CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY
 New High School Auditorium
 Farmington

"Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, September 6.
 The Golden Text (Psalm 37:37) is: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

Among the Bible citations in this passage (Rev. 21:3): "And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.78): "The saint is the perfect harmony and immortality of Life, possessing unlimited divine beauty and goodness without a single bodily pleasure or pain—constitutes the only veritable, indestructible man, whose being is spiritual."

SIGNS OF A BLOW-UP

Hershey Shows Order of Induction

"The selection of men needed for the armed forces and the development of men required for agriculture, war production and war supporting activities are much more difficult than in the days when we had ample men from which to choose," said Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, in a recent letter to local boards. He said: "Available men will be called for induction in the following order—(1) single men without dependents—(2) single men with collateral dependents—(3) married men without children—(4) men with children (nondependent activities and occupations)—(5) men with children."

Cent and sentiment do mix. Take Henry Ford of Dearborn, for instance.

He is the central figure of this tale about two lumber villages in Michigan now being revived for war work.

Here is Michigan's most astute manufacturer, a genius of mass production and the inventor of the famed Model T "tin lizzy" whose very name has been a household word in American homes for nearly two generations. Here is the doctrine of "more and cheaper goods" the industrialist who established a $5 minimum daily wage in 1912, and who, until the recent advent of the U.I.A., C.I.O., fixed wages and working conditions on a basis of "take it or leave it" with ever increasing prosperity for himself and ever mounting wages for his employees.

Henry Ford at 80 is again the millionaire commander-in-chief of a war industry whose self-maintained operations extend far and whose size is breathlessly gargantuan.

Here also is probably Michigan's outstanding sentimentalist, a man whose devotion to the idea of old-fashioned, simple living was the inspiration for his Edison Museum and Greenfield collection of Americana, a devotion which is only exceeded by his fondness of children. We became convinced of the latter distinction recently when we visited a little lumber village of Pequaung, five miles north of L'Anse, on the Keweenaw Peninsula route to the Huron mountains where Ford has been spending his 1943 vacation.

Thanks to Henry Ford, a few remaining families at Pequaung and Alberta are smiling. Homes are being reopened. Children are going to school again. And smoke will pour from the mill stacks.

The historic town of L'Anse, whose site was a campground 200 years ago for French explorers and missionaries, has two satellite villages—Pequaung and Alberta.

Alberta is better known to travelers, for it was created by Ford in 1936 amid a heavy hardwood forest 10 miles east of L'Anse as an industrial experiment. Those of you who motored in pre-war days over U.S. 441 between Marquette and L'Anse will remember your surprise and pleasure when you turned a curve in the scenic road and beheld a picturesque, modern community—white-painted sawmill, neat and trim cottages, a schoolhouse and firehouse, and all this with boulevard lights and fine drinking water and even sewage disposal.

We say "pre-war" days because one dark winter morning, after Ford and Henry had arrived from Dearborn to cease operations. Overnight the town became deserted. Windows of the cottages were boarded up.

When we visited Pequaung the other day, men were cutting hay along the streets and on the lawns of unoccupied homes and the closed school. Pequaung is an Indian word for wooded peninsula, and

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY FIVE YEARS AGO (September 6, 1918)
 Change in Business

The forepart of the week a deal was made whereby Fred L. Cook and Company disposed of their stock of drygoods and groceries to outside parties, retaining only the hardware and furniture end of the business. Messrs. Cook & Co. have been in the general merchandising business in this village for the past 13 years, starting in a moderate way and building up a large business, having erected their present fine store building a year ago.

Our Liberty Loan Quota

The quota for Farmington Township for the fourth Liberty Loan is about $100,000. That is about the amount our people are to buy of the "total" which must be sold if the government is to successfully finance, during the next few months, our part in the terrible conflict the Kaiser and his hordes have brought upon the world.

