legion Offers Help In War Times

Dr. J. W. Norton Is Service Officer

In each community of our country, the impact of the War is felt daily in many ways by our fellow citizens. This is especially true of those families who have sons, daughters, brothers, sisters or fathers in the armed forces.

Here in Farmington and community, we have many service families who frequently feel the need of experienced advice about problems affecting them in connection with the service of their men or women in the armed forces.

Groves-Walker Post No. 316 of the American Legion, through its Service Officer, Employment Officer, Child Welfare Chairman, or other of its officials who have interested themselves in the problems of the War in the community, considers it a privilege to confer and advise with these families who feel in need of such counsel.

The Post has trained personnel who are familiar with such matters as Servicemen's allotments and allowances, National Life Insurance, hospitalization, applications and compensation or pension claims, assistance to dependent children and parents, reemployment problems and other matters which may arise.

FORT WAYNE SUPPLIES MANY FIGHTING UNITS

The role which the Fort Wayne Ordnance Depot plays in the mission of Army Ordnance Field Service has been made public by Colonel Ray M. Hare, Commanding Officer, in connection with the distribution by Ordnance Field Service to its depots and arsenals of the program each observes in maintaining the careful balance and strategic supply of all Ordnance required by the Army and Defense Commands in Continental United States.

Dozens of separate duties and functions have been sent out, with each depot or arsenal assigned up to a score continuing of its responsibilities. The number and type depend in each case on how the individual establishment fits into the over-all picture of Ordnance supply and maintenance.

The mission, which includes operating activities of the Fort Wayne Ordnance Depot, received by Colonel Hare, is a revision of previous operating instructions, and indicates the vital part Fort Wayne has in the global war strategy and in training and defense activities of its designated units.

Under its new instructions, Fort Wayne stores, for retail issue to Service Command supply points, posts, camps and stations, both assembled and boxed automotive equipment, including motorcycles, likewise stores and issues parts, supplies, tools, equipment, tires and tubes for these vehicles.

A further responsibility is the recapture of excess parts, supplies, tools and equipment to the new shipment of gauge, and accordingly no date for reopening of the unit here can be determined. The many inquiries received indicate the ladies are getting anxious to get back to work, and will be happy when the unit is again open.

Will You Lend A Small Radio?

Have you a small radio that you are not using at the present time? Down at the Children's Hospital there is a nine months' old baby girl. She is not a newcomer to the Hospital, for she has been there for quite some time. And during that time she has been a very sick little girl. Though everything has been done for her that hospital attendants could think to do, she does not seem to be any better. She still can not retain anything she eats.

WATER SAFETY COURSE BEGINS MONDAY EVENING

S. J. Cloonan, Water Safety Chapter, announced that a Water Safety course will begin Monday, July 26, at 7 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. pool, Pontiac. The class will meet for 3 hours each "night" through Friday and will be under the instruction of Francis Wallace, field representative from the Midwestern Area office at St. Louis. Senior life savers, who are 18 years old, former water safety instructors and current water safety instructors are invited to attend. Instructors will be requested to bring suits, towels, notebooks and pencils.

A study of our Armed Forces has revealed that less than 20 percent of the men of military age are being effectively trained. This indicates that training opportunities of the past have not been fully used. The Local Chapter is anxious to provide Water Safety training for young men and women 17 years and older who may soon be in the Armed Forces.

Free Cigarettes For "The Boys" Will Be Sent By DeRoy's

The DeRoy Jewelry Company, 21648 Grand River in Redford, this week announced a patriotic service that should add to the enjoyment of hundreds of men in every branch of military service. In this campaign, DeRoy's will send a carton of popular cigarettes with their compliments as a birthday gift to any serviceman whose name, address and birth date is furnished by a relative. The necessary information can be furnished by any member of DeRoy's staff.

In announcing this unusual service, Samuel Barbas, an executive of DeRoy Jewelry Company, said, "DeRoy's policy has always been one of friendliness. If we can in any way add enjoyment to the lives of our friends in service, we are only too happy to do our small part. It is just another phase in the neighborly spirit that prevails at DeRoy's."

A Small Radio?

Now you know, and I know, that hospitalization is a pretty expensive proposition, and such it has proven to be in this case. When the mother started out to look for a radio, she found that even the cheapest of used radios was far more than she could afford to pay for. And that's where you come in to this story. We're asking you for the loan of a small radio—a radio that you have ultimately saved a life. If you have such a radio that you will lend for a time, please leave it at the Enterprise office. We will see that it is returned to you when it has served its usefulness. A mother's gratitude will more than repay you for your kindness and generosity.
