"SALUDOS AMIGOS"

PALERMO, SICILY—Their faces bright with joy, friendly Sicilians mob an army vehicle, anxious to shake hands with some of the Yankee boys who freed their homeland from the clutches of the Fascist foe. Cheerful, grateful crowds like this greeted our doughboys as they rolled through captured towns throughout Sicily.

Mountains, Jungles Isolate Bolivia From Its Neighbors

LA PAZ—The Republic of Bolivia is a nation set apart from the rest of the world by the forbidding areas which surround it. The country is bordered by high mountainous, rugged jungles and virtually uninhabitable plains. Most of its people live on a plateau more than two miles above sea level. The language which the Incas spoke many centuries ago is in common use.

This domain, despite its semi-isolation, long has played a part in world affairs. Credit this paradox to the presence of great mineral deposits within its boundaries. Hopes of finding underground riches lured invading Spaniards to the region in the 16th century. Their hopes were realized. Wealth mined from mountain rich in ore enabled imperial Spain to finance military campaigns which made her victor over much of Europe. Four hundred years later, Bolivia's deposits of tin, tungsten, silver and other metals are vitally aiding the United Nations in battling another world war.

The territory which now forms Bolivia remained a part of the Spanish colonial system during approximately three centuries. Control was wrested from the Spaniards following victories by Bolívar and San Martín, the great liberators. A proclamation of independence was issued under Bolívar's authority on January 30, 1825.

France Was First Power To Salute American Flag

The first salute to the flag of the United States received from a foreign power was rendered at Quebec, France, February 14, 1778. The flag to win the salute flew proudly from the mast of the frigate, Ranger, Capt. Paul Jones commanding. The Ranger was one of the few ships of the line of the United States of America, the newest nation in the world and about the most friendly. Jones may have gambled a bit in first ordering a salute to the French ship commanded by Admiral La Motte Piquet—one gun for each of the states. Had not the salute been promptly returned Capt. Paul Jones would have found himself in a most humiliating position, but he weighed the possible prestige against the hazards of failure and adjudged the attempt worth while.

White smoke drifted lazily from the guns of the Ranger and Captain Jones and his men stood at attention. Their nerves were tense as they waited. There was an answering thunder of heavy guns from the French frigate. Nine explosions rolled across the harbor and the masts of both ships cheered loud and lustily.

Pledge to Flag

In the pledge described by the Second National Flag Conference (1924) the right hand is held over the heart during the words "I pledge allegiance to the Flag," then the right hand is extended palm upward toward the Flag while the words "Of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all," are said. At the end the hand drops to the side. This practice, which is followed in schools, is suitable also for civilian adults who, however, show full respect to the Flag simply by standing at attention when the pledge is given. Women salute the Flag by placing the right hand over the heart.

Effect of Heat on Rats

Rats under deep anesthesia were subjected to uniform severe heat injuries involving 75 per cent of the skin surface. When they were exposed at a temperature of 75 F., mortality was 25 to 32 per cent. However, when the animals were placed in colder rooms set at 32 or at 55 F., the mortality rose to 100 per cent. When placed in a heated environment of 99 F., the mortality also increased to 100 per cent.

Troop Travel

About 1,750,000 troops a month travel on American trains in official troop movements, exclusive of furlough travel.

Soybeans Loosen Soil

A crop of soybeans leaves the top three or four inches of soil in a loose, mellow state which encourages erosion on sloping land. Soybeans on sloping land should be drilled solid or planted in rows which follow ground contours.

The Axis Slops at Nothing. Don't stop your War Bond Payroll Savings at 10%. Every soldier is a 100 percent. Fight it out yourself.

Like buying War Bonds, the soldier operating the detectors will never know just how much they have aided in the success of their campaign, but he knows his work is necessary and must be accomplished. If more Americans on the home front will come to realize this, the success of our War Bond campaigns will be assured.

Diamond Superstitions
As the diamond is the most highly esteemed of precious stones it is natural that more superstitions and legends cluster about it than other gems. The most persistent and widely prevalent of these beliefs is that of its indestructibility. Flin says that the diamond is so hard that if it is placed on an anvil and struck a violent blow with a hammer, the hammer and anvil will break but the diamond will not be injured. If, however, the diamond is first soaked in the fresh, warm blood of a ram, the diamond will be crushed to powder but the anvil will also break. The Chinese version has it that the diamond will break if struck with a ram's horn. This belief has persisted in some degree to modern times.

Grass for Wet Land
Reed canary grass may be seeded at the rate of about eight pounds an acre for production of permanent pastures in areas too wet for other pasture grasses.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Booby Trap Detector

In the snow, in the sand, on the beaches, on the roads, in the woods, everywhere the Axis soldiers hide "booby traps" to slow the movement of incoming fighting men of the United Nations. The detector does the same work on land as the mine sweeper does at sea.

Like buying War Bonds, the soldier operating the detectors will never know just how much they have aided in the success of their campaign, but he knows his work is necessary and must be accomplished. If more Americans on the home front will come to realize this, the success of our War Bond campaigns will be assured.