Overheard Comment

Among the numerous comments heard last Sunday on the conservation of gasoline, and they were for the most part always favorable, a young man on the street car was heard to remark: "My father and my grandfather both have two of the best autos to be purchased, but do you suppose one of those cars is out of the garage today. No street, not for twice the price of them, and we are all riding on the street cars today."

TEN YEARS AGO (September 7, 1933)
 Brush Fire Perils Stores

A grass and brush fire which threatened buildings on the south side of Grand River Avenue, immediately east of Farmington Road was put out by the Farmington Fire Department Wednesday afternoon after a fifteen minute tussle. The fire, of undetermined origin, was serious enough to demand the use of the hose as well as brooms and other beating weapons.

Two Burglaries Stir Authorities

Police are still seeking the person or persons who broke into and robbed two Warner Street homes sometime early last Sunday morning. The home of George Hendryx was ransacked and antique jewelry, old coins and two guns, a shot gun and a rifle were stolen. Robert Burns arrived home Wednesday morning and discovered that his home had also been ransacked and a rifle, three suits of clothes, and jewelry and groceries taken.

Tax Plan is Unlikely

A plan outlined by representatives of a Detroit concern, whereby Farmington citizens could pay back taxes at about 50 cents on the dollar, appears unlikely to be put into effect in Farmington although it is reported to have worked well in Birmingham.

FIVE YEARS AGO (September 1, 1938)
 Four Votes Defeat School Plans

Pupils of Farmington No. 4, fractional school district will have no new addition to their building in which to attend classes. At least not for the present. Their elders have spoken for the second time, and again by their votes they have indicated that an increase in the millage rate does not meet with their full approval.

Schools To Begin

Vacation days will soon come to an end for hundreds of children in this vicinity. Classes in some schools will begin the day following Labor Day, September 6. Others will not get under way until the following Monday, September 12.

such it actually is, a mushroom-like jetting of land, swept by breezes from Keweenaw Bay.

Henry Ford had been there the week before. Unaccompanied by company executives except for his personal chauffeur, the head of the industrial empire talked with the caretaker and a few of the remaining townspeople. Only 12 out of 74 dwellings are occupied.

He was told that the Pequaung school, which had been a source of considerable pride and satisfaction to him because of its unique rustic furniture, was only a shell of walls and floors. The rustic furniture had been sold to company executives from Iron Mountain and elsewhere.

Ford declined to enter the building, saying that he preferred to remember it as it was with the sound of children's voices.

Oscar Olson, his prize fiddler who plays for old-time square dances, was in L'Anse when the industrialist arrived unheralded from his Huron Mountain summer lodge where he spends August each year.

We met Olson at the steps of the village postoffice. He was smoking a pipe, stolidly. He spoke affectionately first of the founder of Pequaung, Charles Howard. "Yes, I worked for Yalley Howard," he said, referring to the English lumberman who laid out the community with wide streets and oak trees, like an English suburban town. "The savor was mighty good to us. We allus had a savor."

Olson related how the "gov'nor" who ruled the town benevolently like a feudal lord, provided rent-free homes and free water and light and would even "stake" a hard-pressed family with food from his general store until the mill resumed operations or logging work started again. He had erected the Union Church building, along Gothic lines, and he attended worship services with the mill hands, an informal friendliness which everyone liked and remembered.

Howard's son carried on the work for a while, but in 1922 the Ford Motor Company located at L'Anse and the next year acquired Pequaung along with approximately 500,000 acres of timber land in Baraga county. Big business had arrived.

For many years the Pequaung folk looked to "Governor" Howard for security of employment. Then a big corporation, backed by multimillions, became their employer. The workmen thought they had steady jobs for the remainder of their useful days. In old age a retired worker could always fish

AMERICAN HEROES

BY LEFF

When Richard Brackentridge's submarine made a hurried dive off Japan, a hatch jammed, but he ignored the order to abandon the rapidly flooding rooming tower and remained behind, desperately trying to fasten it. By succeeding, he saved vital equipment for his submarine and became the first enlisted man in the submarine service to win the Navy Cross. He was willing to give his life.
